I wonder how much more it can go up within this week, unfortunately i believe it will have a dip, people will start selling now.

Wicked 15 min candle lmao

SIM-353284 - February 16, 2021, 4:45 am

I've been watching it all night at 49k

Good luck fellas

Zamper - February 16, 2021, 4:45 am

Touched 50k, ok.

Can we have the dip please? It will not go further more than this, all speculation , no news about BTC or anything that makes the price go this high. Tesla bought the bitcoin at 35k-38k ranges, all this hype makes no sense.

Mastcard are also getting involved which is wild, and crypto will be on every corner of your high streets some time in the near future.

HOMODIN - February 16, 2021, 4:58 am

I sure as hell hope that it'll dip soon, got some more cash to "convert" to btc again. I wonder how high it'll be by the end of the year :D

nelz - February 16, 2021, 4:59 am

Absolutely crazy. Hopefully it doesn't dip till like next week haha

No news? Are you sure?

Quote:NYC mayor wants to make the city a hub for Bitcoin and other cryptocurrencies.
Mastercard to offer cryptocurrency payments on its network this year.
Canadian Bitcoin ETF passed.
Miami city passed a resolution that allows municipal employees to get paid in Bitcoin.
Amazon building digital currency team for "new payment product".
Banking giant "BNY Mellon" reveals plans for Bitcoin and crypto - 'Digital assets are the future'.
BitPay adds Apple Pay support.
Tesla buys.
etc
etc

All in one month.

Plus "Central Bank of Kenya to Reportedly Use Bitcoin as Reserve Currency "
Oh and VISA's CEO said they plan to accept crypto on their network too.

How much more news do you need? And that's just as far as I know, there are definitely more I don't know, and there are definitely things happening behind the scenes that very few people know. I'm almost 100% positive plenty of big tech companies are accumulating at this very moment.

You are 100% sure that big tech companies are accumulating at this price? they bought earlier and they will dump the market anytime soon, BTC is not mainstream yet , has a lot of difficulties like the fees,slow transactions, etc. All the notices you gave me it's a perfect example of what happened on 2017, everybody goes FOMO, they buy and pump more the price until a massive correction.

Quote me in the next -20% correction, this market is being manipulated.

I don't mind it going up or down.

I'm sure it's gonna rocket up to unexpected values once the max market cap has been reached.

Yes in fact I am. Fees don't matter to institutions. To them Bitcoin is a hedge against fiat inflation. What's the point holding dollar if it loses 20% of its value in a year? Try moving 1 billion in dollars across continents and see how much it'll cost you. I don't know, but I'm pretty sure you'd wish it cost $30. Tesla went up x8 last year, how much did they dump? You really think Tesla and others would buy just to dump for 100% gains?

20% wow. ? You're not seeing a bigger picture. 20% matters only if you are a get rich quick type and don't realize the value in Bitcoin. I bought in at 2.5k, 3k, and 6k, and am not planning to sell anytime soon. Bitcoin's value is far greater than the current price. Corrections are healthy btw, at this point, even a 50% correction wouldn't surprise me.

Anyway, you said there are no news, I provided you with news, your response is "it's manipulation! it's 2017!", so whatever, pointless to argue those #facts.

01001 - February 16, 2021, 5:43 am

I sold my BTC yesterday at $49,100 while I knew it would hit $50k. Nevertheless, it will go down since people will sell in FOMO or by hearing speculations. The dip will take place, and then I'll start investing again. :)

This is fake news, please do not spread bs like this.

It is funny how people still believe this after this fake news has been published so many times, it was also 'news' in august 2020.?

Carrot - February 16, 2021, 10:02 am

I'm really surprised at this ngl

I was expecting it to crash too around 18k on chinese new year.

maybe the new low is 40k?

I hope that 40k will be the new low ? but we might see that soon

Creativo - February 16, 2021, 11:30 am

Now we go for 100K this year no doubt

Detestable your way of looking for ways to get my attention , you think a massive correction is not coming? , people buying crypto without knowing what it even is.

While the correction is definitely coming, I don't think it's soon. I believe BTC wil become stable and hold around 50K and alts will start receiving more funding. Then an overall correction during the halving.
