Thread: I'm bullish on Axie Infinity | 1,167.11% ROI since post.

Mr Kewl - April 15, 2021, 5:16 am

Axie Infinity is a blockchain-based PVP game inspired by Pokemon & Tamagotchi.

Where people battle out each other with cute little creatures called "Axies" who are digital pets with various powers.

It is one of the TOP NFT Projects in the Crypto ecosystem.

The game makes sure that around 80% of profit earned is distributed to players who grow the game, people holding the AXS governance token, read about the tokenomics here <https://axieinfinity.com/axs>.

Website: <https://axieinfinity.com/>

These guys are all about building community and giving back to the community. All the price action is majorly driven by community members of funds who are into NFTs and participating in their ecosystem by using Land or giving out scholarships to people who can't afford Axies on revenue sharing.

People in India/Philippines are playing Axie Infinity 14-16 hours a day and making a lot of money instead of doing the job as the standard of living is high and playing PUBG or Clash of Clan doesn't make you any money.

I got to interview these guys when the price of AXS the governance token was around 0.32 - 0.8 and now it's trading at $7.8~

[vatopid=157]

umm the price is 7.8 rn idk why it shows 8.9~ ^

Yo, so Axie is the only coin which is up in the dip.

Happy to answer any questions.

The "axie" creatures design are a bit low effort ngl... I do like turn-based games tho so I'll look more into it.

Zovers - April 19, 2021, 3:46 pm

From what I understand, it looks like you have to purchase three of these axie creatures using ETH just to get started. At the moment the cheapest ones are going for 0.07 ETH... that seems like way too high of a barrier for entry to me.

Am I misunderstanding something here?

Am I misunderstanding something here? No you're not, there is a cost attached to it as these Axies make you money back when you're playing the game. So these are assets you're buying, you can also breed your Axies and whatnot, so think of them as owning an actual pet, who makes your profit (even tho I don't recommend doing that irl.)

Also there are scholarship programs where people lend out their Axies to people who can't afford it and do profit share.

I don't, but I will when they move to a layer 2 solution so I can buy Axies for way cheaper and not pay gas fees.

That's why just buying tokens as of now.

That's how I feel with most of those Uniswap coins/NFTs/staking that takes place on ETH. But honestly the graphics and idea of this game captivates me. What's better than an NFT which actually has a use? Thanks for exposing me to this.

Just came back to thank you for this thread buddy. I've been buying AXS and scaling in since my first post on this thread. I've also been breeding and giving out a ton of scholarships. Let's go. :') ashish2112 - July 8, 2021, 12:16 am

I'm bullish as well and more interested to see the land Gameplay

Maybe we can see a guild buying few plots and launching a gym system as of pokemon as well
Though I haven't played the game because of high entry prize and haven't got any scholarship in last 15 days

The best price after the update that require 4 AXS to breed will be around $6-7 and AXS now is a bit overbought now

Hope I get a scholarship soon to buy my own axies before land gameplay ??

good call, did you buy a lot of pet axies ? you're so lucky if you did deng

Lilith - July 8, 2021, 8:46 am

Wow, they've certainly had quite the rally in price the past few days. I do like the general idea of a Pokemon-esque game utilizing NFTs, though I think the design of the axies are pretty lackluster. They're going to have to invest a lot more into developing unique designs and a variety of them if they want the game to last. An iconic mascot is more or less necessary for long term success in marketing.

Yes, staking will be amazing. Stakers get revenue earned from market + staking rewards.

The game is in alpha, the demand is way higher than they can meet and it takes years to build a decent game, they've come a long way since the launch in 2017 and have been building an entire bear market.

Axie infinity is overvalued as of now, I would say it's kind of late to get inot their NFTs and what not, perhaps a year before this wouldn't be the case, but I would monitor other projects if I were you .

I am currently Holding Blitmaps : ?

<https://twitter.com/blitmap?s=09>

It's a true On chain Project, with interesting concept, basically you take two NFTs and you morph them to get a unique NFT which you mint for 0.1 ETH , the whole 1700 NFTs are sold, now the only way to get them is through Opensea , they were made by the Co founder of VINE (Dom Hofmann)

Later on these NFTs will get a free Blitnaut by simply holding an early blitmap , interesting concept and still early .

Take A Risk - July 10, 2021, 9:59 am

U need 3 axes to get started so minimum 300$ each is it right or theres some axes less expensive then 280 300

Cheaper axes are worse at PvP and the game, better Axes are better at PvP/playing the game. A good axe farm can get u 2.6k-3k SLP a month while a bad one might only get 1.8k-2.25k. You pay more for a good team to earn more as u train your axes.

Only a low earning/crappy axe team is $300 each now, these will struggle in-game pvp and stuff and earn 1.5k slp, good teams that are more expensive earn 2x that as an example.

