Thread: Earth2 - Virtual Land \(5 Ways of Income + My Stats\)!

LoremIpsum - January 11, 2021, 3:30 pm

Hello you all,

Some are already aware of this platform/game, some of you might not have heard anything about it. To be short, it's a 1:1 virtual world of the Earth, but still under development. You are able to visit land/places, buy and (re)sell them. There is a leaderboard, a Marketplace and of course lots more.

This is not a financial investment advice thread. This is a thread about what I invested in and what I believe in to be solid.

Do your own research at the website / platform, before posting anything. Thank you.

My portfolio partially shown here;

You can see that I put in about $700 and got a ROI of $1800+ which is $1100 profit (value increased).

Important Articles / Pages to read first;

Ideology

How-To's

Updates

FAQ's - 82 questions already!

Q uestions & Answers;

Make sure you READ about Earth2.io before posting here. Tired of kids claiming it's a Ponzi without doing any research. Thanks!

I will make a Q/A list here with important questions that might be asked on this thread.

Q: Can you buy any piece of land you want on Earth2?

A: No, you can't. Check here an example of me trying to buy a land that isn't for sale (yet);

<https://gyazo.com/0cb9f57769911333a00bfdd858393c4b.gif>

Q: How do you pay for your virtual land on Earth2?

A: With PayPal, Visa, MasterCard, Amex or Discover.

Q: How do you make money with Earth2?

A: Here are 5 methods; <https://earth2.io/how-to-make-money> my main income now is increase of property value and Land Income Tax (LIT).

Do not ask me questions that you can find back on the website of Earth2.io

I will simply reply by referring you to the website and (re)read it. Thank you!

What are the benefits of owning land/property?

Basically; profits as in real life scenarios.

Detailed; the land already increased in value rapidly which I am able to sell already.

I do however wait for the platform to have released resources and/or ability to build or look/edit the bought properties.

But what is the benefit of someone else buying the property and land, instead of speculating on selling it to the next guy for more? Its just a ponzi. Take your profit before others dump.

This feels like something If I put in $1000.. I am going to wake up the next day and it will be worth $1. How is there even any value in this? The whole thing just seems like a giant scam. Can you do anything on it? Is this like the sims? Is it a game or is it just something you can buy a section on google earth and hopefully some retard comes and buys it off you haha.

I ask this in the most respectful way possible because I am genuinely curious but it just seems like a joke to me

I'm not familiar with Earth2.io and how you can liquidate your "land"... but I guess that someone else has to buy it.

What makes you think someone else is going to buy it later on when price goes even crazier? It has no fucking value, Imfao.

No problem. Plenty of people pass. Those who don't are making money already.

It's not "selling virtual items", it's a 1:1 copy of the real Earth. Meaning if land is purchased, you can't just replicate it.

Also, collecting Taxes on the land you own is a great addition to the platform / game.

Here's a little example of the taxes I got today;

<https://gyazo.com/0531be30d526b68d59ce3cd8875fe9f4.gif>

All the little cents (pennies) that are added to my balance, is thanks to the land I already own.

So to be clear about all this; you purchase land, your land increases in value while receiving taxes depending on which class you have (1 - 4).

Same as your thread, you should state this is not financial investment advise just to not get any hate from potential idiots trying to flip instantly.

Whatever someone's strategy is to make money, that's their choice and I respect it - but sharing and promoting something you have no concrete reassurance on is gambling and not really responsible. That being said, good luck with your returned gains as any insane % return is a plus-side.

Do your own research, and fuck people's opinion.

Its not related to the virtual club because

A. That game had real life people feeding the money machine with tons of cash

B. Refer to A.

The only reason this site makes money is from players bringing in money. I guarantee you there isn't some wealthy donator backing these values with their own bank account. The whole 'worth' comes from others buying land. Which is exactly what OP wants you to do, therefore increasing his own virtual property value.

There is no backing, there is no economy.

The only money in is buying properties, and you cant get more out then what you put in if that's the case, so when you have good returns, you're basically making someone else's lost money. It's only a matter of time before that lost money is in someone else's hands, probably the site owner.

OP seems to think that telling people to educate themselves on the website somehow makes it okay in his mind that he's inviting people to a fantasy land of Unsustainable return.

