

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Different Chat for Coin /flips

bk randy - April 18, 2021, 12:57 am

Coin flips are fun and a easy way to make a little bit of profit if you know how to work it, I haven't made much profit but I do a good job at going back n fourth.

The one thing I don't like though, is when I'm betting and someone comes in and bets right before I bet like 5k and they hit green and I hit red. I've lost quite a bit (to me) when that happens, shit happens. I just think it would be nice if we could have a separate group chat or even private group chat with Stanly so our odds aren't mixed up with someone else's flips.

Does anyone else agree this would be a nice feature? Even just for upgraded members to have their "own table" like in GTA (lol)

Forensic - April 18, 2021, 5:45 am

(Apr 18, 2021 05:36 AM)Davkul Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I used to feel like that too, but it's merely just a conviction, believe it or not there is no direct connection between another person's flip and yours. Using "/flip hide" helps you realizing that, I've flipped plenty of times when other people were flipping and I can tell the odds aren't global but unique for each singular flip.

Yeah, I have heard this before also. It's specific user-orientated so whatever anyone else flips doesn't actually matter & therefore sniping is just an illusion. Not sure if it's true but would make sense.

Also, there is a tails option so if you think somebody 'stole' your green & the next will be red then just go tails. ?

Xerotic - April 18, 2021, 7:50 am

You have gamblers mind. You're seeing patterns that don't exist. All flips odds are independent of all other flips. Someone else flipping when you do does not affect your outcome.

SkullTraill - April 18, 2021, 8:29 am

What's a point of another chat then? Might as well have a page with a flip button and leave it at that...

Like others have said, if the system is coded fairly, others flipping have 0 effect on your flips.

webdev77 - April 18, 2021, 8:56 am

Personally I think the /flip hide feature does the job already. I think there are plenty of other HF features that would be cooler to have than this.

bk randy - April 18, 2021, 1:27 pm

I get where you guys are coming from, but as a wisest member on HF once said; Even though it's random, there is a pattern.

I firmly believe that with coin flip lol, the only times I seem to loose are when other people start flipping their coin.

I'll be on a 4-5 times loosing streak, bet 5k and someone hits green right before me and it'll repeat like that if I keep it going, it's how I loose all my bytes time and time again.

At the time I made this thread I had like 15k bytes and went down to 5k, then to 57k, and decided to just flip with other people and went back down to 45k. I've lost about 100k with doing that.

bk randy - April 18, 2021, 3:48 pm

(Apr 18, 2021 03:05 PM)Davkul Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah, I believe Black Shadow was closed a while ago lol. The only pattern I see is "you win some, you lose some". Trust me bud, I've flipped for a good while as well, I've won a lot and I've lost a lot regardless of whoever else was or wasn't flipping, that's the only pattern there is. It's perfectly reasonable for you to feel that way though, but you need to come to realize it's not real. /flip hide and ignore other people's flips completely, you'll see the result will be the exact same.

Alright, I guess I was just on a good role those times. I'll have to stop while I'm ahead in some cases.