Thread: The interesting part about the crypto revolution.

Remember back in the day everyone was afraid to invest into crypto (BTC) because the money circulating in crypto's was too low which takes 1 malicious person with a large chunk of money to manipulate the whole market.

Market cap is over 1.000.000.000.000 now. If this trend continues not even the richest person on earth would have enough money to manipulate/crash the market which makes it much more trustworthy as long as tech development, concept and purpose continue.

In the past there were way more risk factors on how to break or stop the crypto revolution, now it's becoming so big that it's way and way harder to break it down.

The only thing that could stop it at this point is a massive-massive FUD imho.

Man... even a massive FUD is not enough I think ( crypto survived thru mtgox )

LETS GO.

Man... crypto market cap is 1 trillion, total world stock market cap is $90 trillion, that's like 1.1% of crypto's whole market cap, imagine if crypto only takes 5% more of the world stock market investors attention that would mean that BTC already would go up to like 300/400K easy.

Now count the amount of people who never invested into the stock market but only in crypto, the numbers would go again higher.

A small optimism crypto vibe thru the world is everything it takes to make today's crypto holders millionaires..

So guess if I ever have a spare $1000 I should just throw it in a btc wallet and forget about it hehe
