

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Best start to learning crypto charts?

Spotlight - January 31, 2021, 8:48 pm

I'm gonna be honest, I already know a bunch of these paid courses are rip offs and waste of money. If there is one thats good out there, no hate towards. I just want your personal opinion on what is the best way to start learning? Of course youtube videos are on my list but anyone have any suggestions on youtubers?

Want to be able to read charts and have a general idea on when a coin could pop or possibly crash and everything about the charts.

HERMES - January 31, 2021, 8:54 pm

It's all on research brother. You have to find these companies before they get out to the media.

Once they are out to the media, they are already blown up and it's usually too late to hit those insanneeee returns.

I will say TikTok is great and noob friendly for beginners :)

codeventures - February 1, 2021, 5:08 am

(Jan 31, 2021 09:54 PM)HERMES Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It's all on research brother. You have to find these companies before they get out to the media.

Once they are out to the media, they are already blown up and it's usually too late to hit those insanneeee returns.

I will say TikTok is great and noob friendly for beginners :)

How can TikTok help you find an early gold coin?

I never used TikTok, but maybe monitoring bitcointalk is a method for example?