Sent. As the thread says, we are focusing on quality over quantity. There may be two games we bet on each week, but they are almost guaranteed to be profitable. You will be given the tip long before the game begins.

Our analyst is taking a different approach. We don't give several tips per day like other groups because we signal only the strongest possible opportunities. We will produce one to two tips per week.

Why, you ask?

Because it makes our signals superior to those of any other group.

Favorit - January 28, 2021, 11:04 am so you only give the highest probability signals?

what are the odds normally? is it over 1.70 as shown above?

Around 2 generally.

Highest probability and earnings potential together.

Favorit - January 28, 2021, 4:22 pm

So the difference between your signals and others is that other providers give daily signals but at the same time there is mixed results, winners and losers...but with you we get less amount of signals but mostly winners?

That's correct! What a lot of other groups / analysts do is publish a ton of signals. Even if many of them lose, at least some are bound to succeed when a lot are produced. This gives the group a bunch of winning trades that they advertise while disregarding the losing trades. Also, a lot of people are impatient and want several tips per day, but this results in much lower profit or just a flat out net loss for the members.

These groups are very short-sighted with this strategy. The Apex team understands that if you guys are consistently successful through our tips that you will continue to renew your subscriptions.

Our analyst is not some twenty year old kid whose had a little bit of luck over a short period of time. He's been doing this for over a decade, and he's found this to be the best possible approach. From a business standpoint and past experiences as a seller / owner of a service I've always found that services centered around the client always do better. It's a WIN-WIN.

Got the update from him, he actually wasn't betting last week as our vetting period for him ended with the last tip on the spreadsheet and he was taking a break while we set up the service.

Regardless, there should be enough history within that spreadsheet to verify our claims about his quality.

That is correct.

And yes, our vetting period for the analyst ended on the 17th. There have been bets, he just hasn't put them on that SS as his vetting period is over. We're building a new sheet for live forward testing.

There should be a signal today or tomorrow.

(We understand how important credibility is. To inquire, post below or send a PM)

[HOW ARE WE DIFFERENT?]

It's simple.

Most betting groups rely on a high volume of tips in order to cherry pick the best results and attract new buyers. The problem with this approach is that a lot of low-quality picks are given out at the expense of members. Most groups see a 60 - 70% success rate as satisfactory, but we refuse to settle for anything under 80 - 90%. We know that in order to build a long-term community, only the best possible tips should be published, and only the most experienced analysts should be contracted.

We realize that the success of the group is built from the loyalty and satisfaction of its members. From this, we've decided to try something different:

Quality over Quantity.

We will not provide you with a betting tip unless the analysis is clear and strong. This is how we've achieved such tremendous success with our predictions. With us, you can trust the tipster and win the vast majority of your bets.

[HOW DO I JOIN?]

The checkout process is quick and simple.

[FAQ]

Which sport does the analyst provide tips for?

Our analyst specializes in Soccer/Football. We could provide tips for other sports, but we've found our results to be most successful in this sport.

I've never gambled on sports. Is this for me?

Absolutely! Membership to Apex Sports Betting includes access to our in-depth tutorials, resources, and support team!

We will help you one-on-one until you're making money from our tips.

I'm skeptical. Can I see your historical performance data?

Of course! Reach out privately and I will share our analyst's long-term performance spreadsheet.

How long will the early member discount last?

Between one and two weeks after release.

Who can get a vouch copy?
Reputable UB3Rs, V3NDORs, and STAFF members of HackForums.

Honest Review:

First and foremost there is no guarantee that you are gonna always win, expect to lose. We are on our 5th winning streak now, tho before we achieve that we had a few hiccups. The team gave us quality picks that will ensure that you will have the best winning percentage.

Overall this service is LEGIT and will make you earn a decent amount of greens, just don't be greedy and bet it all in one go.

