

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Girl faking Tourette's Syndrome for Clout

Connected - May 2, 2021, 1:59 pm

So this girl on TikTok has decided to try and fake Tourette's Syndrome on TikTok for "clout". She posted a video of her showing her "tics" in which she tries to replicate a bunch of symptoms all while laughing at herself. Honestly seeing something like this is utterly disgusting.

TikTok Video in question:

https://www.reddit.com/r/Cringetopia/comments/n1f5g6/girl_fakes_tourettes_disorder_for_tiktok_fame/

Video of her promoting her business and magically not having any tics:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=eWfgtgncRbY>

She has turned off likes/dislikes since people have caught wind of all of this and deletes any comments about this situation.

Connected - May 2, 2021, 2:11 pm

(May 2, 2021 02:04 PM) Davkul Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The first link doesn't work. As for the video, it's just a video with multiple cuts, people with Tourette's don't actually have tics 24/7, or at least not all of them, think about Billie Eilish. So if that's the only proof, I think it's pretty lame. But what do we know, she might actually be faking it, it'd just be so cringe I don't think any person would go so far. There's plenty of videos on the YouTube channel if you want to look through them. It's also pretty apparent from the TikTok video she made that if she is not faking it she is severely exaggerating it.

Also did you try clicking the link again? I messed it up when i first posted.

Robotsapian - May 2, 2021, 2:13 pm

How disgusting and embarrassing this is

SIM-3343347 - May 2, 2021, 2:26 pm

Man, welcome to social media

TB12 - May 2, 2021, 2:45 pm

Tiktok is absolute cancer with this shit

False King - May 2, 2021, 4:13 pm

(May 2, 2021 02:37 PM) Davkul Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah just watched it, kinda cringe but it's TikTok so I'm not surprised. I do agree she might be exaggerating but I've seen worse tics (from people who were actually diagnosed with Tourette's) so I can't tell, I just think the fact that she's deleting comments and such is perfectly justified, nobody should feel the need to explain their conditions and people insisting get kinda annoying. On the other hand, trying to gain followers by showing off things like that with the excuse of "normalizing" it, is kinda dumb, whether she actually has Tourette's or not, so she's still dumb for that.

If you're using your disability to promote yourself, it's perfectly justifiable for people to insist on clarification. Especially if there's good reason to question it.

entralmaker - May 2, 2021, 5:07 pm

(May 2, 2021 01:59 PM)DMTWizard Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) So this girl on TikTok has decided to try and fake Tourette's Syndrome on TikTok for "clout". She posted a video of her showing her "tics" in which she tries to replicate a bunch of symptoms all while laughing at herself. Honestly seeing something like this is utterly disgusting.

TikTok Video in question:

https://www.reddit.com/r/Cringetopia/comments/n1f5g6/girl_fakes_tourettes_disorder_for_tiktok_fame/

Video of her promoting her business and magically not having any tics:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=eWfgtgncRbY>

She has turned off likes/dislikes since people have caught wind of all of this and deletes any comments about this situation.

yikes, I feel bad for people who actually have Tourettes and have to deal with people like this. I really despise people who fake stuff for attention.

A Nobody - May 2, 2021, 5:09 pm

I've seen it from a couple TikTokers that my partner follows. Absolutely hate it and feels obvious with some people.

Laylo - May 2, 2021, 6:37 pm

I honestly blame the parents

Beherit - May 3, 2021, 1:22 am

I hope she learns a valuable lesson about all this.

Forensic - May 3, 2021, 2:17 am

You gotta do what you gotta do in this world

Vyrkfrir - May 3, 2021, 5:04 am

Didn't even need to look further into your links, this is absolutely not surprising.

Some folks will do anything to get attention and drum up the sympathy. She is going to go into full victim mode and blame it on anything else.

Neon™ - May 3, 2021, 5:05 am

That's low af... also one of the many reasons why I'm not using tiktok or any other social media.

Lorem Ipsum - May 3, 2021, 5:13 am

(May 3, 2021 05:05 AM)Neon™ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That's low af... also one of the many reasons why I'm not using tiktok or any other social media.

I removed TikTok after seeing too many teens and young adults (f*cking kids) act like they are seductive, "hot" or worse..

Not even talking about the huge narcissists and other toxic environment that is exposed to many followers.

TikTok seemed like a potential platform for free, yet huge amount of audience targeting..

