Thread: BNB and Binance Smart Chain

HACKED - February 9, 2021, 7:24 am

BNB has been doing really well. And that is reasonable.

With BSC we can use again DEFI for small trades. Did some transactions and was really impressed with both low fees and quick transactions.

Lots of projects are popping. Pancake hit almost half a billion MARKET CAP.

IMO it is a matter of time we see BNB in top 5.

The real question is, can it reach ETH's market cap in the future?

IMO it is reasonable to see it hitting half of ETH's MARKET CAP in a year.

Opening this thread for discussion around BNB and BSC.

BSC is seeing a lot of activity due to ETH network fees. BNB is doing really well, wish I had accumulated more. Have been using $CAKE as well, which is the Uniswap clone on the BSC chain.

haha.Also like Ace's said, use pancakeswap for transactions its basically BSC network for swapping coins fee are pretty cheap and instant confirmation.

Unlike btc maximalists. I personally support innovation and a collaborative ecosystem.

HACKED - February 9, 2021, 11:10 am

Considering the power of Binance in crypto I feel 2021 is gonna be BNB's year. Essentially, while Dapps are getting more and more popular Binance is influencing them through its exchange and CMC.

This can make BSC vastly used.

Considering also that ETH fees will remain high for many more months and maybe the whole year, BSC is gonna get much more popular.

That's so true. I always though DEFI is shit due to the high fees.I couldn't find its usefulness.

BSC is changing that right now. I CAKE competing with SUSHI in market cap soon. Already competing in volume.

As for the BSC competitors, most projects are too new and have limited DAPPs as of now.

There are a few issues with the BSC. The main one being that it's not really "De"fi. It's centralised and is referred to as "Ce"Defi. I understand the 21 validator nodes run by Binance?

CZ was intending to make a centralised and decentralised connection to make things more easy for users during a transition period from CeFi to DeFi. I think this is just Binance trying to capitalise on an opportunity.

What this means is that the BSC's functionality is effectively how Ethereum should be operating and I love it for that reason but it will never EVER be decentralised and I don't think it's even intended to be from the outset.

Here's a really good explanation on what in the fugg is happening - https://medium.com/@Austerity_Sucks/notes-on-cedefi-vs-defi-8347f8918345

I urge everyone to read it to get a basic understanding of this "CeDefi" bullshit.

I agree that the functionality, mainly non existent fees, has huge potential in the "current" market environment where everyone is chasing yields and "Defi" and want to be a part of an ever growing space.

Another point I'd highlight is that BNB has HUGE potential given the current barriers of entry to using the CeDefi on BSC. The Binance Chain wallet is dogshit and simply not use-able at all. Setting up MetaMask for BSC support takes a while. It's not quite user friendly yet but look at the amount of growth even with those constraints. It's wild.

I think BNB does have it's drawbacks as Binance holds a lot of the supply (unless this has changed since the last time I looked it up) and their employees are paid in BNB. It doesn't seem like any dumping is going on, but the mere fact that they could dump it into the market means something.

Just my take on the BSC. Pros and cons but definitely an opportunity you can capitalise on. Not sure if healthy for the space at all though.

Your thoughts are correct and you are right about BSC being partially decentralized.

That's not an issue when considering it as an investment though.

Bear in mind XRP. It is popular for being a centralized crypto but it is still one of the biggest projects.

IMO, it is a far better investment than XRP and maybe most of the centralized cryptos though.

Binance has been the biggest exchange for much time. It is indeed established in the crypto world.

Additionally, BNB has real utility. Both as part of BSC as well as the utility token of the exchange.

As for its past, Binance has not been subjected to any shady actions compared to other projects.

Mentioning this because I have no idea of the amount of BNB that it holds. This makes me believe that it won't suddenly dump large amounts of BNB in the future though.

Don't forget about CMC BTW. It is easy to push projects through it.

As I see it, promotion plays a major role in the success of project.

IMO it is difficult for ADA to become an ETH competitor soon. It's platform is not even released yet. Regarding DOT it seems that it still needs some more time. BSC has already many projects and more are popping everyday making it more and more used.

Transactions are fast and cheap and will remain relatively cheap even with much activity. That's of importnace.

It's also the only platform having significant activity after ETH and more projects are popping constantly.

That's what I believe makes BNB a nice investment.

I agree, many chains can run projects like BSC and may be better than it but in practice they do not evolve.

Or they make take much time to do so. I feel that BSC has surpassed that issue and can become big. This doesn't refer just to the market CAP but also to the overall utility of the chain.

HACKED - February 19, 2021, 10:28 am

Seeing lots of people now telling BSC projects are a bubble etc..

They may be, I won't disagree but why don't you mention the ETH ones?

PancakeSwap is now the 1st DEX in volume and has a market CAP similar to that of SushiSwap.

When I think of this I feel that it's still really underrated.

Also many don't recognise that indeed BSC has solved the problem of expensive transactions.

I've made around 20 transactions and I've paid around $5. If those were on Ethereum I would have paid like $1000.