These are my latest slips from their picks :
Capital : 5mBTC
Profit: 5.72mBTC

As my two week vouch copy is coming to an end soon, I am going to leave my vouch now. In my two weeks of being in Apex Sports Betting, we have had (in parlay bets) 6 wins, and 3 losses. Now, that is actually 23 individual games, with 20 wins and only 3 losses. We are currently on a 5 Parlay win streak going strong! I would not be hesitant to recommend this service to anybody. I do plan to renew my membership once my vouch copy has officially ended, and I plan on using some of my profits from the service. As long as you have a nice balance to play with, and use Risk Management (which the Discord is there to help you on that part) you will be fine. Bet smart, not dumb! There is absolutely no way you will not come out with nice profits if you follow simple advice from the staff. I have enjoyed my time with Apex, and another thing that I find unique, this isn't a group if you want ten bets a day. We have maybe a few Parlay bets a week, you see other services providing countless bets a day, but that's also why they don't have the win percentage that Apex does have. My first day in Apex, the main analyst (tipper) said a quote that I have always went by, "It's about quality not quantity". and I think Apex's win percentage speaks for itself when that saying is brought up. Apex focuses on quality bets, not quantity. Thank you again for the vouch copy @OP. It's been fun, and I can't wait to see what the future brings!

Yes, we are very proud of the fact that out of 23 games, we've had 20 wins and three losses. We are generally used to seeing an even higher win rate though. Right before we made Apex available to the public, we were on an eight pick (15+ game) win streak, so the timing wasn't really on our side there.

Regardless, I'm happy to see that you are in such substantial profit and I'm sure the other members here are excited to see where you go from here!

PS: We have some things planned for this weekend / early next week that I think you'll be amazed about. Stay tuned.

Bluffer - February 11, 2021, 1:19 pm

I received a two week trial in this server and here's my review.

It is great to see a service which prioritizes quality of bets over quantity. I've seen a few times over the last two weeks where the bet predictor (who's extremely good at his job) will pass on betting on games because he's not certain. He will do a lot of research before games and make sure he's confident in his picks, that's what I like about this service. They aren't going to give you bad picks because they only pick games that they are sure on.

Another thing I really like about this server is they have a guide for newbies. In my case I hadn't really bet on sports before so I had a few questions, the bet predictor was happy to help me and Golden Complex has also always been able to answer my questions.

Profitability has been steady, I kept my bets low because I didn't know what to expect but I made enough to where I was confident in buying a month's worth after my trial ended. You will absolutely make money buying into this betting service over any others because they prioritize quality.

Cheers.

Correct, so he usually sends out the bets in parlay form, so if one event loses, then you are done. However, I don't see what's stopping you from placing them individually, the odds he gives out might be different though.

Accurate tips and great customer support. Prioritizes quality of bets over quantity that's why the win rate is above 80% unlike many other providers I tried and was at a loss most of the time.

IJVG - February 16, 2021, 6:37 pm

I just joined the group last night. Apparently we are suffering some loss streaks and miscommunication. Will post a detailed review in a week with either some loss porn or gains.

As it stands right now: I am on the fence, my bookie does not allow for these types of parlays so I personally cannot benefit from them.

Will check back with detailed review in a week.

I dedicated $1,000 to this group to try out the tips.

So far 2 bets from the last 2 days have both failed. (I think the current losing streak is around 3-5 in a row)

-$90 for an account total of $910

I also have dedicated a control group $1,000 of personal picks I will be following my guy and knowledge.

Im up around $280

+280 for an account total of $1,280

The explanation for us losing is that it all averages out statistically wise, which I agree with. We could easily be in the 20% losses they claim to have. However, tons of people in the discord are getting pissed and fed up with losing. I do not blame the members or the analyst, just waiting to see the wins come in. Most of these are really big parlays, so a few wins and you are back up.

We've had a bad week, there's no denying that. However it's important to keep in mind that these losses occurred after coming off of a five win streak.

Returns from this are meant to be measured in the long term. We have six months of history with our main analyst, showing very strong statistics:

And then this week we were negative. The miscommunication you write about I believe is regarding the misconception that our analyst recommended Martingale (Which he did not, but it could have been interpreted that way) and the misconception of which games he was actually tipping.

Our priority is quality over quantity, as is written on the OP. This means that we may not produce a huge amount of tips as we want to focus only on the best ones. Because of this, several users expressed the desire for higher frequency of tips. To satisfy this, our main analyst started posting additional predictions with the main picks so that if users wished to, they could bet on extra predictions even though they were less likely to hit. The first prediction that our analyst was posting each day was the main one, and any additional predictions were just meant for those who wanted the higher volume. Several users failed to realize this and simply bet money on every single prediction that came through instead of just betting on the recommended one.

