Aimed more at people from UK/NI

Looking to go on holidays either end of this month or September.

Do they really ask you why you're travelling for non-essential reasons or what do you say?

Looking to go to dubai

Wanna go to Japan but lots of shitty restrictions in place, not to mention the cost of a 2 way ticket is just insanity right now.

Does moving count? I took a detour to a city I used to live in on the way to visit an old friend, so I guess I traveled briefly regardless.

I have no desire to travel, but I think I may get dragged places unfortunately...

Covid passports aren't required to leave where I am so I just might go somewhere in the winter, but no I haven't travelled anywhere yet.

The only place I traveled in the last two years was to work and back home every day...lol

I don't really have anywhere I want to travel to. Even going out during the lock down wasn't fun with stupid rules like "please wear your mask while you walk 5 steps to the table you're about to eat at".
