Thread: Dirt poor and on the brink of homelessness, need some methods of earning money

Asterixdd - June 29, 2021, 9:18 am

Anyone know of any online methods of making money? Getting a job and going outside is absolutely not an option. Thanks.

There's your first problem. "Getting a job and going outside is absolutely not an option"
Laziness will get you nowhere.

Don't use whatever little money you do have to buy online methods here. Just don't.

The only good methods cost around a thousand dollars. Rich get richer friend.

Unfortunately, in my experience the best way of acquiring money was to go out and get a job. I highly doubt people will give out real methods of making decent sums of money online unfortunately, and most ebooks I've seen aren't great either.

Hope you find some of your luck soon.

Kinda fucked that no one asked, "Why? " getting a job isn't an option BEFORE reaming him a new asshole. He could be lazy, but what if he's disabled or handicapped? And the immediate response was so negative.

Try at least having a constructive response.

It's not the reason why people call him lazy it's the way he words it. Reminder there's real people working real fucking jobs busting ass day by day.

Sure there are people who have actual hardships they don't word it like that. This dude acts like the same people who want handouts.

If he's disabled or handicapped he'd be getting paid from the state. I call bullshit on your theory.

If he's disabled or handicapped he'd be getting paid from the state. I call bullshit on your theory. Your opinion doesn't become fact because it's what you choose to believe buddy. And you're right, people are out there working real jobs. I'm one of them, and I'd be willing to bet I put in more time each week than you. I word things poorly all the time, the way something is intended and the way something is described aren't always the same. You're acting like you understand how government aid for disabled citizens works and how much everyone makes, yet you don't even take the time to even consider he/she may live in a country that doesn't give its citizens aid for being disabled. Call bullshit on my theory all you want, I call bullshit on your unnecessary negativity and lack of perspective. Have a nice day. :)

Edit: and btw, even if it turns out he is just a lazy shit, it doesn't mean you should be judging and insulting without even having the information to do so.

You probably do but then again I did just leave my former company because working 60+ hours a week doing construction with a few weeks never home and enjoying that half a day off when I am just don't work. When you have an actual family to be there for. You are really out here flexing working all the time. I'm not impressed if anything that's just more depressing to think of. After 55 hours your checks are just taxed to hell. You can work for free. I wont.

I make more now in a different trade and get family time which makes me more rich in spirit than money ever can. If you live near a city, here's what you do:

1. Find an event happening downtown, preferable on a hot day.
2. Go to the grocery store and buy water bottles, maybe Gatorade, ice, and a cooler.
3. Stand a few blocks away from the event, preferably somewhere that's not in front of a store (they'll call cops)
4. Sell the waters 1 for $2, gatorade 1 for $3 2 for $5.
5. Rinse Repeat Profit.

You make a very good point.

Maybe buying and reselling items? Some bulk items can be resold in smaller quantities for profit.

Go to the buyers bay on this site, maybe there's something there you could do.

I know that you said getting a job isn't possible, but is that including remote jobs at home from the computer?

You could consider searching on Google for "Help Desk Job Openings". There are more remote customer support jobs out there than you think.

Most of the self employed Internet marketing jobs require some time. You could consider dropshipping, there are a lot of videos available on Youtube. You could also consider some affiliate marketing opportunities where you sell other people's products through a referral link and get a commission. A lot of this stuff is more successful when you buy paid advertisements and that sort of thing, but if you look there are some good opportunities out there.

You could also check sites like airdrop.io for crypto airdrops. Some of those are pretty solid for extra cash.

being a agoraphobia is not an excuse. I work a job at a hospital. Do you think I love getting up early in the morning and on my days off get calls to go to work because someone didn't show up and might end up being fired.

Then go in taking peoples vitals while they start and see rashes on my face and go eeeeew you ugly. I bet you don't get laid with that face. I have psoriasis. I dont like it and do hate some people. I have to face this on a daily many will ask am I contagious can my rashes give them aids or covid. Trust me I have heard so many stupid shits talking shit to my face. Then dealing with people that think they can bully me around thinking oh this man here said the visit was free. Oh really thank god the hospital started recording phone calls because in the past people would just get written up even if a patient was lying. You just gotta take it.

Now, I just give them the time I talked to them on the phone and they can listen to the conversation and they now cannot believe how people lie and manipulate just to try and see if they can get away without paying their medical bills.

Do I love doing this? Hell no man...but I do it to make money and some of the money I put into 3 businesses that I started years ago and it's growing. So, every year I make more and more money. If I don't do this there's no way to make money to live off of. You can make some money online but that won't pay all your bills. Trust me I looked into it.

So, the only solution is to get a job could be full time or part time or even contingent. Or do uber eats or something like that.

AiDenti - June 30, 2021, 3:17 pm

Here's an easy one if you can run photoshop. Set up a RedBubble shop. They'll print and ship everything for you. Go to political subreddits and grab any short phrase, logo, or meme you can find. Remake it in photoshop with some fancy lettering or whatever. List it on redbubble. Proceed to post it on reddit.