In reality, this week would have been much better had users only bet on the primary predictions as recommended by us. To be fair, we did not do a good job at disclosing these changes to everybody. We should have made an announcement, and that's my fault. Every time a set of predictions are given out, the recommended one will be clearly labeled from here on out.

Regardless, the solution is the same. Continue betting on the predictions as Joker (our analyst) has proven himself over a long period of time and his predictions are always of solid quality when measured over the long term. I don't think it's fair to take one week of data as indicative of the quality of the group when we have six months of hardcore success documented.

(Feb 16, 2021 09:04 PM)AIBot Wrote: CITE We've had a bad week, there's no denying that. However it's important to keep in mind that these losses occurred after coming off of a five win streak.

Returns from this are meant to be measured in the long term. We have six months of history with our main analyst, showing very strong statistics:

And then this week we were negative. The miscommunication you write about I believe is regarding the misconception that our analyst recommended Martingale (Which he did not, but it could have been interpreted that way) and the misconception of which games he was actually tipping.

Our priority is quality over quantity, as is written on the OP. This means that we may not produce a huge amount of tips as we want to focus only on the best ones. Because of this, several users expressed the desire for higher frequency of tips. To satisfy this, our main analyst started posting additional predictions with the main picks so that if users wished to, they could bet on extra predictions even though they were less likely to hit. The first prediction that our analyst was posting each day was the main one, and any additional predictions were just meant for those who wanted the higher volume. Several users failed to realize this and simply bet money on every single prediction that came through instead of just betting on the recommended one.

In reality, this week would have been much better had users only bet on the primary predictions as recommended by us. To be fair, we did not do a good job at disclosing these changes to everybody. We should have made an announcement, and that's my fault. Every time a set of predictions are given out, the recommended one will be clearly labeled from here on out.

Regardless, the solution is the same. Continue betting on the predictions as Joker (our analyst) has proven himself over a long period of time and his predictions are always of solid quality when measured over the long term. I don't think it's fair to take one week of data as indicative of the quality of the group when we have six months of hardcore success documented.

If your predictor's performance is lacking will you dismiss him from his role and find a better one for his replacement?

is there any clear distinction between his recommended bets versus risky ones in his announcement?

Our predictor's performance is fine. It's been measured over six months. A week that dips below the usual performance is not grounds to let go of somebody who has proven themselves as incredible tipsters over half a year.

Yes, the recommended one will be outlined as "Recommended"

If we had any reason to believe that performance will be bad for a long time, we would find a better analyst immediately. The issue is that there are very few if any analysts as good as the one we currently have.

Sorry to say it but no tipster has 85% win-ratio. If someone is claiming this - he is a scammer obviously. Also those spreadsheets don't mean anything, you can always edit them. Please explore this business more and than start offering. It's lame you are trying to scam kids for $35.

This is true when it comes to standard tipsters. We spent a very long time finding and trialing the

You understand that with 85% win-ratio you'd be at least multi millionaire by now if you were betting cash on your tips. And on the other side why would you not bet cash if you are so good.

Please check the 85% win-ratio thing from your thread. Misleading people for 35 bucks is lame.

This. I was also asking myself that if you had a 85% win rate, why would you bother selling a service for 35$ when you can ultimately make as much as you want by betting?

This doesn't make any sense whatsoever. At Astro, our analysts have a proven similar winrate (With verifiable spreadsheets, all backed up by the actual signals in our server since launch). Why would we not additionally gather the $70k/month in subscription revenue? The average millionaire has seven income streams. I do take up the bets, and I also take up the trades that our analysts over at Astro propose. That right there is four streams of income instead of just two. Make sense?

I'm not saying you're lying, just the figures are slightly dubious. That's all. Good luck with it all. Absolutely. We prune non-members on a monthly basis.

We've expended over $50,000 adspend on Facebook ALONE, let alone the 1k+ membership sales we've done with online forums, the sales from SEO / online marketing firms, etc. With the very high renewal rate we have, I don't see how that's hard to believe. We are a real company with over thirty individuals under contract, not a small service being offered by a teenager.

