Anyone got into Enjin yet?

Hitting some good percentage (45%) jump today on positive news.

<https://www.coindesk.com/enjin-coin-becomes-first-gaming-cryptocurrency-whitelisted-for-use-in-japan>

I got into Enjin in May and stacked more in June. It's one of those stealth investments I hadn't shared with the community yet. Today it's paid off huge and I'm gonna hold after that great news about Japan.

Anyone else have Enjin or at least interested in it? I advise you to install their wallet and get $1 worth just to see how their Market works. Also a great wallet because it does support multiple currencies and exchanging.

Thanks.

Kill Joy - January 19, 2021, 9:56 am

I invested in their ICO but haven't been in ENJ since the 2017 bull run. They are one of the few projects that is still paving the way forward in their industry. Great investment for anyone.

Omniscient - January 19, 2021, 10:01 am

Imagine8 - January 19, 2021, 10:02 am

Hmm

"expected to be listed on Japan's Coincheck exchange on Jan. 26"

Could cause a further rise?

HACKED - January 19, 2021, 10:07 am

I've been holding Enjin for some months. It's a serious project which will last.

As for its performance during this bull run, it has not been the best until now.

Until last week, it had been doing worse than most alts. IMO such rise was inevitable considering the fundamentals of the project.

Swip3r - January 19, 2021, 10:14 am

I remember trading some of this and MANA in the previous run lol, definitely going to look into it if its pumping 45% and gets whitelisted as a gaming currency.

Japanese games are huge around the world.

.Infinity - January 19, 2021, 10:26 am

I used their website gaming platform for years on my old Minecraft server and man was it beyond shit... every big network ended up switching off it and just using Xenforo instead. Doesn't really inspire confidence in their coin, but that doesn't mean it'll be a bad investment.

TheMTGuy - January 19, 2021, 10:45 am

I jumped into Enjin back in March when I read your post Omni. The news about Japan is great!

Fees are high all over. Partially because ENJIN is an ETH token and ERC-20 fees are high right now.

hi_man - January 19, 2021, 9:07 pm

I invested in ENJ from 0.164 on October 1. Though it was purely based on price action not on fundamentals. It took 3 months to hit the targets. When I invest then I try to be in a coin with reasonable upside momentum chances. I am comfortable in holding coins which have room for lower prices as that is where the patience plays its role in investing over time.

I was in Tfuel too. It paid off well and still holding. Exited TOMO at breakeven as made a bad decision exiting it.

ETH rising so its coins will. Its just which one pays you well.

I couldn't. At the time because it's an ERC-20 token my Enjin wallet didn't have enough ETH for the Gas. I feel like I should swap some out though today. Maybe not all of it though but enough for profit taking.

Sorry, I am not willing to share anything else at this time. Unlike those who shill everything they buy. I like to buy and wait to see what it does before I make public comments. Sometimes I'll have an asset for a year before I say anything at all about it. Sometimes I'll watch (without buying) for just as long.

(Feb 25, 2021 09:35 AM)Omniscient Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Really? Care to elaborate. Now I am curious. I owned the Minecraft usernames PHP, MySQL, Hack. I also had a HUGE MC server when I was 13. A few 'ratters' on Enjin's forums saw that I had those usernames and noticed I was looking for someone to create a custom server plugin for me.

After they had told me they could create the plug-in I believed them. I didn't know what a remote administration tool was at the time so throughout the first night they had full control of my PC. All they wanted were the damn usernames.

Make a long story short, CatSoup? I believe his name is/was was a member on Hackforums and he brought me here to get my PC cleaned of the rat (even though he was the one that ratted me.) I guess he felt bad or something because he acted as if I were his friend for 6 months or so.

Moreover, he wasn't my friend, he was trying to get into my paypal account but failed. He called my local sheriffs office when I was at school one day and told them "Hello, my name is (My name) and I'm currently playing Xbox and someone broke into my house and I'm scared"

CatSoup and Betrayed were the two members from Enjin who ultimately lead me to Hackforums.

You may ask: What made you stay?