For someone who claims to work in the medical field, you come off as highly ignorant. Do you know what agoraphobia is? There are differing severity levels, and it is a legitimate disorder, recognized and treated by mental health professionals.

You trying to "relate" your "not liking getting up and going to work" everyday, with someone who has a medically conclusive and diagnosed disorder which hinders them from leaving their home.

Don't judge someone, because you're sitting behind a keyboard and think you understand their situation. OP may be lying and wanting free methods, and they may be telling the truth. Either way, no reason to come at them with such malicious contempt.

@ OP. I understand your pain. As someone with a disability since birth, unable to get assistance, and denied I was forced to get an actual job. If you would like to discuss further some stuff that might help. You can send me a PM.

No one told me you know what you can do very little work and make a ton of money without it being a scam. I have never found anything on the internet that makes decent money other than stealing and hacking people. Which again I am against doing illegal crap. Like I said the only real way is to get an actual job.

You have to be a dumbass to make assumptions about me. You just said I don't know op and don't know his life so back off. Yet, you then make the same assumptions about me that I am lying that I work at the hospital and I sound stupid so you assume I am lying and am stupid. Sounds like a vary mature response and then neg rep me for it.

Please do tell us how to make millions in less time on the internet what legal ways can we make tons of money to make a living without putting any capital up front? I bet you cannot list any legitimate ways only refer to scams.

I mean come on and look at his post here: <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=6161467>

I am not being mean. I am being real. I rather have him look for a real job do help desk support at a office if he isn't comfortable with dealing with people. There's jobs where you don't have to deal with the public but there's no job where you don't at all have to talk to a person. All job require you to have to talk to someone at some point.

I am just stating facts. You won't make a career out of doing free giveaways or doing easy shit online. This comes from experience and yes I do work in the medical field and no I don't like it. However, I do it for the money. I get up every morning go to work come home eat and go on HF do some side projects. I own a couple companies and keep an eye on it. I make good money. So, just from experience I know you cannot make a career from scratch online. You have to start working somewhere to get money. Then you can invest into doing stuff online like making websites or doing youtube but it takes years upon years to make any decent money from it. No one makes big money by accident online. It's a lot harder than actually just getting a job.

I don't believe in half of the mental disorders. I don't believe in agoraphobic. You get that way when you avoid making videos and for years you just stay inside. I know many that think they have this disorder like my friends and I have to work hard to get them out of the house. It's because if you been inside the house most of your life it becomes a norm and you're pretty much comfortable just staying home. At this point someone has to push you to get out and start talking to people even if they're rude to you. You have to learn how to just deal with people and how to work a job.

At first it's not going to be easy because you would be worrying too much. After a couple of years trust me you will not be bothered by it. You will be able to handle yourself and getting or a job or handling people on a social basis won't be difficult if you make the attempt to just talk to people and not think too much about it.

Well you're going to be outside by default so maybe expand your options a lil bit and get a job.

lowg - July 5, 2021, 7:55 pm

I see a lot of people talking about jobs from home but I know where I'm from the only option is go bust your ass doing hard labor all day in the woods or work at mcdonalds. I too am looking for an opportunity and hell I've even payed for a shit ton of courses on forums trying to make something else happen, but none of that has worked for me but I see some people talking about these jobs where you can work from home and I'd really appreciate a referral to a legit job because I am someone who wants to work as much as I can but my current situation is barely getting me by while constantly being tired, sore, and giving up any time for friends or family. I too am struggling to not become homeless as I once was for a couple years until just recently and have tried my hardest to work my way up now finding myself in my first place which is a trailer, and I'd really take it as a blessing if someone on here that knows of a work from home job I could do that would make me around $22/Hr (what i make) would share it with me. If someone actually blessed me with something legit you can have half of my first paycheck just for leading me in the right path. I am not a lazy person who would drop everything any second to work anytime I have a job to do. I really don't mind what the job is I just want more hours on my plate and eventually maybe even find an opportunity where I can work completely from home and focus on my real passion which is the stock market, but as of right now my job pays my bills and I can't afford to invest in things I'm so interested in and love researching. Anyways, this post really caught my attention reading about the plenty of opportunities to work from home so if anyone has any answers for me or some advice I could use it right now.

I am just stating facts. You won't make a career out of doing free giveaways or doing easy shit online. This comes from experience and yes I do work in the medical field and no I don't like it.

However, I do it for the money. I get up every morning go to work come home eat and go on HF do some side projects. I own a couple companies and keep an eye on it. I make good money. So, just from experience I know you cannot make a career from scratch online. You have to start working somewhere to get money. Then you can invest into doing stuff online like making websites or doing youtube but it takes years upon years to make any decent money from it. No one makes big money by accident online. It's a lot harder than actually just getting a job.