It's always funny to me how the skepticism never comes from within, it is always from those who don't actually use the service they are speculating on. From those who are members, you hear nothing but positive things. Give us a google and read our reviews across the internet, not just HF. You'll see why we bring in and retain users so well.

EDIT: I just reread your post, I think you're confused. I was writing about Astro, not Apex.

Apex obviously does not have 2,000 members yet, it's a brand new service. I was commenting on the absurd argument of "If you can make so much money with your calls, why even sell them?". It's like asking somebody "If you can make $100, why are you even trying to make $300?".

Oh give me a break. This service is not exclusive to one individual. Don't act as if I'm sacrificing millions in order to sell this to one person for $30.

You realize that we have to contract these analysts, yes? We have to pay salaries. If I have already taken the time to contract an analyst to provide me with calls, it would be moronic not to further capitalize. Also, I follow risk management. I would never bet tens of thousands of dollars on a single game regardless of how good the analyst is. I still fail to see the validity of your argument, for you're implying that the rational choice is to make less money. (?)

If you have any questions, please DM me. Otherwise, please state your problem so that we can address it directly.

And again, I'll point out that every negative post continues to be from those who don't use or have access to the service, and every positive post comes from those who own and use the service. Go figure.

As it stands right now: I am on the fence, my bookie does not allow for these types of parlays so I personally cannot benefit from them.

Will check back with detailed review in a week.

I dedicated $1,000 to this group to try out the tips.

So far 2 bets from the last 2 days have both failed. (I think the current losing streak is around 3-5 in a row)

-$90 for an account total of $910

I also have dedicated a control group $1,000 of personal picks I will be following my guy and knowledge.

Im up around $280

+280 for an account total of $1,280

The explanation for us losing is that it all averages out statistically wise, which I agree with. We could easily be in the 20% losses they claim to have. However, tons of people in the discord are getting pissed and fed up with losing. I do not blame the members or the analyst, just waiting to see the wins come in. Most of these are really big parlays, so a few wins and you are back up.

This is my updated experience with Apex in about a month and a few days.

Beware all HF Users who are interested in this service. The actual win rate is more like 60ish% instead of 85%. But, even at 60% you will not profit because it's all really low parlay calls. They already closed and deleted one thread because of all the customers complaining when Joker the soccer analyst went on a 6 day loss streak.

I made tons of great high $X,XXX wins and also the same X,XXX losses. Infact there has always been more in losses than wins. I am trying to be unbiased as, the losses aren't a big deal for me this isn't my only tip service, I was simply trying them out. They even approached me telling me to leave a positive review for another week. Joker and JROD the two tipsters you can get tips from in Apex have all used my ticket earnings in their social medias or service threads. The wins are real you see here but the losses are even more real. In the private discord the admins also tell the users not to complain on HF about the losses.

Most if not all the bets submitted by their "top analyst" is 1.57 odds in decimal, meaning if you bet $50 you stand to win about $30-35. Not only that, but prepare to be glued to your phone, because they post tips and within the same hour you must be able to place the bet or you will miss out because all bets are given in some cases 30 minutes before the games start.

I bet over $10,000 daily (bets placed not profit), I use several different tipping services, the thing that really pissed me off about this service is that they are still marketing it as 85% win rate. It's plain fraud to announce that.

Joker has lost the past 2 days now and is no where even close to 70% this month. Just be careful if you decide to join in on the tips as you will get some wins, but the odds are such shit that you will never make profit over the long term. Also if you follow the "betting strategy" that joker suggest you won't even make enough to cover the costs to renew, as the big MASTERMIND TIPSTER himself only bets $15-30 a game with on average 4-5 games tipped per week at 1.5 odds is not enough when you consider losses.

The big majority of the community left once joker went on his week long loss streak, there are maybe 3-4 active people on discord posting besides the admins and 2 tipsters.

Just know, they do not have an 85% win rate, not even 70%. So if you do still want to join, go into for the sports betting experience and expect to lose money.

