Thread: McDonalds Crispy Chicken Sandwich

Prepper - March 1, 2021, 9:23 am

So as most probably already know McDonalds released a new chicken sandwich they call it the Crispy Chicken Sandwich. I guess supposedly it competes with Chick-fil-a and Popeyes but I cannot say because I have not had Chick-Fil-A and nor have I had Popeyes chicken sandwiches before

Who has tried it so far and what is your thoughts?

I order a regular crispy chicken sandwich but the ended up giving me spicy and I didn't realize until I was eating it but I ended up eating it fully any way.

My thoughts on it is it is no good.

1. The chicken had too much fat and still had tendons in it they didn't bother removing.
2. The flavor was just odd it had a weird chemically taste and also kind of a soapy taste in my opinion.
3. I don't know what the hell they did to the bun but even the bun had an odd taste.

All I can say is better to just go for a McChicken.

If this is supposed to compete with Chick-fil-a and Popeyes and it tastes similar then that is a damn shame considering people literally had throats cut at Popeyes over chicken sandwiches.

Here we only have normal nuggets, also same for fries, just normal....and very low variety of burger menu....

I have to go to Burger King cuz it has way more stuff dam dude that sucks. I honestly just wouldn't even go to fast food if those were the only choices.

better to go to some other chain or even better local places

I love the Impossible whopper at burger king but that is about it from Burger King that I buy.

Hell best thing to do for chicken nuggets. dunk them in Louisiana hot sauce.

It really depends on the country you're from, also if you're from the US, it really depends on the specific branch, I've had tons of Subways, McDonalds, Inn N Outs and some were super good while others in specific locations were shit and tasted awful ...

I myself prefer Inn N Out over McDonalds, just my opinion ;)

As for chicken, I don't really eat chicken lol I don't like the taste, I prefer meat, steaks, hamburgers n such

I thought the sauce was pretty spicy, every time they release new burgers an shit in the UK they usually end up being pretty bad.

That is the thing when I was eating it there was a slight hint of heat I was like oh they probably put black pepper in the breading of the chicken. But then a few more bites the heat started increasing and it just got to a point where the heat overwhelmed the flavor which is probably a good thing in this case because of the reasons i stated above.

Some people like spicy food just for the burn but me i like flavor which is why i love Louisiana hot sauce it has just the right heat without overwhelming the flavor.

I am actually feeling sick now, I don't know if it is the result of that sandwich or not.

Agreed, love those damn spicy nuggets with fries.

severos - March 1, 2021, 4:44 pm

I guess they don't have that yet in Japan... but honestly I think Mc is overrated (at least in here), the volume isn't worth the price and the taste is very normal, so I only order Mc as a social event (when out with friends who wants Mc).

On the other hand, Burger King has better taste (and higher price) so only order occasionally, last night I had that 500g "spicy" limited time burger (Strong Magma) which was... over hyped, it's not that spicy, just enough spice to make you taste less of everything without being a challenge.

jecoylecoy - March 1, 2021, 5:02 pm

I want to try it. Maybe after pandemic when I can easily go to the city. :)

Tjm - March 1, 2021, 6:12 pm

Rarely go. Every Mcdonalds where I live serves barely warm food. We've had a new Chick-fil-a in town but I haven't tried it yet, I've never eaten at one before, am I missing out?

I might check this McDonalds Crispy Chicken Sandwich today before going home...this will be a great take out meal for my 2 kids :D

Proxily - March 1, 2021, 9:52 pm

It's alright, nothing compared to the spicy chicken nuggets though xD wiz - March 2, 2021, 11:12 am

It feels like every single company is getting in on these chicken sandwiches.

Bob White - March 2, 2021, 11:13 am

We got one yesterday, terrible, no condiments on it, soggy, in a tin foil bag.

Prepper - March 2, 2021, 2:14 pm

Just got another today this time they made the order correct and didnt give me a spicy one.

Much more edible but still not great.

Supposedly the KFC one is very good, I will try it next time.

I stopped eating fast food completely a few months ago.

I exclusively pack my own food and cook my own food. Fast food is super un-healthy for you.

Yeah people at work were like wtf you haven't gone yet. I'll have to get it soon. Lived in GA for awhile and Popeyes became my favorite fast food, none even close to where I live now..?

I don't eat fast food often.

My diet is changing after in the next few days anyway to mostly chicken, rice and vegetables, already stocked up.. time to loose weight.

I know I been out of shape for years and overweight..... but today i really felt it my right lung felt like it was going to rip out of my chest.

maryous - March 2, 2021, 4:51 pm

I tried both, I actually eat chick fil a at least once a week. They have a location right next to Starbucks and I usually get in chick fil a's line and order Starbucks ahead of time for a pick up.

So back to McDonald's new crispy chicken sandwich, It doesn't come close to chick fil a's sandwich. There just isn't anything better than chick fil a's sandwich.

I pretty much tried every fast food out there so yeah.

Justin - March 2, 2021, 5:31 pm

McDonalds here in my country is not that popular, I mean it is, but the "kewl" people go for Burger King or KFC, or Subway, there are many other options we have here.

I'm not sure how McDonalds is seen in the US or other places but here, it is kinda left behind.

I personally feel like I have a wider variety of choice in KFC / Burger King / Subway compared to what McD offers in my country, at least.

I wouldn't follow social media hyped dietary habits.

Eat what you want by your own hands but limit it to portions. Only eat what you can burn off. You'll stick to a eating regiment really fast but then jump to fast food for that quick meal and tasty alternative. It's what I dealt with for a long time. Constantly switch up what you eat everyday, even if its yogurt, change the flavour, texture and look. The more you can fool your brain into a habit the faster you can kick unhealthy eating.

Is it a crispy chicken sandwich like wendy's chicken sandwich meal, or more so like a mcchicken?
