What is your favourite carnival ride. Add a description or a photo since the same ride may have different names. Mine would be the kamikaze

I am a supporter of the classic Ferris wheel?

The dropper, I think it's called.
Goes straight up and down. Scary. Thrilling.

Call me a pussy but I was always paranoid the shit would break and didn't like anything.

I don't go to carnivals, only theme parks. Carnival rides are DANGEROUS af

I like the slingshot, you sink down in a little pod and it flings you like skyscraper height. Heaps of good YouTube videos of people fainting on it.

I've always had precious memories when it comes to the Merry-go-round as a child, it's been a very long while since I've visited an amusement park.

I went 4 times to carnivals with friends and all the rides were so boring to me that I showed 0 emotions at all while everyone near me was screaming and pissing their pants xD I enjoy more the peoples' faces during the ride instead of the ride itself lol.

Hell yeah man thats my favorite too. They have them at the carnivals and they are only like 40 or 50 feet tall but they are still my favorite ride. At California Adventure Park, I remember they had one that was like 150 feet tall or something lol shit was fun

If we're counting Disneyland and other parks, I would say Splash mountain/space.

Yup lawyers love carnival rides. Easy 2 million dollar injury case.

Omg that thing will F you up haha. I was in a major city where they had one. You go from everything being super loud around you to you're higher than the tallest building in the city and can't hear anything but wind, all in about 2 seconds haha. Those things are a trip.

A teenager lost a leg in the Alton Towers in the UK in 2005. Since then I've stuck to the bumper cars!

HEISENPUG - December 12, 2020, 5:30 pm

They used to have this gravity UFO ride that spun really fast and made it so you could climb the walls and shit. Was a really cool ride just never knew the name of it.
