Today's WYR:

Would you rather put a stop to war or end world hunger?

My response:

This is honestly a tough one, my logic is with no war would mean peace. Therefore if there is peace wouldn't everyone focus on issues at hand verses hating and fighting with each other? We would spend more time developing new technology as one and new ways to feed the growing population. I'm sure war accounts for a great amount of deaths globally so there would be a lot more mouths to feed. I think feeding everyone isn't going to stop people from fighting over pointless stuff such as land, tech, and people.

EDIT: title is to long noted for tomorrow.

Ending world hunger would be a more accomplishable goal imo. People will always fight and have war, but at least you can distribute food in a way that stops people from starving.

This is a touchy subject. A double edged sword if u will. Ending world hunger will do nothing for all those still fighting for freedom and dying. I would end war. Ending war gives everyone peace and time to do business which creates more money and food. But then again alot of war is caused by lack of resources, food being up on the top.

Ending world hunger will help get people out of a unhealthy place physically, mentally, financially, and end up increasing the brain power on solving these other world problems. These people will be assets that will bring change to the future generations to come and will bring forth heavy innovation now that they have the strength to perform adequately in society. War will never be something that can be controlled unless drastically, like leaders using fear to keep their people in check. I believe more people living happily will encourage more innovation and prosperity for all countries.

Funny enough, I think going for ending wars actually would do some effect to ending world hunger as well.

My vote is for ending wars

(even though this idea is completely irrational and will never work)

Going to end world hunger, as this seems more realistic. wars is something that we do since our presence on earth. Dont think is possible to stop it too many people get too rich over it.
