

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Is it better to use secondary sellers if I don't sell a lot?

Drizzled - July 9, 2021, 12:14 pm

Really don't feel like buying Bytes and I have to bump vs people who bump 10x a day

Should I just switch to Secondary Sellers or will I lose a lot of sales? :/

Cap - July 9, 2021, 2:12 pm

Without a doubt the premium section has a lot of bumps. The secondary sellers section can still yield you business. If you don't feel like buying bytes, the only workaround is to get increased activity on your thread by vouches/updates and whatnot. Give the secondary section a shot and see.

Happeh - July 9, 2021, 6:55 pm

Ironically, secondary sellers is the forum I look at the most when window shopping. Premium is often full of "EARN $XXX A DAY" shite, like the walmarts of the world, where as secondary is more niche and fun.

Drizzled - July 10, 2021, 6:34 am

(Jul 9, 2021 02:12 PM)Cap Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Without a doubt the premium section has a lot of bumps. The secondary sellers section can still yield you business. If you don't feel like buying bytes, the only workaround is to get increased activity on your thread by vouches/updates and whatnot. Give the secondary section a shot and see.

Makes sense, premium just has a bunch of people with 1mil bytes spamming bumps Imfao

(Jul 9, 2021 06:55 PM)Happeh Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Ironically, secondary sellers is the forum I look at the most when window shopping. Premium is often full of "EARN $XXX A DAY" shite, like the walmarts of the world, where as secondary is more niche and fun.

Fuck you're right, I switched my thread from Secondary to Premium because I got UB3R, now I regret it, most likely going to switch back soon, I can't keep up with the shit bumps, all the capitalized titles, etc LOL