I figured this out that everything online yet taken serious should never be taken to heart. As long as you keep your self safe. talk all the crap you want, piss off the world, share inappropriate meme... Don't ever let anyone tell you no. the internet has no rules for a reason. So the moment you put rules and guidelines on that freedom, you will deal with how the internet protects itself. By the people. For the people who are the reason why we have such rights. Just remember. It is all for the lulz.

Cheers mate I needed a rant for the day.

I never understand, on the internet or not, why people feel the need to be so infiltrated with other people's lives! Live your life, and let the next person live theirs. Mind ya damn business.

I really don't take anything serious on the internet.

Life is too short to be concerned with such pointless things.
