Don't post the links, it's dissalowed. You may only talk about tor network and how it works...you are not allowed to share onion links nore would you want too

They should add that to the official rules then.

Here you go

Further digging makes it seem like you can discuss onion sites that don't contain rule breaking content.

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5981318>

Historically, sharing onions has been dissalowed but I'd double check with Omniscient just to be sure...

Says nothing about it here: <https://hackforums.net/misc.php?action=help&hid=10>

I doubt even Omni expect users to gravedig threads from 2016 to find answers regarding the policies around darkweb links. So, if I post a darkweb-link to Protonmail, I risk getting banned or warned? Haha how fucking looney.

That's a good point...I've seen onion emails posted here....I would assume that's also dissalowed but maybe not.

obviously sites that are malicious in all kinds of different and often disgusting ways should be banned, but that has nothing to do with darkweb, I'm sure that goes for the clearweb too. I don't visit the TOR-network so I don't care, but I'd hate to see people getting banned for posting an onion-link to Protonmail, CNN, Facebook etc.

I said watch out for phishing not because I'm the common darkweb user that is scared of anything and doesn't even know how to properly surf the deep web.

I'm actually quite the opposite and I surf the darkweb before even you had your own computer (2008/2007), so when you talk to me it's better for you to watch your mouth, you will just appear as the ignorant that you are.

The user that created this thread is giving out "darkweb markets links" so I should think that maybe he might giving out mirrors or direct links not of the official market owner, but it could just be a phishing page to steal credentials and withdraw money from market wallet.

Anyway Sharky you demonstrated to all the public of HackForum how stupid and arrogant you are, you also gave me a random -3 without even having understood what I wrote and why I wrote it,

If i care about my privacy and the preservation of my credentials I will never go without attentions into links that an user joined last year with 11 posts and 0 rep will give out.

I repeat you just an ignorant and you can keep the -3 on my account because I don't care the opinion of a guy that doesn't even know what is talking about.

for all the other people before opening third part darkweb's links always compare to official markets mirrors and direct links to avoid getting phished. ?

Please be careful when just sharing links you know little about. Dark/deep-web can be dangerous.

The deepweb markets are called are kinds of Shopify but for everything that cannot fit into a Shopify for obvious legal reasons (Drugs, Drugs, Drugs, Malware, Weapons, Drugs, Drugs, ect ...)

And it is very rare to see fake market links (phishing), especially as .onion are very difficult to differentiate.

Besides, most of the big makets use address pools so they have a lot of different links, which adds difficulties.

Most Dark Web Links are related to sell places, other links type are forums (Most times there are also markets), sometimes informations sites, scam sites or child porn (Oh Maybe you are interested in child porn, my bad, pointer) looking even dumber than that other guy who thought the TOR network was "a phishing website". You claim that the majority of the sites on the darkweb are markets or other sites with illegal content. Where did you get this statistic? I've never seen it. You do realize TOR was developed by the American government? And it is used by very many for legitimate purposes?

RedirectMe - July 15, 2021, 6:07 am

You are confusing the TOR network with hidden services.

Many people use TOR for anonymity and privacy purposes. Some use the hidden services for legal purposes, for journalism, to hide from a government, ect ... And this represents the Deep Web (Including all corporate intranets ect (Anything that is not indexed and public))

The Dark Web (The subject of this topic) which is a subpart of the Deep Web represents all the hidden services which are ILLEGAL, you totally confuse the Deep Web and the Dark Web which has absolutely no relation.

No, you are clearly not understanding the definition of the dark web. It's a part of the deep web that is illegal, the dark web is not absolutely hidden, connecting to an hidden service is absolutely not hard. "Hidden Service" is the name of the sites that use the back connection of the TOR network to hide the server.

Before putting on negative reputations for things you clearly don't understand / misunderstand next time try to document yourself.
