Thread: Hoge the Defi doge?

Itachi Uchiha - March 6, 2021, 11:21 am

HOGES is a deflationary currency. There will never be more HOGES in circulation than there is now. Every time a transaction takes place with HOGES, 1% of that transaction is removed or "burned" from the total supply. This increases the scarcity of every HOGES in circulation. Additionally, another 1% is distributed among every HOGES holder. What this means is that every time HOGES is used, the value of the remaining HOGES in circulation is increased by simultaneously decreasing the supply (deflation), while also distributing HOGES to everyone using the token. As a result, every single HOGES holder has an incentive to spread the use of HOGES as much as possible. As more transactions take place in the network, the individual net-worth of all who own a piece of the network increases as well.

I own about 11M-13M Hoge and increasing hourly.

Because it's a simple hype ponzi that's guaranteed to implode at some point. Unless you were an early adopter chances are you're in the portion that's going to get imploded on.

Why not put your money in a real project that will still be here in a year, instead of one that you can be certain won't be?

Not everyone is in for a year or more. I have coins I will hold for a long majority of time BUT I will not ignore easy gains.

This is for people looking for easy gains. I've already double my money overnight and it's holding

So it's doubled in the last day and now you're telling everyone else to buy in, so you hope you can dump tomorrow at triple your investment, got it...

Yeah sounds like its holding great and is very sustainable.

The concept isn't innovative, however it does seem they can make use of it.

Website looks well, Telegram group seems to be active and they have 4,166 holders. I see NFT getting introduced in some form.

I can't see their circulating supply, which is a downside.

Overall, it's fun , they are using the hype and I'll throw some funds to play with.

Thank you for sharing this one. ?

Everyone takes a risk, same risk I'm taking. Get profits and get out or hold and possibly lose it all.

A lot of alt coins are gambling, especially newer ico coins. Take a risk and make it or don't.

I completely agree with you. However, what is the purpose in encouraging other people to blindly gamble their money? This thread is basically the same as telling someone to go to a casino just for the hell of it.

I wish Omniscient would add a rule to this section to prevent unsubstantiated investment calls.

Nothing against you OP, I just would hate to see people lose their money due to their negligence, not yours.

So you're advertising a ponzi coin and say it's ok because

Not realizing that you're already the dumber one to the guy who sold the coins to you..

Where in my op did I encourage people to spend money? Not only did I NOT encourage others to spend a dime, I never bought money up at all. I simply posted the information listed on the site AND the site.

My title also states this as a Defi Doge coin(a joke coin). I never posted my entry price, I never posted gains, I posted no information other than the description and site information.

The other members like yourself took this information and ran as far as possible making assumption about my post when this a clear cut do it yourself post.

All good, I left the thread mostly bare bones because I'd prefer everyone due diligence and research on personal time.

I would never advise something I'm not invested in to anyone ever.

I believe like doge this specific coin has a future due to the system it was built on and the governance that is planned to be implemented. Plus $100 for 2M coins, if it blows up who knows the value.

I also hold doge for the meme so ???

Honestly this wasn't a bad thread , not sure of why all of the hate.

The token is crap, yes

But it definitely can blow up & even if it gets on the top 250 that's huge gains. People like stupid shit , and the community it has is pretty cool.

OP if I were you I would have stated it was an extremely risky investment and it should only be taken with fun $. Nothing worth losing. I wouldn't be surprised to see it go to 0, and wouldn't be surprised to see it in the top 100 in long term. It's crypto, anything can happen & the internet is powerful. Doge is a perfect example

XMR - March 8, 2021, 4:59 pm

If 1% of every transaction is burned but then 1% is also distributed to everyone else holding, then unless that's 2% being taken off of every transaction, that doesn't sound very deflationary to me. In either case, it just sounds like glorified staking to me. You get 1% of each transaction just for sitting there on your ass or what? That doesn't sound very sustainable.

If there's no supply of coins being generated, people are inevitably going to start selling off as the current value increases. Eventually it will reach critical mass; those holding massive amounts will start taking profit en masse, selling off and creating a snowball effect dumping it into the toilet. It's only a question of when.

Anyone investing in this is taking an incredible risk. That bubble could burst at any moment.

I think this is a good bet on top meme coins 2021.

Passed ATH today and currently climbing. Consolidated really well for a day or two. Has decent volume for a token that's not listed on any big exchanges. Constant updates from the dev team, new listing this week(possible) and a future listing in talks possibly kucoin.

I've seen a lot of meme coins come and go but this one is better than the rest.

Transferring coins to Whitebit seems the cheapest option as this is not done on-chain so you don't have to pay gas fees.

Transfer them to Metamask or a similar wallet after exchanging so you can benefit from the 1% distribution.

Alright thanks. I'm new to using smaller exchanges; I downloaded metamask and it seems I can just swap using just the extension itself since it finds the best price from uniswap & other exchanges that hoge is listed on, is that correct?

That's correct, but it only uses decentralized exchanges (1inch, Uniswap, etc.) which use smart contracts to exchange coins, which means that you are going to pay a huge amount of gas fees to complete a transaction. It's way cheaper to exchange on Whitebit and transfer the HOGE to your Metamask.
