Why do stupid people talk soo much?Also why do people who are clearly dumber than you insist on giving unsolicited advise

SuperiorUser - March 15, 2021, 11:37 am

I believe there is a study from a while back showed that smart people are less likely to think they're smart while dumb people are more likely to believe they're smart. TL;DR: dumb people are too stupid to realize they don't know everything

Ignorance is Bliss, because when you're stupid you don't have to live with the realization that you're stupid. everyone else does.

I hate people who always think they know better / are better than you, get down to earth and your head out your ass, I appreciate actual criticism when is given in a proper way, but most people don't know shit.

As for stupid people talk so much, that's too true and for some reason they're the voice you hear most, like in the media and what not it's amazing when people recite wrong things even though you've researched the topic before it was ever mainstream, crypto and hacking are both great examples. You don't see me telling a doctor "no you're wrong I need this medicine" because I know better lol.

Exactly lol, people think that if they scream something loud enough it'll somehow become true... that's not how logic and common sense works, but these idiots don't care for those sort of things, because logic isn't part of their lexicon

Usually, those who are intelligent are full of doubt and questions. They know they are not the best and keep it relatively quiet.

Those with a small mind or an unintelligent brain tend to scream whatever is on their mind. As they do not (over)think everything that they want to say. Hope it makes sense!

Nate - March 15, 2021, 12:21 pm

More words they say the smarter they seem to be (In there mind)

Phase - March 15, 2021, 2:17 pm

Better to remain silent and be considered stupid than to speak and to remove all doubt.?

Regulus - March 15, 2021, 2:23 pm

Laylo - March 15, 2021, 2:30 pm

There will always be stupid people, it's a part of our species and nature. It's best to surround yourself with people who don't regurgitate shit on the daily. Stay away from social media.

The - March 15, 2021, 2:30 pm

I believe you're talking about the Dunning–Kruger effect.

Blue Sh - March 15, 2021, 2:53 pm

A friend of mine always thinks I'm giving excuses for things I say or do but in reality I'm just giving him the logic behind what I say or do.

For example two days ago I was in a group chat and we were talking about a game where we had to copy the files to a specific path/folder that's hidden, they had a file that contains the path where you simply copy and paste it in the search bar but I know the exact path without the need to look at the folder which will take me sometime to go online and login to one drive and search for the file. I told them I know where it is but they thought I'm trying to play smart and lie about but in reality I know it because I've dealt with the same thing multiple times, so I was explaining how I know this which is because I did the same thing many times and also used to always read books and watch tutorials about IT and programming.

At the end they kept saying oh yeah sure such a true story as if I'm lying but for all I know they are just dumb thinking I lie because I know a bit more than them. They think those are excuses to pretend I know more than them.

Yeah, such people are everywhere. Recently I talked with a guy who was acting all smart about making money from offline businesses and stuff. When I told him that one can make a successful online business too, his reply was: "You're telling me people make money on the internet?" I was like: "WTF? you for real?" and he replied: "Don't bullshit me" ??? Ignorant people remain ignorant.

I think it depends with some people, I guess if they can't keep their mind on one thing for long enough then they just blurt anything and everything that crosses there mind if you get me

Lyralei - March 17, 2021, 2:53 am

I envy people who can speak without thinking things through, there's just something about the concept that's stress-relieving, that said, I don't hate "stupid" people, I feel like they're important in one way or another, sometimes.

A Nobody - March 17, 2021, 7:03 am

I guess you got story time for us. I don't know why you ask but dang would love to hear your story as to what got you to ask this question. I personally think that they think they're smarter than you and it's there way of letting you know that you're dumber than them. I would like to hear your story. trust me I know what you feel and I have had people tell me what to do or what's better and sometimes I follow it just to prove to them that their advice is shit and then when I prove it to them they deny that they even gave such advice or tell me well you should have thought for yourself don't blame me. Even though they present it to me as bullet proof.

Because they created their inner persona that can't simply shut the fuck up that persona also generates new personas every day its hard for them to control those because in their bubble . They believe its smart what they are doing. They can't simply kill their own personas so easily they really need to watch some TV shows and read a lot and find new hobbies then talk. Oh they also the sum of theyr most closest 5 people around them. If they talk alot he will also talk alot. You're brain keeps recording even when you don't pay attention. It goes into subconscious mind.

I recommend the book dataclysm and how to organise you're mind in this informational era. Good luck & have fun not talking.

Smexy - June 1, 2021, 10:17 am

Stupid people are happier, so they can talk more and still feel like they aren't anoying.

I'm personally also not the brightest but I can be silent when needed to.

Lilith - June 1, 2021, 10:29 am

There's plenty of quiet stupid people too. The only reason you think stupid people talk a lot is because the more someone talks, the more people are aware of them.