I don't believe in half of the mental disorders. I don't believe in agoraphobic. You get that way when you avoid making videos and for years you just stay inside. I know many that think they have this disorder like my friends and I have to work hard to get them out of the house. It's because if you been inside the house most of your life it becomes a norm and you're pretty much comfortable just staying home. At this point someone has to push you to get out and start talking to people even if they're rude to you. You have to learn how to just deal with people and how to work a job.

At first it's not going to be easy because you would be worrying too much. After a couple of years trust me you will not be bothered by it. You will be able to handle yourself and getting or a job or handling people on a social basis won't be difficult if you make the attempt to just talk to people and not think too much about it.

I honestly stopped reading when you couldn't even comprehend what I said properly. I never said you "lied about working at a hospital" chief. You're just awfully ignorant for someone claiming to work in the medical field.

Making money online, isn't hard. And you can make upwards of $1,000 per day if done right. With minimal effort.

Just some advice for you;

1. Sounds like you are not interested in getting a job, rather than can not. Change that mindset.
2. You contacted me for my Advice & Partner service, yet never replied back.
3. Do not waste your money at ebooks, especially those $500 a day-ebooks are not as helpful as it sounds.

Do either online chores for others, give personalised advice that will bring any value to the life of your client.

Else, see #1 in the list.

Try at least having a constructive response.

What computer-relative skills do you have OP?

Yes very fair point of view mate.

I too am looking for an opportunity and hell I've even payed for a shit ton of courses on forums trying to make something else happen, but none of that has worked for me but I see some people talking about these jobs where you can work from home and I'd really appreciate a referral to a legit job because I am someone who wants to work as much as I can but my current situation is barely getting me by while constantly being tired, sore, and giving up any time for friends or family. I too am struggling to not become homeless as I once was for a couple years until just recently and have tried my hardest to work my way up now finding myself in my first place which is a trailer, and I'd really take it as a blessing if someone on here that knows of a work from home job I could do that would make me around $22/Hr (what i make) would share it with me. If someone actually blessed me with something legit you can have half of my first paycheck just for leading me in the right path. I am not a lazy person who would drop everything any second to work anytime I have a job to do. I really don't mind what the job is I just want more hours on my plate and eventually maybe even find an opportunity where I can work completely from home and focus on my real passion which is the stock market, but as of right now my job pays my bills and I can't afford to invest in things I'm so interested in and love researching. Anyways, this post really caught my attention reading about the plenty of opportunities to work from home so if anyone has any answers for me or some advice I could use it right now.

If you want a job that you can work from home at then maybe try finding a place that needs live chat customer support. It's a shity job though and most require that you also do voice support.

Don't need any skills or experience. Honestly perfect.

Yeah it's lol that these kids are acting like there's no ways to make money online what complete bollocks.

Definitely not always true.

I would suggest you look for a job. The job could be anything even cleaning toilets.

being a agoraphobia is not an excuse. I work a job at a hospital. Do you think I love getting up early in the morning and on my days off get calls to go to work because someone didn't show up and might end up being fired.

Then go in taking peoples vitals while they start and see rashes on my face and go eeeeeew you ugly. I bet you don't get laid with that face. I have psoriasis. I don't like it and do hate some people. I have to face this on a daily many will ask am I contagious can my rashes give them aids or covid. Trust me I have heard so many stupid shits talking shit to my face. Then dealing with people that think they can bully me around thinking oh this man here said the visit was free. Oh really thank god the hospital started recording phone calls because in the past people would just get written up even if a patient was lying. You just gotta take it.

Now, I just give them the time I talked to them on the phone and they can listen to the conversation and they now cannot believe how people lie and manipulate just to try and see if they can get away without paying their medical bills.

Do I love doing this? Hell no man...but I do it to make money and some of the money I put into 3 businesses that I started years ago and it's growing. So, every year I make more and more money. If I don't do this there's no way to make money to live off of. You can make some money online but that won't pay all your bills. Trust me I looked into it.

So, the only solution is to get a job could be full time or part time or even contingent. Or do uber eats or something like that.

Thevoice87 - July 29, 2021, 5:45 am

Some advice. I was out on the streets. I busted my ass to find a job. Got one part time and worked hard and they promoted me to full-time. Been there 10 years and still there. I spent years learning how to make money online and currently I make more online than my current job. I'm not going to quit though cause I never want to be homeless. The money I make online I bust my ass. You can find ways to make money online from YouTube really. But if you think for a moment that the good money online involves no work you're sadly mistaken. Also, time how much time do you have to make money? Cause some things take time to build and even time to build trust. Therefore, getting out there to find a job for now may just be your best bet. Things you can try online. Drop shop tshirts on Etsy using printful, sell services you're good at on Fiverr. Play middle man between seoclerks and Fiverr. I have some threads on here and you can check them out. But they all involve work, once again MANY tutorials for free on YouTube. Now, go learn and start bustin yo a$$! Ps. Not all ebooks for sale are created equally and still the good ones involve work unless it's black hat. Those are short term usually. Build a solid business and good luck!