After signing up I found out it's manipulating the algorithms in such way the 'plot' videos (watch to find out) are causing you to see more of those. And all the pedophiles on TikTok watching way to young children dance in too revealing clothing for some "likes". Pa-the-tic.

Smexy - May 3, 2021, 5:35 am

This is horrible on 100 perspectives

Connected - May 3, 2021, 3:07 pm

(May 3, 2021 05:05 AM)Neon™ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That's low af... also one of the many reasons why I'm not using tiktok or any other social media.

I've never used Musically/TikTok and for good reason, shit like this among other things, just no interest in sinking any time into it.

siddy357 - May 3, 2021, 10:00 pm

(May 2, 2021 01:59 PM)DMTWizard Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) So this girl on TikTok has decided to try and fake Tourette's Syndrome on TikTok for "clout". She posted a video of her showing her "tics" in which she tries to replicate a bunch of symptoms all while laughing at herself. Honestly seeing something like this is utterly disgusting.

TikTok Video in question:

https://www.reddit.com/r/Cringetopia/comments/n1f5g6/girl_fakes_tourettes_disorder_for_tiktok_fame/

Video of her promoting her business and magically not having any tics:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=eWfgtgncRbY>

She has turned off likes/dislikes since people have caught wind of all of this and deletes any comments about this situation.

It is low level of content creation when one is making fun of a some one else medical condition. don't know how we as a human race are heading to.

entralmaker - July 24, 2021, 5:21 pm

someone needs to leak this persons address lol. its probably already been done

Charlie Sheen - July 24, 2021, 7:54 pm

That's sick man, I hate people most days.

Vitani's Mate - July 24, 2021, 9:27 pm

Lmao what a piece of shit.

Overtone - July 24, 2021, 9:55 pm

Wow. I did not think anyone could be that mean

blankcheq - July 25, 2021, 2:56 pm

Why would anyone associate a mentally handicapped person with clout?

moinatan - July 26, 2021, 4:20 pm

tiktok is garbage social media , cant understand why anyone even uses it

BeachBumUnreal - July 26, 2021, 5:21 pm

Thats terrible, the dangers of social media smh

Nate - July 26, 2021, 10:45 pm

Clout is the now the most deadliest drug

SIM-353284 - July 26, 2021, 10:58 pm

(May 2, 2021 01:59 PM)Connected Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) So this girl on TikTok has decided to try and fake Tourette's Syndrome on TikTok for "clout". She posted a video of her showing her "tics" in which she tries to replicate a bunch of symptoms all while laughing at herself. Honestly seeing something like this is utterly disgusting.

TikTok Video in question:

https://www.reddit.com/r/Cringetopia/comments/n1f5g6/girl_fakes_tourettes_disorder_for_tiktok_fame/

Video of her promoting her business and magically not having any tics:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=eWfgtgncRbY>

She has turned off likes/dislikes since people have caught wind of all of this and deletes any comments about this situation.

I'd do it, wouldn't need much faking either.

Connected - July 27, 2021, 1:07 pm

(Jul 26, 2021 10:45 PM)N?te Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Clout is the now the most deadliest drug
Oh I know, I've experienced it second-hand? I used to hang out with this YouTuber who is letting the clout get to his head and his life is spiraling. He is now homeless, living in his car, got robbed for his phone (his source of income because he's a livestreamer), and as far as I can tell addicted to methamphetamine.

Purgatory - August 15, 2024, 10:23 pm

Damn shame man... it's a damn shame..

famoupo - August 16, 2024, 2:45 am

That isn't true or well

Jamika - August 16, 2024, 5:31 am

(May 2, 2021 01:59 PM)Connected Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) So this girl on TikTok has decided to try and fake Tourette's Syndrome on TikTok for "clout". She posted a video of her showing her "tics" in which she tries to replicate a bunch of symptoms all while laughing at herself. Honestly seeing something like this is utterly disgusting.

TikTok Video in question:

https://www.reddit.com/r/Cringetopia/comments/n1f5g6/girl_fakes_tourettes_disorder_for_tiktok_fame/

Video of her promoting her business and magically not having any tics:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=eWfgtgncRbY>

She has turned off likes/dislikes since people have caught wind of all of this and deletes any comments about this situation.

And that's her goal, more views or likes, the solve for her is to report and neglect her like a dog

birmetylen - September 8, 2024, 10:46 pm

crazy what people can come up with