Looks like Pancake Bunny got hacked.

Quote:Attention Bunny Fam,

Our project has suffered a flash loan attack from an outside exploiter.

We will be posting a post mortem, in depth analysis, but for the time being we would like to update the community as to how this happened.

The hacker used pancakeswap to borrow a huge amount of bnb

The hacker then went on to manipulate the price of USDT/BNB as well as Bunny/Bnb

The hacker ended up getting a huge amount of Bunny through this flash loan

The hacker then dumped all the bunny in the market, causing the bunny price to plummet

The hacker paid back the bnb through pancakeswap.

This is the bscscan link that the hacker used, detailing the flash loan attack

This is the current wallet address of the hacker

I managed to withdraw some $CAKE I had in there just in case but unable to do anything with the Bunny tokens I earned (which wasn't a lot, so not fussed).

The $Bunny price tanked from around $350 to $8 (and falling). OUCH.

I'm curious.. how much total FIAT did or could this hacker have gotten away with?

I saw something earlier saying ~$50m. With Tornado Cash they can even anonymize the transactions I believe.

Crazy. Crypto keeps taking hits this week.

It was a billion dollar rug pull, you can track the wallet address and see he was sending like $50m worth of BNB per minute to decentralized exchanges trying to cash out.

Crypto Q - May 19, 2021, 6:55 pm

This is crazy, 2020,2021 Has been by far insane!
