Hello HF,

As the title explains I am starting a drop shipping business. I am currently looking for products and items that can be a hit.

I am currently working with google trends and aliexpress dropshipping center, but i want to ask if there is any other websites that can check or verify trends for me, i know about adspy is the subscription really worth it, will it make a difference.

I would appreciate any other advice.

Thank you,
Best regards.
Luven

it's good for you to look for a target audience and then the product. think about people who buy products, think about what they need, what station your city is in... it all interferes. Ahh and don't forget, people are ALWAYS wanting a good physique, so body care products are always well sold. Choose a niche and then choose the product

I've watched tons of Youtube videos on this subject. Most of the dropshippers told that just spying on Facebook ads is good enough. If FB ad for a product is doing well (a lot of comments and overall engagement) that means it's a winning product because they wouldn't be paying so much money for advertisement if product is shit.

You should look more into how to make it look better rather than focusing on TRUE WINNING product
