

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Did corona affect your life in a negative way?

True Detective - July 17, 2021, 4:25 pm

Hello there.

Just a little night thinking.
As it is night where I stay atm.

Have the corona virus affected your life in any negative way?

Let me tell you how it affected my life.
I lost my driver license over 1.5 year back because of speed.

Then I obviously started taking my driver license again. But when I was about to finish corona came, that means I successfully waited over 1 year to get my driver license back because they closed all the schools where you can take a driver license here in my country.

Otherwise, it held me away from go drinking at clubs with friends, which in the end probably is pretty healthy.

What about you people?

M4A4™ - July 17, 2021, 4:31 pm

Believe it or not it actually benefited my life big time. Long story short, I was working a horrible warehouse job hard ass labor, many 16 hour nights for a wage that was not matching up with how hard the labor was.

BUT, these assholes were not following any covid protocols, they were allowing covid positive employees to come to work so I quit and was able to collect. Found a much better deal job with much better pay and here I am now.

If it wasn't for covid I wouldn't of had the balls to quit that shit hole.

True Detective - July 17, 2021, 4:44 pm

(Jul 17, 2021 04:31 PM)M4A4™ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Believe it or not it actually benefited my life big time. Long story short, I was working a horrible warehouse job hard ass labor, many 16 hour nights for a wage that was not matching up with how hard the labor was.

BUT, these assholes were not following any covid protocols, they were allowing covid positive employees to come to work so I quit and was able to collect. Found a much better deal job with much better pay and here I am now.

If it wasn't for covid I wouldn't of had the balls to quit that shit hole.
Congratulations! I'm glad that corona helped some people out as well! I mean you should really just have left that job a long time ago. And I am not surprised they didn't give a single f about corona restrictions. Not many work places did that here either.

M4A4™ - July 17, 2021, 4:47 pm

(Jul 17, 2021 04:44 PM)Vorherre Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Congratulations! I'm glad that corona helped some people out as well! I mean you should really just have left that job a long time ago. And I am not surprised they didn't give a single f about corona restrictions. Not many work places did that here either.

Agreed bro. Yeah they didn't give two shits they told us "we are business and gotta make money just mask up and glove up" I was like yup forget this place with 2 co workers, we left.

True Detective - July 17, 2021, 4:49 pm

(Jul 17, 2021 04:47 PM)M4A4™ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Agreed bro. Yeah they didn't give two shits they told us "we are business and gotta make money just mask up and glove up" I was like yup forget this place with 2 co workers, we left.

Bruh. My girlfriend called her boss to tell her that I had corona. And she works at a nursing home. The boss said " just be careful and take circumstances then it'll be fine "

The Pact - July 17, 2021, 5:19 pm

(Jul 17, 2021 04:31 PM)M4A4™ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Believe it or not it actually benefited my life big time. Long story short, I was working a horrible warehouse job hard ass labor, many 16 hour nights for a wage that was not matching up with how hard the labor was.

BUT, these assholes were not following any covid protocols, they were allowing covid positive employees to come to work so I quit and was able to collect. Found a much better deal job with much better pay and here I am now.

If it wasn't for covid I wouldn't of had the balls to quit that shit hole.

I like that you had the balls to admit that.

I liked that Covid meant that I was allowed to just do stupid bureaucratic stuff online or on the phone that I never should have had to run around town meeting people to do in the first place.

The only way it really affected me negatively is that my first cousin died of Covid in New York which is horrible. Especially because she wasn't even elderly and had a little girl. Now her father has to raise her on his own.

I did not care about not getting to do things I only cared about getting groceries for my family without going out which was really hard because of not having that many places in my city that did delivery and they would get booked out. Basically you had to stay up until 1 in the morning to grab slots and sometimes you'd still miss out.

M4A4™ - July 17, 2021, 5:19 pm

(Jul 17, 2021 04:49 PM)Vorherre Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Bruh. My girlfriend called her boss to tell her that I had corona. And she works at a nursing home. The boss said " just be careful and take circumstances then it'll be fine " hahaha wtf it's ridiculous and I know it's true because I delt with this myself. Unbelievable

The Pact - July 17, 2021, 5:20 pm

(Jul 17, 2021 04:49 PM)Vorherre Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Bruh. My girlfriend called her boss to tell her that I had corona. And she works at a nursing home. The boss said " just be careful and take circumstances then it'll be fine "

This doesn't make sense in English. What does "take circumstances" mean?

