Thread: [Steam Gems \[What Do You Guys use them on? \]](#)

Money- - March 21, 2021, 7:18 am

I got a lot of steam gems , where you guys usually use them on btw?

Trade it for games on these steam bots? Level up with them? Trade them for your desired game keys on steam trade etc?

Let me know anything beneficial or how I can spend them wisely. Before I waste them off.

Great question... here to follow for answers. I have some but have no idea what's the most optimal way to use them.

Just got into racking some steam gems - I'm thinking of decking out the profile.

My bad ? I thought Steam Gems were the same thing as Steam points.

The whole Steam Points is something else I haven't figured out yet either so... no worries. ?

Usually trading cards so I can get some badges, or you can bag em up and trade them, if you have like alot alot, you could trade some for games.

edit:: not 100% sure though, it's been ages since i've dabbled on anything steam related.

I typically use them to trade for missing cards I need for a set. Also if I have a lot and someone is selling a game I like for gems I will spent them on that Aaaand after years of having a Steam account I'm just now finding out about Steam gems lol.

Steam gems were like a failed concept when trading cards/badges came out

After like 6 months they stopped promoting/using them, but kept them in the Inventory.

I'm surprised people still give them a second; it's just better to sell the card for a penny, than make the gems.

I was actually figuring out to use it on leveling up. But I only got 10 levels from the gems I got. I had like 70k lol.

I might as well throw it into unique random game keys to up my steam library huh? If not mistaken 1 unique random game key is like 200+ gems. I ended up with 280 unique games keys. But sounds like its a lot less than I expected. Was expecting I get like 500 to 600 lol.

Still looking for ideas. Anyone?

I don't get steam gems, they are just a waste. If you don't like something and gonna break it into gems, then just sell it on the marketplace. Steam Gems are pretty bad. But you could use the ones you have to just buy booster packs then buy some cards off the marketplace to get a full pack of cards that makes a badge to level up your profile.
