I have many stories but one that hurts me the most is the one I'll post about.

When I was younger I had about $3k on Poloniex and I was talking to a friend on Skype on the daily about crypto and stuff. He told me about a new double-spending method on a casino and after a lot of SE on his side he managed to get me on board for it. He showed me a wallet with almost $1m in it and told me to trust him.

We use a public website for double-spending, I send a racking 0.7 BTC (around $3k at the time) to the website while screen sharing, always having control. Little did I know, you could see the "owner key" for that double-spend session in the screenshare. This meant that he could control the double-spending from the website and instead decided to re-direct the payment back to him.

I accept my 98% loss and move on, decide to check the crypto market and BTC price 1 month after.

It was worth $15k, I was only 15.

Wish I never trusted the guy and went with my gut feeling.

PoLoW - January 7, 2021, 1:22 am

I had 1 BTC six years ago i spent the money on PS4 console and the rest on useless things. Imagine if i have kept it safe in my Laptop.

Another story i bought 8 ETHs when it used to be $9 each, i kept trading and losing them and sold the rest for $200 or $300.

Few months before the peak of the last bull run I put 3 BTC into Elix, it turned into around 30 BTC. Dumped hard before I could cash any of it out.

Project went dead after that....

I probably even had a thread on HF about it.

Everything seemed legit and constant updates and then bam, exit scam.

First ever test investment in crypto's was in Stratis, Stratis was like 0.02 at the time in 2016 I invested $20. My $20 investment went over the roof and became $2000 when I sold.

It eventually hit $19 ATH before it crashed LMAO

I hopped off the train with $1980 profit but Stratis was just a TEST investment before I invested aggressive if I skipped the test phase and would've went right to the aggressive phase I would've be fucking rich right now..

If I didn't test invest $20 and went right for a proper one with at least $500 it would've been like this :

$$500 : 0.02 = 25000$

$25000 \times $19 \text{ ATH} = $475000$

Since then I been chasing for a hidden gem so long... Then the 2018 crash came which crushed all our hope. UNTIL NOW, NOW THE TIME IS RIPE AGAIN LETS FU>CKING GO!!!!!!

Imagine making 100x ROI on your first ever dummy test investment... Trust me brother you'll be addicted forever till riches.

Not really crypto related but I once sold my instagram page for $750BTC which was going viral as fuck. If I only knew back then how much money I could've made today with that page....

On the other side: I recently recovered an old wallet with 500$ worth of bitcoins.

Killer. - January 7, 2021, 8:56 am

Bought/sold and earned a ton but sadly sold most of it over the years. The number is probably inflated due to transfers to/from exchanges but I estimate it to be atleast 1/2 of that.

To make matters worse I had quite a bit of loss in altcoins back in 2017-18.

Now I am left with a tiny fraction of that original amount. Lesson learned though, I am not selling anymore.

Edit: To the feds out there, that's not the balance in my wallet. That's the total received BTC in my wallet and most of that was when BTC was < $1k. I have nowhere near that amount now.

Selling 1 BTC at $11k, 2 days later it goes up $13-14k and now we're at nearly $40k.

Selling 0.6 BTC at $17k, only to go back up to $19k a day later and again now we're at nearly $40k.

Bought BTC for £4k GBP with a buy order I had set up when it dipped in March 2020. Sold at £5.5k because at the time I thought COVID would have more detrimental short term impacts, which in hindsight was stupid as if I had thought smarter about what normally happens during a crisis, i.e. QE > Stonks, commodities, crypto booms, I wouldn't have fell into the fear.

Won't make that mistake again.

Bitcoin is sitting at £29k today.

I had exactly 13 bitcoins when it was 9$ that's 117$ and at the age of 16, 117$ investment is like 50,000$ now... I sold the 13 bitcoins when they were 120$ each and made roughly 1,550-1600$ which is around 1400$ clean profit. Today? 513,500$ @ price of 39,500$... FML!!!

One more thing I did was buy this morning Stellar for 5000$ @ 0.355 and now just only 20 hours later it is down to 0.290 and I am short almost 1000-1200$.

Both times, FML!

Mine wasn't too extreme. I E-whored my way to $7k and held it in my wallet until a few months ago. BTC wasn't looking like it was going anywhere since it was lingering around 9-10k for a while so I figured I'd take my profits and run at 10k. Few months later it's at $40k. Not sure if relatable, but once in a hurry, I had a friend who knows little (back then I also knew little) about crypto send me 500 EUR. In USDT. I needed BTC. I was using LocalBTC so no access to the private key. RIP 500 eur, its still suck, localbitcoins support won't help me.