True Detective - July 17, 2021, 5:21 pm

(Jul 17, 2021 05:20 PM)The Pact Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This doesn't make sense in English. What does "take circumstances" mean?

I'm sorry buddy.

English is not my native language.

I mean like, taking distance to the older people, wearing a mouth thing, and all those

(Jul 17, 2021 05:19 PM)The Pact Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I like that you had the balls to admit that.

I liked that Covid meant that I was allowed to just do stupid bureaucratic stuff online or on the phone that I never should have had to run around town meeting people to do in the first place.

The only way it really affected me negatively is that my first cousin died of Covid in New York which is horrible. Especially because she wasn't even elderly and had a little girl.

I did not care about not getting to do things I only cared about getting groceries for my family without going out which was really hard because of not having that many places in my city that did delivery and they would get booked out. Basically you had to stay up until 1 in the morning to grab slots and sometimes you'd still miss out.

Jesus Christ.

I mean, in the end a lot of those companies probably ended up earning a fortune on COVID 19. Then you can talk about getting the best of the worst.

The Pact - July 17, 2021, 5:24 pm

(Jul 17, 2021 05:21 PM)Vorherre Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm sorry buddy.

English is not my native language.

I mean like, taking distance to the older people, wearing a mouth thing, and all those

Jesus Christ.

I mean, in the end a lot of those companies probably ended up earning a fortune on COVID 19. Then you can talk about getting the best of the worst.

Oh yeah the grocery stores with delivery must have made a fortune and also I'd end up buying too much and stuff I maybe didn't want because when a slot came open you had to rush like mad to fill your cart before the slot closed and you couldn't complete your order and were locked out.

And there wasn't much fun you could buy at an online grocery store and I was going to buy a Simpson's comic for my little boy for a treat but then got a message the government had banned all magazines and newspapers for fear Covid carried on paper which they eventually realised it doesn't. We had really strict lockdowns here. Takeaways were banned too and you couldn't get anything by mail other than "essential items" and packages you bought before lockdown you didn't get unless they were marked essential like you could only get soap and toilet paper and masks and not much else. So an item I'd purchased before the lockdown I got ten weeks late.

True Detective - July 17, 2021, 5:30 pm

(Jul 17, 2021 05:24 PM)The Pact Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Oh yeah the grocery stores with delivery must have made a fortune and also I'd end up buying too much and stuff I maybe didn't want because when a slot came open you had to rush like mad to fill your cart before the slot closed and you couldn't complete your order and were locked out.

Yeah.

I made a bit of money on drop shipping in the start of corona myself. I even remember some people having a problem with me earning money on covid 19. But for real, I don't get anything wrong about earning money on it.

Unless you had the right of vaccines and demanded money for it or something.

Lilith - July 17, 2021, 5:34 pm

Aside from the job market, COVID hasn't had any tangibly negative impact on my life. Even then, the job market was shit before COVID. So I guess it might not have had much influence there for me either.

True Detective - July 17, 2021, 5:37 pm

(Jul 17, 2021 05:34 PM)Black Swan Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Aside from the job market, COVID hasn't had any tangibly negative impact on my life. Even then, the job market was shit before COVID. So I guess it might not have had much influence there for me either.

I'm always so surprised when people write this. Because in the country where I am from and lives in, it's incredibly easy to get a job that also pays a good amount of money.

Then I hear from other people from other countries that their job opportunities absolutely suck.

Did you find a good job?

Lilith - July 17, 2021, 5:42 pm

(Jul 17, 2021 05:37 PM)Vorherre Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm always so surprised when people write this. Because in the country where I am from and lives in, it's incredibly easy to get a job that also pays a good amount of money.

Then I hear from other people from other countries that their job opportunities absolutely suck.

Did you find a good job?

It's more to do with the field I work in. Marketing is a field flooded with sales positions disguised as marketing positions. At least in the US. If it isn't a sales position disguised as marketing, it's a grossly underpaid position for the qualifications they're demanding. Then if it isn't either of those, it's a social media management position. Then on the rare occasion you find an actual marketing position with decent pay and benefits that doesn't have their standards set to the moon, it's so extremely competitive.

True Detective - July 17, 2021, 5:44 pm

(Jul 17, 2021 05:42 PM)Black Swan Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It's more to do with the field I work in. Marketing is a field flooded with sales positions disguised as marketing positions. At least in the US. If it isn't a sales position disguised as marketing, it's a grossly underpaid position for the qualifications they're demanding. Then if it isn't either of those, it's a social media management position. Then on the rare occasion you find an actual marketing position with decent pay and benefits that doesn't have their standards set to the moon, it's so extremely competitive.