Other people have called them out for their deceptive marketing practices. They do not I repeat do not actually have an 85% win rate. I have no clue why they are picking and choosing games to post in the spreadsheet. Other members in this thread has called them out even in the discord and this thread and the previous deleted thread.

They seem to be just restarting the threads when people lose and continuing on. I used to be super pumped and even reassuring and positive in the community, but i became furious when I saw them still advertising the 85% win rates.

You guys can do what you want, but i suggest staying away from this one for now until they post a more realistic win rate.

I will upload screenshots of the earnings AND losses sustained while following Apex when I get some time.

Oh boy. I was going to try and clear up your misguidance privately with you in Discord, but after reading this entire thread I have to clarify the blatantly false things you're posting. Please read this entire post.

First and foremost, there has never been more than one thread. This is a serious accusation and it is blatantly false and untrue. This is the ONLY thread we have ever posted. We are not "closing and deleting" threads. No thread has ever been deleted. There has only ever been one thread opened, and it is still here. It has never been deleted. Look at the date of the original post on this thread:

Look at the date of the first announcements in our server:

This thread (Yes, the one we're currently writing on) was opened on the same day as the first announcement in the server. Also, VENDORS cannot just delete their own threads. Only staff can do that.

We closed the thread temporarily and shut down sales for that period because we wanted to work out a better system in which the money management system was properly communicated and focus on the existing members rather than having to deal with new members. We lost a LOT of revenue from doing this, so I don't see how you can write about it as if it benefit us somehow. We did that for the members and they were very grateful for it. Several members actually wrote about how it showed that we are a better service that puts its members first. I fail to see how this was negative?

"The actual win rate is more like 60ish% instead of 85%."

Entirely untrue. You need to follow instructions: Take into account the recommended bet system and average it out over a period of months, you will see a very high win rate. For those who aren't a part of the service: Our football analyst puts out multiple bets at once, several bets and a specific "Recommended bet". You are supposed to only follow the "Recommended Bet", all other tips are for those who simply wish to bet on more games and are willing to accept a lower win rate. This user seems to have misunderstood these "non-recommended" bets as being our main signals.

Also, the win rate is measured over a long period of time. I can look at JoKeR's trial period and identify certain weeks with a 50% win rate even though those weeks fall within a month with a 92.5% win rate:

Several times that there were consecutive losses, leading to low win-rate weeks (50 - 70%, which is actually still profitable anyways), but with insanely profitable months.

"But, even at 60% you will not profit because it's all really low parlay calls."

Blatantly false. You are supposed to follow the money management system, not bet the same amount on each tip. If you have been following the very clearly outlined money management system that is outlined for you (Our football analyst tells you how much to put down on each bet, which you are supposed to calculate as a percentage of your portfolio), then you are in substantial profit. If you purposely chose not to follow this or otherwise didn't see it, then that is on you.

By following our money management system, you would be profitable even with a 30% win rate, let alone our high win rate.

If you wish, I'd love to have a voice call with you where I can sharescreen and do the calculations one-by-one, going through the bets of the last month to actually show you how profitable JoKeR has been if you follow our system as it is outlined. I'll give you a hint: If you follow instructions, you've made a lot of money this month. If you don't follow instructions, then your results are not indicative of the group's performance by any means.

"They even approached me telling me to leave a positive review for another week."

Also blatantly false. This is a serious allegation. Our team would never do that. Perhaps you misunderstood what I wrote, so please post proof so that we can break it down. We offered a free license extension to all members during a specific period of time in February for which the only condition being that you were a member when the announcement was initially made.

"Other people have called them out for their deceptive marketing practices. They do not I repeat do not actually have an 85% win rate. I have no clue why they are picking and choosing games to post in the spreadsheet. Other members in this thread has called them out even in the discord and this thread and the previous deleted thread."

1) A member has never "called us out" for anything on this thread. The only things that members have posted have been positive. The only person who wrote about this thread being a "Deceptive marketing tactic" was one user who hadn't even purchased the service. He offered to bet $1,000 with me over our real win rate. I tried to take him up on it and he disappeared. No user who actually owns the service has written a negative review thus far but you, and it seems that you did not properly follow instructions within the server.

