Can't get posts removed, but you can get your account closed with your posts still here.

I do not want my posts to be googled. Closing my account without deleting posts will accomplish nothing

Let's be realistic here, what have you done that is going to make people want to google your posts exactly? If you're being watched by a source of authority, chances are they already have stuff on you.

Trying to avoid random people on the internet finding your contact details or something? Change them.

There is no deleting of posts here unless they violate the terms in a bad way.

We do not delete accounts/posts upon request. You can request an administrator to close your account, though your posts will remain.