Hm wouldn't it be possible for you to start up by yourself? Offer some local companies to control their social media's and help them for x amount of $ a month?

I started my own company back in 2019.

Best thing I ever did for myself. This is where the real money to be made are.

(Jul 17, 2021 05:43 PM)Panik Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It was half and half for me. It caused a lot of issues for my company which resulted in me running multiple verticals at once without proper resources or compensation. I ended up leaving because of it and didn't have a job for a few months. That was nice, just chilled out, went fishing, went out to the bar and fugged around (we didn't really abide by the lockdown shit). Ended up with a much better org and role so it all worked out.

The negative side is the after effect imo. Scared liberals doing scared liberal shit is making my life hard.

Ah man I understand the feeling so much.

Luckily the virus only helped me getting more clients actually. I'm a developer, and suddenly everybody wanted online webshops to sell from that corona was here,

It's always nice with a bunch of time off and to do what you want, but at one point it starts being an issue. You miss work, you getting bored at home and so on. At least that's how I feel, I get more stressed from not doing shit, than I do from doing a lot of shit

The Pact - July 17, 2021, 6:19 pm

(Jul 17, 2021 05:30 PM)Vorherre Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah.

I made a bit of money on drop shipping in the start of corona myself. I even remember some people having a problem with me earning money on covid 19. But for real, I don't get anything wrong about earning money on it.

Unless you had the right of vaccines and demanded money for it or something.

I made more money because more people were buying books and reading books on Kindle Unlimited because they were at home and not working.

The only time it would be wrong is if you're jacking up prices way beyond what they should be or you're selling misinformation and fake cures. Lol at them thinking you just .....selling stuff online is wrong?

Yanix - July 17, 2021, 6:50 pm

Not for me but for the whole family...until now restrictions are everywhere.

We can't move and go to places we want to go and even the children can't go out for almost more than a year now.

Life is pretty hard and because of this pandemic it's become more harder to everyone but thankful to the Lord we still managed to accomplished things needs to be accomplished.

Keep safe everyone. God bless.

Nate - July 18, 2021, 2:42 am

It made me want to go out less honestly

True Detective - July 18, 2021, 2:45 am

(Jul 18, 2021 02:42 AM)N?te Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It made me want to go out less honestly

Hahaha that's one way to look at it

Nate - July 18, 2021, 2:46 am

(Jul 18, 2021 02:45 AM)Vorherre Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hahaha that's one way to look at it

Naw even now when it's much better, I just like it at home now I use to go out like every night

Regulus - July 18, 2021, 2:51 am

Yeah it affected my life pretty bad.

True Detective - July 18, 2021, 2:54 am

(Jul 18, 2021 02:46 AM)N?te Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Naw even now when it's much better, I just like it at home now I use to go out like every night

Yeah it's the same for me. But it probably because I have a girlfriend now.

xCrue - July 18, 2021, 2:54 am

Yes, my country did not go on lock down. So I do not have as bad as some others. However, my old boss died from covid and it was a very sad day to see. I did not spend a lot of time thinking about the pandemic and tried to ignore until eventually I could not ignore it anymore. Very difficult times indeed

True Detective - July 18, 2021, 2:54 am

(Jul 18, 2021 02:51 AM)Regulus Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah it affected my life pretty bad.

In what way?

Nate - July 18, 2021, 2:54 am

(Jul 18, 2021 02:54 AM)Vorherre Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah it's the same for me. But it probably because I have a girlfriend now. A girlfriend would have been nice to have during this pandemic

True Detective - July 18, 2021, 2:55 am

(Jul 18, 2021 02:54 AM)xCrue Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yes, my country did not go on lock down. So I do not have as bad as some others. However, my old boss died from covid and it was a very sad day to see. I did not spend a lot of time thinking about the pandemic and tried to ignore until eventually I could not ignore it anymore. Very difficult times indeed

That's really sad bro. I didn't lose anyone I know to COVID thank god for that. Did you get the vaccine yet?

(Jul 18, 2021 02:54 AM)N?te Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) A girlfriend would have been nice to have during this pandemic

Yeah man indeed. Got mine like 4 months ago but I must admit I miss getting drunk and without feeling the responsibility to text my girl

Bastille - July 18, 2021, 3:02 am

Well, this is not exactly the corona, but in France, if you are not vaccinated, you'll not be allowed to access a lot of things such as :

- cinemas
- restaurants
- museums
- night clubs
- bars
- malls
- trains / plane
- amusement park (like Disneyland)
- gym clubs
- hospitals
- ...

