Thread: California - 2 Million+ COVID cases.

DelTex - December 25, 2020, 11:53 pm

California has passed the 2,000,000 COVID cases mark. Not a surprise to me, personally, given the amount of people willingly crammed into living around the cities and costal areas in California.

Some numbers for you:

California passed 2,000,000 COVID cases total.

39,51*, (39.51) million people live in california.

Roughly 5% of California has been diagnosed with COVID.

Since COVID hit California, 23,600 Californians have died to COVID.

Roughly 1.15% of all people who contracted COVID in California have died to the Virus.

It's gonna get worse after the holidays; more than a million people flew in to the US over the last few days

Elijah - January 10, 2021, 12:37 pm

christmas gathering is the main cause of covid spread after the holidays.

True, but these numbers I addressed were reported numbers before Christmas Day. Travel might have had some to do with it for sure, but I'm sure the bulk of Christmas COVID cases were not reported until after the holiday.

actually currently residing in California, not many people are out partying

Isolate - January 21, 2021, 8:57 pm

See if it where like Florida where everyone parties and doesn't wear masks maybe they would have half the cases ???
