Thread: Is Reality Real? The Simulation Argument

Zero - January 29, 2021, 11:03 am

I love the ideas and presentations of the videos on this channel.

This one is a really interesting theory. What do you think?

This is a conversation I love to have with people, usually durring and/or after a psychedelic experience/trip. When im not at work we should have a conversation on this topic that way i have more time to actually discuss it.

Forsure we will!

You can also share what you have on your mind here and might start conversations with others too!

Will definitely do. This is one hell of a topic that I'm interested in ?

I've heard about the 100 person surrounding theory. Have you?

If you are interested in some CIA documents that are declassified, check out a thread I wrote last year.

I do believe we live in some kind of simulation or reality that is manipulatable if done right and according to the laws or rules.

Koyote - January 29, 2021, 1:01 pm

I do think it's a really interesting and valid concept and hypothesis, but it troubles me that just like any religion it can explain almost anything that causes confusion with a blanket of "we just don't understand it yet" or "it's part of the plan". Like you can question the simulation theory with "why do I feel if it's not real" and answer it with "because it's a part of the simulation" and that can answer most things in a generalising way. I don't know, maybe I oversimplify it in my mind, but it's one of those things that always bothers me about it. I mean, I still enjoy debating it but it's an unwinnable argument in my mind.

I've watched this exact documentary like a week ago with my brother. lol

I hope all of you guys approach this topic with a healthy mind because last person I knew who talked about "the simulation hypothesis" killed themselves. For me personally it's a very interesting topic, but I don't really try to dig deeper into this subject cuz in the end it's only questions without clear answers.

YES! I have always said this is what's happening to us. The whole space thing is just a prime example of how we would be in a sim. WHY are there "zero" planets with other humans/beings around us?

MarvinMalware - January 29, 2021, 1:53 pm

This is a very interesting topic and I love discussing it. Definitely a cool video, it brings up several good points.

Personally I don't believe we're currently in one but it may just be a false sense of hope so I don't overthink it lmao.

However, possibilities are endless when it comes to technology.

A question I think about quite a lot. Have lots of theories that I made up in my head. Would love to have answers.

Not gonna lie that killing myself crossed my mind when thinking about this.

But then again my mental health is at the lowest it can be...

Mhm not sure we can say there are zero planets. We barely know anything about other planets, not even talking about other galaxies.

I'm sorry to hear about your friend.

I posted a reply to a thread on here yesterday regarding this - it's my view on the simulation theory, and it just makes sense. Some people can't handle it and I can understand why. We don't like not being able to comprehend the unknown.

Imagine if multiple civilizations inside a simulation created their own simulations and so on, if one day it just tripped the power source. Elon thinks we are. He said if he could ask a super smart AI one question, he would ask it what's outside the simulation.

Nate - January 31, 2021, 11:46 pm

If we are living in a simulation my life fucking rockss

MaDTiA - February 1, 2021, 8:12 am i was in coma,died and got taken back. I think a lot about that argument and eventually i have to admit even if reality is not real we do not have any tool for discover or exploit the simulation. We may trust about pain for understand what is not real but is not a 100% accurate method. For my personal experience i have no clear memory about the other side but i came back punching like a rocky like i was in a real fist fight. So probably there is something but we are not allowed to know what, for what i personally think the earth is the real purgatory, you born , grow , suffer , if you are lucky you can find a soulmate for share the sufference and after...you die.

Maybe is some kind of loop/queue for teach some kind of lesson or it may even be the biggest universal troll ever made . But at least to me if is a sim, the pain is very well coded ^^

When I took shrooms I thought that the mushroom was like a letter from my alien pen pal that allowed then to experience me and mr to experience them. I don't tell a lot of ppl irl about the experience bc I seem like a schizo but I also felt at the peak as If I was being watched and experimented on throughout my life by aliens that were dimensionally different and/or significantly larger than me in a way. This was when I took 4-5g.

When people say earth is a simulation it can be seen easily as we are treated like robots in a simulation. we act simulated and fake