Are you going to disclose that you cannot sell the land tiles back once you buy them?

also, worth noting that the price of the tiles only go up when more people buy land in that respective country.

You can sell the the land (tiles) once you bought them. The land also goes up if resources are found at your land, advertisements are placed at your land and other methods..

I'm dead serious now, f*ck off my thread with your ignorant and provocative behaviour. Thank you, d*ckhead.

Yes, you can sell them, on the public marketplace. Too bad the $40 tiles are being sold for literal dollars because people don't buy them.

First I'd like to thank you OP for posting this when you didn't have to. I had to reread the thread 2-3 times to fully digest what I believe to be happening. I'm just a dumb grunt (no really, I'm really dumb lol), but the words that popped into my mind after the last time I read was Ready Player One (or any book/movie that deals with virtual reality). In several books, I read dealing with virtual reality there was a theme that kept coming up. That theme was virtual advertising. Whether the character had a chip in his brain, a contact lens that allowed them to see AR, or something to that effect, the characters would always be assaulted with some kind of advertising for guns, porn, sports, or what have you. Coupled with the fact that the person behind Oculus is on board I think this could be huge. When I look at it through that lens this could be massive and I think it's definitely worthwhile to grab a piece of land now while it's cheap. Once this gets big enough and big companies start to notice the applications whoever got in on this will be sitting pretty. There are some companies already working on a contact lens that lets you see the world in AR. I reread it a few times because it wasn't making sense logically. Most definitely because I'm not a visionary lol. Who knows this could plop, but I firmly believe that one-day virtual real estate will be a thing especially seeing how many brick and mortar establishments are failing. Think how cheap a business could operate virtually and anyone with augmented reality glasses or contacts could just place an order. Or when the government sees it's cheaper to send kids to a virtual school rather than kids actually going to school. Hell with the pandemic my kids are already taking classes at home. All in all, I really appreciate the post OP. Really eye-opening and I'm very excited about the prospects even if this particular platform doesn't work out. There was a bit of immaturity on all sides, but I can relate. I would be extremely frustrated if I saw the potential for a platform and other people were disrespectful/negative. Anywho I wish you the best OP. Try to ignore the naysayers. Peace, Love, & Light.

Really? Are you really trying to get other people to invest in this shit without at the very least stating this is a VERY HIGH RISK investment. Like come on man you cannot actually be serious right now? Why are you so defensive when anyone is trying to warn you that is very likely is a ponzi scheme, I don't think it is acceptable for you trying to get other members to invest into something by misrepresenting the situation massively.

Warning signs for anyone who was considering investing(which many not be a bad thing if you are happy investing in something that is high risk but has a high reward):

1. Many users cannot withdraw/experience very long and difficult withdrawals
2. The value/gains shown on the site are massively inflated and you will have a hard time selling the tiles for a fraction of the listed price.
3. The BS about the guy who sold Oculus being on the team is just pure fantasy, its literally some Oculus cofounder... <https://twitter.com/dseo1030?lang=en>

Why would I pay money for that?

In the real world lands have value because you build things on them either to profit or for your own use.

What do I do with digital land?

To you all.. Little time so I will keep it summarised.

Buy land now and sell when you think you have enough profits. Cash out to bank and never log in again.. If you read the site Zero, you would see what you can do already with land or what the future plans are.

Its not rocket science. If you dont trust it, dont invest in it. Simple. I never had a single bad day so far, only fast growth so I dont care about those claiming it to be a wrong move.

Compare this to BTC! Many sites and companies claimed BTC to be a bursting bubble and where are we today? I see a huge potential in this and those who dont share this point of view should leave this thread and focus on things that do work for them. Thank you!

If this thread keeps being attacked by ignorant members who dont value ideas to be shared without freaking out, I will close it and reopen it once I cashed out to prove you all wrong.

It costs me more time and good energy at this point than I think is needed for. Ffs is wrong with you all.. investing in EWhoring is great but a new project backed up and worked on by some high respected people is totally wrong? Kids these days..

Closing this thread as I am not a fan of wasting time.

The content will stay open for those who like to learn about it. Thank you all for being understanding and f*ck those who are nothing but negative in life.
