Thread: Spring 2021 Watchlist

Beherit - April 16, 2021, 12:22 am

Most of the time I'm watching casual anime like isekai or slice of life every season but binge watch the ones that are really good at the end of the season.

I still have yet to watch Jujutsu Kaisen, and have been watching Boku no Hero Academia weekly for as long as I can remember.

What I'm watching weekly for Spring: Boku No Hero Academia 5 [I've heard good things coming for this season]

Slime Diaries [even more chill than the original series]

Slime Taoshite 300-nen [cute and funny so far]

Sentouin, Hakenshimasu! [fanservice, hilarious dirty jokes]

Kyuukyoku Shinka shita Full Dive RPG ga Genjitsu yori mo Kusoge Dattara [best comedy this season, imo]

What I plan to binge: Koi to Yobu ni wa Kimochi Warui

Shadows House

86

Shaman King [classic remake, a whopping 52 episodes]

Vivy: Fluorite Eye's Song

What's everyone watching this season? Any manga/anime recommendations?

Looks good! Not interested in the Shaman King remake or you've already seen the previous version?

Nice! All I have seen from Zombieland Saga is that awesome rap battle. That's been on my list to watch for like ever now.

Mug Cup seems pretty chill so I think I'll start that soon. Not really a fan of bingeing slice of lifes, I like to watch as they air each week.

(Apr 16, 2021 03:49 PM)Tsundere Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hmmm, don't believe I have that in the list I posted. Maybe you misread one of the titles for it by accident. ?

But if you meant it in a recommending way no, I haven't seen the previous version of Shaman King. Had to look up what that was on MAL because I wasn't sure. ?

Haha yes, a recommending way, but if you don't plan on watching it's cool.

Most of the new shounen anime, I just end up waiting for them to finish so I can binge. I've been trying to find more classic shounen oldies from the 80s or 90s to watch.

The last concert is the most epic in Zombieland Saga imo, I got chills like it was some powerup shonen fight or something.

For some reason I like binging sol, gives me an escape from the real world for a while

I'll definitely check it out.

Yes! I felt like that when I finished the third season of Non Non Biyori the other day.

Unironically that's the exact one I was talking about. I never heard of it until I saw the Winter 2021 lineup so I binged S1-S2 in a couple days then waited until S3 was done airing. It felt great since I genuinely enjoyed every episode but now I can't really get my "fix" if I'm in the mood for it. At least the manga is quite ahead though

Also since my last post I watched the first eps of Ijiranaide Nagatoro-san, 86, Kyuukyoku Shinka shita Full Dive RPG ga Genjitsu yori mo Kusoge Dattara, and Sentouin Hakenshimasu since Netflix is adding episodes 1 week after they come out. Also went ahead and DLd Hige wo Soru. Soshite Joshikousei wo Hirou and Mashiro no Oto and those were both pretty good

It was definitely a hidden gem for me. Try reading the manga to the anime's OST. Glorious.

Good to know. I've only started Nagatoro, Full Dive, and Sentouin Hakenshimasu. Good comedy, imo.

I'll watch the more serious shows once they are completed. You know what, I'm starting Jujutsu Kaisen today.

The OST is great. I tried looking for the whacky flute-sounding song for like an hour but I couldn't find it in any of the soundtrack compilations on YouTube or anything (added it below)