Anyway, everything in the market is pumping. If being honest, someone has to admit that the BNB pump is one of the few fueled by actual growth.

BTW, huge difference in volume of CAKE compared to the other DEXs. It will continue to be like that.

Seeing all these changes it is really difficult to decide whether to keep or sell both BNB and CAKE. On the one hand both are reasonably priced if the market sentiment is considered. Also they will continue being utilized. On the other hand the gains are really satisfying...

it's centralized.

it all relies on binance

everything is inflated. I'm sure that that a big % of all transactions rn are just there to inflate the volume. they can afford that because of the low fees. they're rich. they wanna make this look like the next big thing. how is this #3 on coinmarketcap? it doesn't deserve it's spot in my opinion cz is acting tough on twitter and now the website is having problems.

investing $0 in this not gonna deny that there was lots of money to be made getting in early but it is too late now. it WONT flip/replace ethereum.

Nice gains.

I believe that BNB is not the best thing to short right now though.

Despite its rapid and enormous rise, it could continue growing.

BSC is solving a problem and its price reflects that.

Cant wait for Eth 2.0, bnb will surely dump. It works well but its centralized shit. The whole point of crypto is to get away from centralization.

Why are you saying that? Are there any news?

I am also really bullish but can't actually predict what is happening in the next month.

Im really bullish on the nice projects built on BSC like Slave Finance and Cotton Farmer

I can see that both BNB and CAKE are really low compared to ETH and UNI/SUSHI respectively.

If you hold ETH or UNI(or especially SUSHI) considering selling some and buying some BNB or CAKE.

No reason to explain a lot, just check the numbers.

HACKED - March 3, 2021, 1:49 am

Curious to see what others think of this. Pancakeswap has nice features and numbers and it's still below SUSHI in Market Cap.

It's strange it's not above it yet. When do you think it is gonna catch up?

BNB is now stable at the 3rd position and over $400.

CAKE has surpassed SUSHI and it's over $20.

CAKE is maybe the first DEX in terms of volume BTW.

And BSC keeps growing. CAKE should gain more soon.

I sold all cakes at 19.4$ haha, i am just not sure how they will keep that price with that kinda system.Probably they cant.On the other hand BNB .. just wow.

Polkadot and Cardano are the blockchains that will surpass BNB/BSC long-term because of partnerships and real innovation. Tempting to put money in BNB and see what how it performs in BSC, but CeDeFi is a joke. ?

You know that BSC is a 100% centralized Ethereum clone?

Like they actually took the whole Ethereum Codebase, removed PoW and added pseudo PoS with a few trusted entities and then cloned a few Eth Dapps (e.g. Uniswap) as well.

There's no need to research BSC. It's centralized Ethereum.

And once the L2s come and get adoption, BSC will be useless. But it'll probably take a few months until people realize this, maybe not even this bullrun.

Centralization is an issue.

Centralization made BSC successful though.

Centralized projects succeed more easily than decentralized ones.

If Binance made BSC decentralized it could become the biggest smart contract platform.

I am sure CZ has thought of that.

I am not sure if making BSC decentralized is possible though.

CZ claims he doesn't control BSC rather he's just a "community member". I guess he realizes he drew a bright red target on his back. I wouldn't be surprised if SEC targets BNB for unregistered ICO like XRP and CFTC nabs CZ as they did with Arthur Hayes.

CZ is not your buddy nor should you rely on him.

I think decentralization is going to be good once the space becomes more developed. But at this point I don't think it matters. Funds are SAFU.

I am huge fan of BSC-goldmine- but never trust to CZ, his comments are conflicting on almost everything he is basically just "moonboy" just spamming his twitter with positivity of nonsense and no knowledge. And they are ready to run every minute that's why they move malta years ago.

But BSC profits are too profitable to ignore lol

Impossible as what makes BSC fast is the centralization itself. In addition, nobody but Binance and friends are gonna run nodes for BSC. One of the weaknesses of ETH is the node size.

I run a ETH full node and syncing is quite slow. With good hardware it takes around 16h to sync a full node. (600+ something GB). Archive nodes are even worse, they are more than 6TB and syncing takes DAYS weeks.

Considering BSC has an even lower confirmation time, (and is a literal copy paste of ETH) i expect BSC nodes are gonna be un-runnable in a 2-3 years. If anything, BSC will just become more centralized. Maybe a similar faith than egold ?

With BSC we can use again DEFI for small trades. Did some transactions and was really impressed with both low fees and quick transactions.

Lots of projects are popping. Pancake hit almost half a billion MARKET CAP.

IMO it is a matter of time we see BNB in top 5.

The real question is, can it reach ETH's market cap in the future?

IMO it is reasonable to see it hitting half of ETH's MARKET CAP in a year.

BNB and CAKE holding really strong despite the drop.

CAKE is steadily the first DEX in volume with constant updates and improvements.

I still believe CAKE deserves a better market CAP. Not sure if the recent market will help it achieve it soon though.