It isn't as confusing to typical gamers imo. It's a game that has PVP and PVE. You need a team of 3 Axes with varying skills (parts). As with any other game, you have to learn the meta and how to play to understand which Axe meshes with each other.

Cheaper Axe = has shit skills (parts)

Expensive Axe = meets the meta

There isn't a perfect team, you still have to use your brain as it is a strategy game, similar to chess.

Need like 2 weeks, in the beginning, to level up your axes with like 5 hours a day. Then from there, less than a few hours a day to earn your max SLP in a day.

Have you looked at the prices of Land from just three months ago ? Early buyers will for sure dilute some aspects of the game no doubt about it, I will personally wait for a recession if I wanted to get into the game . I think it will still have a huge run, they have done the Gamification part right, and their network effect is uncanny, plus their base audience is pretty huge, but some parts of the project are certainly inflated, I am witnessing $SLP go back to its fair value and so are some other stuff, that's just my take , and the end games for me is to always go into these sorts of projects with profits I made from other things, not with my food money, so it makes sense for me to wait for fair prices and flipp some other things whilst that happens. Cheers

I might be wrong, but I saw some inflationary aspects (Land especially) and I wouldn't touch anything that looks like it might retract to lower values, that's just my thesis.

Blitmaps are on a whole different spectrum, agreed, but later on, Gamification is called for, and I am trying to get as much involved in it as possible.

Depends on the skills of the axie, make sure to get pure breed for starter.

Based from experience

Both pvp and pve is 2 aqua and 1 plant

1st aqua: risky fish, hero's bane, swift escape, nimo

2nd aqua: same as above but nimo should be replace with koi.

plant: vegetative, wooden stab/beechn/disguise, pumpkin, hot butt/carrot

1.6k - 2k mmr is possible with this axes.

150-290 slp per day if you spend your energy to arenas but

I suggest to level your axes until you finish ruin 21 to get bonus 200 slp and thats when you focus on arenas

1.2k$-1.5k$ to be exact, your investment is returned after 2-3month of playing(it could take 1 month depends on the price of SLP) + u keep the axes. I don't think a cheaper to play will crash the price, a cheaper investment means cheaper income/profit

You don't see the loophole here. The coin is supposed to grow when game grows, but the game costs over $600 to play. I personally don't even buy a dlc that costs more than $20. That's a straight NO for mainstream adoption or even adoption.

The team comes from the era of CryptoKitties which had an infinite breeding problem, that means unlimited supply, very less demand. They've been working their asses off for 4 years and now the game comes into the mainstream that's why the hype or 400% growth, its not an overnight success, just lot of new money going in.

It's a video game. They have to make adjustments to the economy to keep the game healthy. It's not like a standard cryptocurrency in that regard; it's a balance change, not the developers trying to manipulate prices. These types of games are an area in crypto where making major changes like this are seen as good for the long term health of the GAME the cryptos are used for. Which in the long term should provide more value to the underlying cryptocurrencies.

The game makes sure that around 80% of profit earned is distributed to players who grow the game, people holding the AXS governance token, read about the tokenomics here <https://axieinfinity.com/axs>.

These guys are all about building community and giving back to the community. All the price action is majorly driven by community members of funds who are into NFTs and participating in their ecosystem by using Land or giving out scholarships to people who can't afford Axies on revenue sharing.

People in India/Philippines are playing Axie Infinity 14-16 hours a day and making a lot of money instead of doing the job as the standard of living is high and playing PUBG or Clash of Clan doesn't make you any money.

I got to interview these guys when the price of AXS the governance token was around 0.32 - 0.8 and now it's trading at $7.8~

WAGMI.

A lot of AXS and SLP will be locked in the farming contract and AXS staking.

IF you want a hedge against falling prices, you can open a AXS short position as well.\

Are you bullish on Eth or AXS? if yes, then AXS/Eth pool is good even with IL.

There is no current APR as far as I understand it.

Currently it all depends on the WRON Price, which is yet to be determined.

Axs has come down considerably, currently trading at around 58-60

Do you think it is a decent enough time to grab a bag?

I wouldn't buy into Axie. It had the moment. It spiked and will only go down from here. Eventually might flatten out. Look at newer projects imho like SAND or something else that hasn't mooned yet.

Mr Kewl got into Axie at a good moment, hope he took profit though.

I bought most of my bags below $10, so I'm good. Provided Liquidity at the top, so basically sold the top and bought back again at $60.

I would ask you to look into buying $AXS and stake it for 78% APY.

You can restake it daily so it compounds :)

I have no interest in investing into this project. Don't like the game. I don't like their business model. The fact you can get 78% APY is alarming enough. Sounds like heavy inflation where those earning those APY's are gonna take profit and push price downward into oblivion. Will the game get new players and fresh players? I personally don't believe so.
