I initiated a first contract with Morty on April 15th for my $375 BTC for his $500 AGC. Card sent was already redeemed, he refunded me $175 BTC and held $200 BTC as an "IOU" once he immediately got more gift card. He contacted me a couple days later on the 18th saying he had $1500 in AGC in which I agreed to buy for $1100 BTC. I sent an additional $900 BTC on top of the $200 he was holding of mine from the previous deal. First I was waiting on his partner to send the cards, then he had family issues another day, needed to wait for new cards after that, etc... We moved on to just cancelling and refunding a couple of days ago, but now it's been a few days of reasons for the delay of my refund. Morty currently owes me $1100~ in BTC (but I'll accept other crypto) or $1500 in AGC. This deal dispute is being posted for accountability on his end to not just keep telling me "tomorrow". Also for anyone who planned to potentially deal with him to be cautious/not got first until this is resolved.

As it stands now he's promised to send $550 ETH by midnight EST tomorrow and another $600 within the following days. I will lift this dispute upon receiving the first half.

Just posting here to say that I will be refunding the buyer by tomorrow. Dispute is valid but I don't want anyone to think I have run with the money

Morty seems like a man of his word who I'm hoping actually just got caught up in some shit during our deal and will make things right.

I'm just tryna get some damn amazon gift card :(

shoot!! that's a lot of money!

never trust anybody mate! avoid to make huge transactions! at least split it into several exchanges each in a new contract

I was going to initially break it into 3 transactions but Morty had shown to be good business so I wasn't worried about it at the time of. Going forward I'll be more cautious. I'm here since 2011, you would think I'd wise up at some point lmao.

Has he gotten back with you today?

Shady story, shady excuses, just overall sketchy transaction. Hopefully it gets resolved.

User didn't make this deadline, still haven't received even $1 back. Seemingly always a reason why it'll be "tomorrow".

"Card sent was already redeemed" sheesh man why send him anything after this?

Lol user obviously did not keep his word, still haven't gotten $1 and he's MIA now.
assuming he was just trying to drag this dispute along to try and get more scams in.