The GFX artists from 2014-2016 were amazing and made the best banner advertisements for PlanetMinecraft so I always was employing someone to make new graphics.

Sorry if this story seems incomplete, driving on autopilot to pick up a dog 3 states away at the moment.

I actually was very close with the main dev, Maxim. I do have high hopes for Enjin's coin. I have high hopes that Enjin will be the first crypto to be used in conjunction with Virtual Reality and its ecosystem. How cool would it be to slay your foe with a 1:1 diamond sword that you can actually use?

For years Enjin was the biggest website platform for Minecraft networks, from around 2011 to 2016 when Xenforo use took over the major server networks.

I wouldn't be too bullish on that if I were you (for this reason alone). Everyone switched off Enjin in favor of Xenforo because of how terrible their platform was to use.

Enjin may do well long term, but their history in MC should not be a valuable factor imo due to how poorly their software worked.

With this hype on NFTs we can get a really good pricing for Enjin, very perspective project, also the number of searches on NFTs passed DeFi searches.

There are some projects in this sector, but Enji is way more plausible for average users, that is very important.

I'm also bullish on Enjin though I don't own any, but I think looking at their history with MC is not a good indicator. They were a terrible platform for years that got overtaken by a simplistic forums software in their main demographic.

On the upside though they still have millions of community users and have emerged as a growing space for more than just MC. Integrating Enjin coins into their ecosystem of gaming communities was the whole sales pitch from the beginning, so I'm pretty shocked you didn't know their background on enjin.com and where they came from.

I predict since the drastic upswings, the bullrun should last until October early November and then we will see a bear market but not as strong as the 2018 one mainly because of how media outlets are hyping the crypto space right now, and massive money being poured in by institutions...

If I put 10k$ on Enjin, I should expect at least 3x up to 5x by my calculations.

I think if you had followed my threads you'd already be up 300%. The NFT market is easily worth $5b imho. Will Enjin lead that space? Maybe. Will that pricing hit this year to $5b market cap for Enjin? Maybe.

It's hard to say what Enjin will do after being up 300% in just 60 days. IMHO that's a moon already. Hitting that $1+ mark is huge as it represents a $1b market cap.

It is ranked #70 for market cap. Unsure if it belongs in top 50 which would represent a 100% increase in valuation to do so.

I just think you're late into the game to now expect a 3-5x return.

be up 300%. The NFT market is easily worth $5b imho. Will Enjin lead that space? Maybe. Will that pricing hit this year to $5b market cap for Enjin? Maybe.

It's hard to say what Enjin will do after being up 300% in just 60 days. IMHO that's a moon already. Hitting that $1+ mark is huge as it represents a $1b market cap.

It is ranked #70 for market cap. Unsure if it belongs in top 50 which would represent a 100% increase in valuation to do so.

I just think you're late into the game to now expect a 3-5x return. Gotcha, putting a sell order on 4$ and we hope I get it filled. Was watching Enjin when it was only 0.20$ a few weeks ago and I thought just like any coin getting hype and attention it will pump and dump at some point but this bad boy is riding the train to the moon.

Entry price 0.82$ @ 3,200$ and exit price 4$ @ 15,300$ is a nice profit for a 4 month hold.

This is my first year, heck, first 2 months in crypto and I am learning super fast. I can't wait for the bear market to start, will go all in on that motherfucker and then lambo next bull run.

What's wrong with that? As long as we understand the technology we should be able to see the viability of it's future.

Unfortunately I don't have all the time in the world nor the young brain power that I used to have so I do rely on certain bits of information surrounding technologies I foresee being useful in the future (electric vehicles, fee-less or atleast reduced fee circulation of currency (still speculative of the cryptomarket)).

for NFT's is bigger. That as crypto gains world wide acceptance there will be use-cases like Enjin which could thrive. I have yet to see a killer app that bridges crypto to the masses. But I think Enjin is the closest I have seen. BAT is sort of there but it's more about rewards while Enjin is about collectables and items in crypto which can translate to a lot of things.