The constitution says that the government "can't force people to be vaccinated", but if you are not vaccinated you can't travel long distances, you can't go out with your friends, you can't go on vacation, you can't take Uber.

Well, it seems that I'll save a lot of money during those next years.

Besides, every person working in health (such as medics, hospitals, etc) will have to be vaccinated, otherwise they will be fired.

Pablo Escobar - July 18, 2021, 3:03 am

My uncle succumbed to covid, my father was not given two months salary and in many more little ways.

Yanix - July 18, 2021, 3:09 am

(Jul 18, 2021 03:03 AM)Otaku2021 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) My uncle succumbed to covid, my father was not given two months salary and in many more little ways.

We all suffered loss for our job but eventually it is coming back good slowly but better than the first few months the pandemic hits the world

Miles Morales - July 18, 2021, 3:13 am

Missed a great job opportunity abroad which could have put my professional career back on track.

DanielZ - July 18, 2021, 4:06 am

(Jul 17, 2021 05:30 PM)Vorherre Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) But for real, I don't get anything wrong about earning money on it.

because of their jealousy?

Lilith - July 18, 2021, 6:03 am

(Jul 17, 2021 05:44 PM)Vorherre Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hm wouldn't it be possible for you to start up by yourself? Offer some local companies to control their social media's and help them for x amount of $ a month?

I started my own company back in 2019.

Best thing I ever did for myself. This is where the real money to be made are.

I don't work in social media though. While it's a major part in digital marketing, it's a very specific niche that's separate from traditional marketing which is the field I work in.

Dan - July 18, 2021, 8:09 am

Not read people's replies yet but yes it effected me in a negative way.

My partner had it, watched the person I've spent the last 10 years with who can't physically sit still for longer than 10 minutes absolutely wiped put for two weeks she has slowly got better and now is fine.

My daughter who is two years old was also extremely unwell a few days after my partners positive test. She's had a rough start in life in and out of hospital (very premature) so we decided against testing her and all just isolated for the required length at the time.

Was off work for 5 months, albeit 80% paid but I'd rather have worked and missed it quite a lot.

My parents both have had covid, but they recovered a lot quicker and didn't have it half as bad as my partner.

M4A4™ - July 18, 2021, 9:44 am

(Jul 17, 2021 05:19 PM)The Pact Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I like that you had the balls to admit that.

I liked that Covid meant that I was allowed to just do stupid bureaucratic stuff online or on the phone that I never should have had to run around town meeting people to do in the first place.

The only way it really affected me negatively is that my first cousin died of Covid in New York which is horrible. Especially because she wasn't even elderly and had a little girl. Now her father has to raise her on his own.

I did not care about not getting to do things I only cared about getting groceries for my family without going out which was really hard because of not having that many places in my city that did delivery and they would get booked out. Basically you had to stay up until 1 in the morning to grab slots and sometimes you'd still miss out.

Hey I appreciate that bro. It was a scary time for me but it worked out.

Ninja™ - July 18, 2021, 6:10 pm

(Jul 17, 2021 04:31 PM)M4A4™ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Believe it or not it actually benefited my life big time. Long story short, I was working a horrible warehouse job hard ass labor, many 16 hour nights for a wage that was not matching up with how hard the labor was.

BUT, these assholes were not following any covid protocols, they were allowing covid positive employees to come to work so I quit and was able to collect. Found a much better deal job with much better pay and here I am now.

If it wasn't for covid I wouldn't of had the balls to quit that shit hole.
Congrats mate. Covid was opportunity in disguise for you.

Vitani's Mate - July 18, 2021, 6:26 pm

Not really.

Was out of work for about 3-4 months but it was a pretty good break.

Yerba - July 18, 2021, 6:39 pm

during quarantine and sitting at home all day, my depression worsened. from 1.5 years I only leave the house when I have to do something.

because of covid I realized how big surveillance is in the world, I think every day how much social media and the government are spying on us

Caffeine - July 18, 2021, 7:54 pm

The only thing about this Corona virus stuff that negatively affected my life is that they closed down mostly everything all the bars etc.. But surely enough stuff will be opening up eventually and all this will pass or we'll all be doomed and yeah.