2) Once again, and I can't stress this enough, we have never deleted a thread. This is the only thread we have ever posted on HF about this service. Please stop making that ridiculous claim.

3) "Picking and choosing games" for the spreadsheet? What? Please identify which games have not been posted on the spreadsheet. This is a blatant lie and a serious accusation. You need to provide evidence before writing something like that.

"The big majority of the community left once joker went on his week long loss streak, there are maybe 3-4 active people on discord posting besides the admins and 2 tipsters."

What are you talking about? Ten users have renewed their subscriptions within the last 48 hours alone. We have more active subscriptions than we have ever had. People in the server are highly satisfied because this month has been extremely good for our members. If you chose not follow the instructions and lost money, then that is on you, not us. Several new people inquire about lifetime licenses daily. Just look in our general chat.

"Just know, they do not have an 85% win rate, not even 70%. So if you do still want to join, go into for the sports betting experience and expect to lose money."

Once more, you counting non-offical tips. I'm willing to join a voice call with you and prove how every member who is following instructions is in substantial profit and show that we have a much stronger win rate than 70%. Are you willing to take me up on this?

Even in the #chat, members are very happy with how things have been this month. You alone are the only member who has expressed such contempt, and I suspect that it's because you didn't read the instructional channels which outline how you are supposed to follow the tips and lost money because of your own failure to do due diligence.

Conclusion

Look, I have nothing against negative reviews. I use them to improve the service. It's a shame that this is the very first negative review that a member has posted, but beyond that, I have other issues with your post. You are blatantly lying, but I'd like to believe that you are simply misguided rather than maliciously and consciously being dishonest.

You have accused us of "Deleting and reopening the thread" when it's more than obvious that this is the only thread we've ever had (Look at the original post date). You are claiming that members are leaving the server and very few are active when the server is more active than it's ever been (We have more active subscriptions than we have ever had) and our members are very happy (Just look at the last few pages of the thread. You are our ONLY negative review from a member thus far).

Please clear up the blatantly false accusations you've made. I'm more than happy to publicly post our "Recommended Bet" and "Money Management" systems so that you can review them and understand why your claims about the win rate and unprofitability are misguided and false. This month has been extraordinary for our members, and the only reason someone could be unhappy with the service right now is because they don't understand or chose not to review the instructions.

I will donate $1,000 to st Jude's children's hospital if you can prove with out a doubt that every call that Joker posted landed within an 85% win rate within the last 3 months. Infact I have my betting history to prove its not 75%

It's simply impossible, even OG professional gamblers who bet hundreds of thousands weekly only get 60% win rates MAX.

What you are doing is having Joker post parlays and picks and putting (recommended) next to the bets you suggest the users bet on. Which this practice just started end of last month. Before you were cherry picking what you want to put in that spread sheet. Right now it's easier for you to justify the cherry picking on that spreadsheet because you implemented the (recommend bets) so you can easily cherry pick the good bets. In the past it was, oh well those weren't the recommended ones , sorry.

I was honestly going to put up a good review to get another week just for fun, but became furious when I saw this thread advertising 85% win rate. I am not the only user with problems with it and I'm sure more users will come forward saying the same things I am saying in which the picks are not 85% win rate.

I'd love to take you up on your offer! You're actually the second user to offer it to me (The last user was a non-paying member) and when I tried to take him up on it he dissappeared (Check the last page). But before addressing this,

Please address every single point from my post:

You claimed that we deleted and reposted the thread in order to eliminate negative reviews, a blatant lie and a serious accusation. What are your thoughts on this? Are you going to redact this?

You claimed that we are omitting games from the performance spreadsheets. Please identify omitted games and/or falsified wins, and I will video share with you details from JoKeR's trial periods showing his tips as they came in prior to the games. I literally offered to do a video call with you three times in the previous post, are you going to take me up on that?

You claimed that we require you to write a positive post in order to receive a free week, and you are parroting this fallacy again in this post. Did you not see my request above to screenshot and prove that? I'm starting to think you didn't even read my reply.

You claimed that other members have posted about this exact misguided claim that you're writing about when not a single paying member besides yourself has written a negative review.

