Hello To Everybody,

I am helping all users setup there RAT and have it fully functional.

I will help test your stub to validate a connection is being made. I will fix any possible problems causing your RAT not to connect. I will help chose the best and most affordable crypter for your budget. I will try to fix any other problems that you might be experiencing while Ratting, For Example: Port-Forwarding, or Crypting.

I have years of experience and am willing to help any new users whom require it, please message me through private messages or start a conversation.

Are you offering this as a free or paid service? Would be good for you to state that on this thread.

Asking because you clearly haven't bothered to hide the fact that you are just copying someone else's thread, in fact you ripped the text from it too and only re-worded half of it:

Its just a little concerning if you are trying to earn from this is all. If free, I'm not really bothered.

If it is a paid service OP, you'll need to take this thread to marketplace.
More focused on providing the quality support than putting my focus into organizing a thread, I appreciate your concern for newer members and always advise everyone to use precautions online.

Best of luck to you.

Its just a little concerning if you are trying to earn from this is all. If free, I'm not really bothered. I am offering this service for free but if members want to donate or spend to get crypters etc then they would be spending money towards setting it up but I am here helping new users out of my spare time. Any longer / in depth support would have to be discussed but for the mean time this thread is for beginners that are needing help with fixing issues.

Also making threads was never a strong point so hope you can look past this fact lol.

Sounds absolutely fine to me, was just a concern because its very common for new accounts / accounts with minimal activity to copy a thread or at least the layout/text and then just scam people because they have little effort in either being creative or you know... offering a real service ?

Yeah I completely understand where your coming from, I just recently got back into forums so bear with my poor posting skills haha, Do you have any recommendations to making my thread more professional? I am always open to constructive criticism so I can look into it and improve from it.

Professionalism not so much, people will read it either way. A recommendation however to get it to the newbies, put free on the thread. Or Close it and create a new one with free in the title ? but realistically if people want help they'll contact you. As long as you are approachable and try to be grammatically correct to the best of your ability, there should be no problems.

Vouch.

OP was able to help with an in-depth setup and guide me through the basics. He did charge for his services, but IMO it's worth it as I was completely new.
