

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Where to start Forex Day Trading

Wheezy Gang - December 23, 2020, 1:28 pm

I'm wondering if anyone has any good threads/videos/posts on how to start Forex Trading as a complete beginner? I've got a personal friend who paid to join one of those "Trading Academies" where they have mentors and private videos and strategies and blah blah blah and it all just sounds like some scam rip off scheme to me, I'm wanting to learn about trading on my own and ill take my chances there.

TrueKings - December 23, 2020, 1:41 pm

If you want a course, I would look into the Investopedia academy. Virtually everything they make on that site is relatively high quality. I don't trade forex beyond using it to hedge currency risk on overseas positions, so I won't be much help.

Also, if you are in the US, many forex specific brokerages will not accept your application. Anything fast paced is incredibly risky, and more akin to gambling. Stay safe out there, and have fun.

Her Goblin - December 23, 2020, 2:55 pm

(Dec 23, 2020 02:28 PM)Wheezy Gang Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm wondering if anyone has any good threads/videos/posts on how to start Forex Trading as a complete beginner? I've got a personal friend who paid to join one of those "Trading Academies" where they have mentors and private videos and strategies and blah blah blah and it all just sounds like some scam rip off scheme to me, I'm wanting to learn about trading on my own and ill take my chances there.

If you're dealing with more than $25k, you should just flip OTC tickers. Specifically the 000's if you're day trading. I've had 100'000x's<-literally more luck with OTC trips than with Forex. But that's me.

GLTY man!