Now, onto your post:

If you are willing to address the blatantly false, salestrashing, slanderous accusations in your original post, I will absolutely take you up on your offer. That being said:

I'm sure that it has fallen below 85% since launch, but far above 70%, and the win rate is measured over a period of [b]several months (As it is in professional fund management services across everywhere) and, as I offered three times in my last post, am willing to do a video call with you to prove that every single game in our performance spreadsheet was actually bet on and that every tip was recorded. I have substantial proof that the trial period performance spreadsheet is genuine, and I offered several times to do a video call with you about this. Before we do anything, I want you to accept this recorded video call.

The irony here is that you are the second user to offer this bet to me and this is the second time I've offered to take it up. Look at the page before this, I took him up on his offer before he disappeared entirely.

So, for the fourth time, are you going to take me up on this video call, are you going to address the slanderous claims that I brought to your attention in my last post, or no?

If you're not willing to read my entire post and take this seriously, I'm not willing to speak with you further. You've made serious accusations, and none of them will stand. This is why your reply ignored every single request for proof I asked for.

On the other hand, if you're willing to address everything I've brought to your attention about your ridiculous claims, take me up on my fourth offer of a video call to settle all of your misconceptions, provide concrete proof that we have deleted threads, offered you a free week for a positive review, omitted games from the performance spreadsheet, closed the thread in order to block negative reviews, been unprofitable (Statistically impossible, and I have the records to back this up if you'd only take me up on my offer to prove it to you, then I am 100% willing to take that bet.

Once more, for the fifth time, only reply when you are ready to address every single point of my post rather than changing the subject. If you're willing to do that, then it's game time!

ljvg2 - March 20, 2021, 4:20 am

85%.... just stop claiming it when you have two analysts who are losing games. The actual win rate is closer to 60-70% if that. You can't cherry pick the tips that you want to include when your clients are losing money

It's gambling plain and simple you can't win them all, just don't claim 85% when it's clearly not. Even if you claim "it's really 85% if you follow the recommended bets, oh and we just started saying which bets are actually recommended, also only one of our analysts are recommended so we don't count those either."

Also I decided to just donate the money to st Jude's anyways without worrying about our agreement, felt bad for even mentioning it or having an option to not donate it.

Here is a screenshot from your testimonials. Just a fraction of complaints I hear about the group. People will complain less if you just have more realistic marketing.

I'm seeing some negative feedback here on Golden Complex 's thread. As not only a user of this group for close to 2 months now but as a paid member and a longtime HF member, allow me to chime in.

I've sold products on HF before and there are crappy customers that come and go from time to time, and without sticking my nose where it doesn't belong, it's clear as day that some people who've bought this are just crappy customers. Those customers that you can never satisfy, they never see the bigger picture and they quickly go to posting negative feedback on your sales thread.

For example the other night there was one person who had been in the server for less than a few days and just happened to have seen two losses in a row, I can tell you since I've been in the group since late January, this is rare that 2 losses happen in a row and coincidentally, it happened to be that there were a few people new to the group around this time, so they collectively could think of this group as not worth it. They've yet to see it through though and their opinions will surely change.

Joker especially, is very accurate in his picks, he clearly has been doing this a long time as he has said and when he's off with his predictions it's always always always very very close and often it's a fluke call or non call that affects the win or loss.

In a game from a few days ago, there was one more corner than he had predicted and some sites were even saying that there wasn't that extra corner, that was the difference maker between that parlay winning or not.

TLDR here is there are shitty customers all over Hackforums, take feedback from someone who's been in this group for a minute over someone who just joined, period.

Additionally, are you a multi accounter, a group of friends working together to salestrash, or is this just a strange coincidence:

Regarding your post,

Absolutely. You're basing your results off of one week when we have six months of success documented.

The other user is counting non-recommended tips in his calculations. We are explicitly clear that only the recommended tips are official signals, and others should be taken at your own risk. The sole purpose of the non-recommended tips is for those who want to bet extra money and are willing to accept a lower win rate. On each tipping day, we post the recommended tips as well as several non-official signals for the group mentioned above.

(Mar 20, 2021 11:12 AM)ljvg2 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Question. Are you saying that you agree with the claim of over 85% win rate?

