Huge question, I need to analyze anilist.

Holy shit why is this such a cluster season, there's so many adventure action Isekais..

Hmm, guess we'll find out. I'm sure quite a few I will be dropping from my list. Highly anticipating Mushoku Tensei as well.

Record of ragnarok is the anime I'm most looking forward to this summer

Lyralei - May 17, 2021, 8:53 pm

Kobayashi Maid Dragon
Higurashi
Love Live

and alot of isekai trash.

Playing catchup with Higurashi. I think I left off on episode 12 of part one. Glad they didn't change the voices ?

As for Kobayashi, season one's ending had a profound effect on me and I just have to catch season two.

Yes, I too, will be indulging in my isekai trash.

Next season has a lot of interesting new titles too, I'll definitely try and check most.

Recommend Mairimashita! Iruma-kun for anyone interested in a shounen that feels like a slice of life.

I'm pretty underwhelmed with the summer anime list if I'm being honest. I'll see what the community at large says about all of the shows for the first couple of episodes to see what kinds of feelings people are having but right now I'm mostly going to try to burn through my decade long backlog of series I never got around to. Don't even know where I'm gonna start with that. Maybe I'll just start alphabetically.

Currently I don't have a watch list. I may check out some of the ones you posted though.

I haven't watched the new season, but definitely recommend Iruma-Kun if you wanna watch a light hearted anime

Honestly, I'm just waiting for the new gundam series coming out.

Hathaway's Flash and the upcoming SEED series (if it gets an animation)

Think I'm going to catch some old Gundam that I missed out on during my childhood. Any Gundam recommendations?

Looks horrible.

Especially that gundam movie.

I feel you. I plan on watching older Gundam that I watched growing up, but I'm looking forward to sequels more than actual new shows.
