

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Remove post restriction in the Currency Exchange section - part 2

Facewipe - July 12, 2021, 4:52 pm

Hello xCrue and webdev77, of course, there is nothing wrong with continuing to specially mark vendors who are considered reliable (keyword verification). For those who want it following the rules and regulations. With all its advantages and disadvantages.

My thesis: A lot of cash is like a lot of material a Uwe magnet, because there are connecting points in real life.

My thought: As an alternative, everyone should have the opportunity to easily organize meetings on site in order to handle small to medium-sized barter transactions. Because the more different nicks are in trading, the more the overview gets lost.

If there is really trouble on site, then only one swap is affected and if there are many nicks/ephemera, nobody knows how long that person has actually been in the business. Of course, everyone has to judge for themselves whether their skills in martial arts are sufficient or not, if there is real action.

Please make your own forum!
You don't know what this is about!!!
Changes should be made!

I don't think I have to explain why this is incompatible with the basic idea that HF should have, right?

But you'll never get that... next week I'll find another change that you should make!!!!

webdev77 Wrote:This restriction isn't going to be lifted.When you registered on this forum, weren't you the first to be affected?

Regards

Xerotic - July 12, 2021, 5:02 pm

No.

Omniscient - July 13, 2021, 12:41 pm

FYI that's how it was. Well, at least we allowed L33t to make threads. But because of problems we raised it to Ub3r minimum. We now have less problems. We're not going to revert back to more problems.