Also when the ATH hit $10000 a few years ago, I had a few thousand in btc and I held it, but from then it went back for a good 25% and I panicked and sold lol. Amateur mistakes

Another one of me selling UNI airdrop for $3 or so and getting $1200 or so out of it(I mean its still alright but would've had much more right now when it hit $30 like few weeks ago)

And me spending 2BTC in 2016 when it was worth around $250, on darknet stuff weed and acid but I don't rly regret it because I knew 0 about investing and never even thought of leaving any coins on exchanges and stuff after buying on dnm.

RainmakerBTC - March 6, 2021, 7:25 am

One thing stands out to me out of many of my mistakes in crypto

I had like $10k worth of BNB @60c.

Think I sold it at 90c ,when my intention was to hold it for a long time because I knew it was going to blow up.i guess I saw the profits and in the moment I wanted to make sure I kept them , but doing that I completely forgot my main goal when I originally bought it.

Yes , profits are good , but when you KNEW it was going to blow up way more than the price you sold @ it hurts even more. I was young though & I was too afraid to lose my profits. Oh well, something I will always remember.

To be clear , there's no way I would have held it to its current price. I just know when I initially jumped in I was aiming for $5-10 and a long term hold.

I owned about $1,500USD of SHIB this was back when the coin was first made. I was one of the twitter's first followers but then I saw the coin going no where after about 1-2 weeks so I pulled out all my money. About a month later SHIB goes up to 12B market cap and If I had held onto my SHIB even a small amount I would have had Millions. Instead im broke :p. Never did I think SHIB would break out as big as it did.

Can find threads of me on here selling 40+ BTC to people for $5, $10, $40. Think there's a thread of me selling MWT 40 BTC for $1600 around here somewhere still.

Participated in Ethereum's ICO. Dropped $1000 on it at got roughly 2850 ETH for $0.35 each. I sold all for $0.36.

Sold 70% of my ADA between $1.45 and $1.85. I still have a lot, but this is a recent pain. Just sold my ADA at $2.07, you might be able to re-buy some of it back under $1.85?

The rest of the post is sad tho?

I still have over 30,000 ADA, but I've been a major ADA supporter since day 1. Had over 100k with an average buy price under $0.04. even at $1.40-$1.80 sale prices I made killer profits on all of it, would just be nice to still have it.

Yeah this is brutal looking back now but to be fair with something like SHIB there was no indicator it was going to pump like that.. if it makes you feel any better lol.

Had you bought DOGE you would've been even richer.

This didn't happen to me but instead to a friend of mine.

During spring sometime this year my friend bought 2000€ worth of Dogecoin. The next day the price of Dogecoin dipped really hard. He was drinking with some people at his place because he was so depressed over the loss. He invited me over and he told me about the dip and how he only had a few hundred euros left from it. I told him to hold it but he said that he already sold it and "it didn't matter anyways". A few weeks go by and Dogecoin has the biggest rise in price that it has ever had. I was hanging out with him and he calculated the profits of his Dogecoin if he would have held it and he showed me how he would have had over 1 million euros if he would of held it for those couple of weeks.

I got a good gambling story for ya.

So back in the day 1 BTC was worth about $70 or so, and there was a MINECRAFT gambling server called Bit Vegas. It was actually pretty fucking sick even by today's standards like I'm amazed at how the casino games and withdraw and deposits actually worked out without any major hiccups (I still think the Minesweeper was rigged FUCK that game). Anyways. Young me had gambled my way up to like 5-6BTC in game and thought nothing of it, I didn't really grasp the concept and reality of "Oh shit I got like $300 in a video game" sooooo I ended up losing it all. About a week or 2 later, price skyrocketed to about $1k and I literally wanted to kms. Like imagine. You're young you're gambling online you don't really understand the actual money of what you're playing with.... and then you're like "Fuck I literally gambled away a car on minecraft". And thennnnnnn December 2017 hit..... and BTC was $20k. Needless to say..... yeah no I could have been decently rich if I cashed out that 5-6BTC and just chilled for a few years.

It still hurts me when I see the value of BTC these days knowing how many I had and how carelessly I threw them away

Calling btc a shitcoin, IQ 1 figure for a person is possible as it seems.

Long time ago, around 2011-2014, not really sure. I was selling here in HF, and one guy bought using bitcoin. It was 18 BTC if I remember right. I accepted even though it was not much worth to me at that time. Deposited the BTC on a famous website at that time, and now I have no freaking idea where those BTC are. I don't remember anything, website, wallet nr., nothing.

Probably anyone here who has more experience and remembers that time can help with some hints, like the websites used at that time on HF for buying/selling using BTC. Who knows maybe I might even find them...

ps. feels like a treasure hunt >.<
