I need to make a deal with one guy that is quite shady/idiotic.

I do not have a problem dealing with people like him as long as I am 100% anonymous.

My main crypto wallet is Coinbase, but I don't want to expose my BTC address.

All I need is to receive one transaction of around 800$ and to be able to pass it to BTC tumbler asap.

I need a recommendation for a site that requires a minimum of info to open a wallet and does not require ID verification.

Thanks!

It's not like he can lookup the coinbase BTC address and find you lol... But if you're really paranoid about that, get a non-custodial desktop wallet like Electrum on your computer and receive the payment. Most people still don't understand that using exchanges is NOT mandatory. If you really need to use one, and don't understand why unless you wanna do trading, just open a Binance account, KYC is only required if you wanna withdraw to bank etc. but up to 60 btc withdrew a DAY you're gucci. Binance US is retarded tho so that only works if you're non-USA.

Coinbase gives you a fresh address everyday or so, so max he can find out is that it's a coinbase address, and there are just a few BILLIONS. And again, just install a wallet? Do you realize using exchanges is not mandatory?

Hi, electrum is what you're looking for, cold storage for more security. In my point of view you should transfer your money and delete your coinbase account asap !