Our long term win rate on recommended signals since the beginning of the trial period to now is over 80%. Perhaps not 85, but the statistical reassessment tomorrow will reveal the updated win rate when it's conducted and those values will be edited onto the thread. I can't edit the graphics every time the win rate differs by a couple percentage points.

Every two months, we do a statistical reassessment and edit the values on the thread accordingly. At the time of launching this thread, the documented tips had an 85% win rate, and thus the thread reflects that.

Win rate is meant to be measured over the long-term because it reflects long-term performance rather than periodic performance. We've had several weeks with a 100% win rate and several weeks with a 60% win rate, 90% win rate, 65% win rate, and so forth, but what's important is the long-term performance of a group, correct?

To my understanding, you're basing your post off of being in the group for one week (EDIT: Nevermind, I realized that you're the user from last week who isn't a buyer). The user above is basing his post off of being in the group for two months. The user above and I had no relationship prior to him requesting his vouch copy for this service and then purchasing his membership once his 14-day vouch period expired.

Before replying, kindly review the entire post and address it in your reply. Commonly, people clearly are not reading the entire post and end up replying with questions which are answered in the post they are quoting...

[Bold]the trial period to now is over 80%. Perhaps not 85[/bold]

So now it's not 85%?

That's all I really care about.

Here's what sucks about "a lower win rate the past month".

You say you recalculate every 2 months, however you just started saying which tips recommended in the last month.

Before that it was multiple amounts of tips per tip day and apparently you were cherry picking the ones that were "recommended" only. But, as a user during this period there was no distinction. How do you determine internally what you were going to put on the spreadsheet, because it wasn't every "tip" joker was giving.

You can make all the excuses and "sales trashing" bs all you want, but your user base is down to maybe 35ish from what it was due to the losses and lies and user suppression. You made it clear to everyone in discord not to post on thread about losses.

My main issue is that you are claiming 85% this made me furious, beyond belief. It's blatant lies and deception, it's not possible and now with this reassessment and the fact you are forced to at least show which ones are recommended upon receiving the tips and not just saying, oh the one that won was recommended.

The service isn't bad even if it's only 59-71% still makes for a great service. But the user suppression and obvious deceptive practices piss me off.

As far as the donation goes I already donated it, wasn't fair to have a possible out, and with last week's wins I'm up a fair bit.

If we look long term since the trial period began, it is 85%. If we look over the last two months, it is around 80%. The statistics posted on the thread are based on two-month intervals as explained prior. When the thread was posted, the win rate of the previous two months was 84.9%. I am doing the reassessment soon, as explained in my previous posts.

"Before that it was multiple amounts of tips per tip day and apparently you were cherry picking the ones that were "recommended" only"

1) You weren't in the group for that. You joined on 2/16, after the miscommunication issue was resolved. I can post the payment receipts if you'd like, with any personal information blocked of course..

2) False. The recommended signals were differentiated from the extra ones. The issue was that we didn't elaborate on the system properly. For this, we gave extended memberships to all users who were around for it and closed sales until we wrote out a document explaining the system in its entirety.

3) It's impossible to "cherrypick" the recommended signals because the signals were made and labeled "recommended" BEFORE the actual games.

I don't think you're being malicious. As I wrote previously, I think you're simply misguided. There is no suppression or deceptive practices.

No NBA, just soccer and eSports (Two different analysts).

Our soccer analyst could produce NBA picks, but our policy is for each analyst to stick with the sport they are best with in order to operate by our "Quality over Quantity" model.

You can expect 7 - 14 tips per week. The extra picks come along with the recommended tips, so there are rarely if ever days where only non-recommended tips are posted. Also, only one analyst is following that system. Our eSports analyst recommends all of his posted tips.

I just started this month with Apex. After two weeks of betting along with them, it really feels like winning is pretty easy. Odds are perfect and the match are explained one by one, which I find very interesting and unique comparing to other sports betting services I tried. Also, I find very useful the alert a couple hours before the bet and I really really appreciate that. Bankroll management is perfect for low and high bankrolls, and the profits again, are awesome, and definitely more than other likewise services.

I would like also to thank Shalom for being such a nice individual and be that patient.

Thanks guys!