Enjin $10 would put the market cap near top 10 based on current prices. But in a year the overall market could be worth 2-3x what it is today. In that scenario a $10b market cap might be just top 25. I think that's a reasonable position to see Enjin at.

During this bullrun I think Enjin coin can realistically go 3x or even 4x the market cap easily. Would put it at around 6bil market cap which is nothing compared to some coins who don't even have a fully working product that have 10bil already. My entry price is 0.82$ and another one at 1.10$ but combined I have 0.92$ which I think won't fall to, unless we have a market wide dip of 45-50%. Even if that happens, I am buying the dip with at least 5-6k$.

However, offtopic, I am concerned a lot about ADA which I have invested over 10k$ @ 1.25$. Let's hope after full decentralization and Goguen update, with a possible Coinbase listing this bullrun we can achieve 3$ or 4$.

Being only 2 months into crypto, my only regret is that I did not get into it @ 2017-2018. Waiting on the dip end of 2021, early 2022 like a man waiting on a drunk lady ??

Omniscient - March 8, 2021, 10:28 am

Quote: Being only 2 months into crypto, my only regret is that I did not get into it @ 2017-2018. Realistically except for a few like ETH and BTC most of the market has not reached their 2018 highs.

Examples:

XMR -60%

LTC -50%

BCH -86%

DASH - 85%

QTUM -93% (this was suppose to be the next Ethereum)

NEM -60%

BAT - 28%

And there is LOT more that were 3rd tier coins now way off from the highs and likely will NEVER recover. The market today is healthier imho. Other than ETH and BTC most of the 2017 market is down. You really should not regret being part of that.

Yeah I'm about that price level. I made 3 purchase so I probably average between .15 and .16 with fees. IMHO this is drastically early. When you're past the top 200 (3rd page) of the charts there is a lot of upward momentum.

I got into Divi when it was in the 500's. I can't recall what position Enjin was at when I first bought but fairly sure it was past 100. Anyways, imho the best early investments are on pages 3-5. But that's a LOT of research on lots of shitcoins.

I don't think that was it. I think it was the $69 million NFT auction sale by Christies of Beeple art. Took a day or two for many people to look deep into NFT market and make an investment decision. What is there to explain? Majority of the market is red. If you have ever looked at crypto before you would see if majority of coins are trending in a negative direction then most of the others will trend the same way because of weak hands/stop losses being triggered/etc. Enjin going down a bit means nothing. No one can tell you when the market will change directions. If they could then then everyone would be rich.

Buying Enjin at this price is good. If it goes down more who cares why risk missing a good entry price? Enjin has a 100% chance of going back up once the market shakes off the negative trend so just do it

I didn't know what impermanent loss was until I provided liquidity for a coin called VAL (Valhalla) and got rekt lol

Not if you hold it for 100 days, you are guaranteed 100% IL protection.

Edit: I know what IL is, however, if you add to the right pools on Bancor it is covered by Bancor's network token.

Quote: Impermanent Loss Insurance accrues over time, by 1% each day, until 100% protection is achieved after 100 days in the pool. There is a 30-day cliff, which means that if a liquidity provider decides to withdraw their position before 30 days passes, they'd incur the same IL loss experienced in a normal, unprotected AMM. If an LP withdraws any time after 100 days, they receive 100% compensation for any loss that occurred in the first 100 days, or anytime thereafter.

Seems very interesting, not sure if I read it right but I thought I read it say if you remove liquidity before you get 100% you may occur IL as and when you remove your liquidity if it's before the 100 days have passed, which is understandable and expected. However I think if I'm reading correctly it protects you from any IL that occurs before you reach the 100% if you remove your liquidity after you earn the 100% protection at 100 days so no risk of any IL as long as you hold for 100+ days?

Yes, you are protected from the second you pay the stupid GAS to add.

There is plenty of documentation on how BNT solves IL which is mainly why I decided to add some of my holdings.

I have 100% trust and faith in Bancor.

Also [vatopid=148]

I easily see it going to $50 in the next year. 70% of BNT is locked up on Bancor's platform.

You just have to determine if it's worth paying the GAS to add your holdings.
