Have you ever tried of tracing the geolocation of an IP adress?

If YES what is the method you used?

I guess this could be taken both ways, however geo location will only get you so far and sometimes even be a county or two off.

OP did you want to know how to get an exact address or just the general area of the I.P?

There is a tool on this forum that provides pretty exact location.

If the tool includes asking for your location via a browser, then sure, that might hit pretty close.

Otherwise, IP Geolocating can be right next to your doorstep or a municipality 5km away from you. It all depends on where the ISP Node is located.
