Thread: Remove Stanley from the signature market.

x_x - July 21, 2021, 4:15 am

Anyone can rent Stanley's signature space, okay cool but, Stanley is regarded as an official member of the HF team. Anyone could buy the signature and use it as "Official HackForums donation page" and trick unaware people into donating to a scam or even a phishing page by promising "Free upgrades Summer 2021" or some bullshit like that. If it's going too far by removing the option to buy the signature consider having it needed to be vetted by staff before it can be used to make sure it isn't malicious/deceptive to HF users, If no staff want to do that I'd be happy to volunteer to screen signature purchases for Stanley.

You're getting too worked up over a signature, my man. Very few people have bought it, and if someone decides to do something against site policy with it, they will be handled accordingly.

Your suggestions have been progressively getting more stupid, maybe you should sleep on a suggestion before you post it to the public.

You're a pretty shit mentor, I haven't seen you actually provide helpful mentorship.

I feel like this is one of those things where the chance of it happening is so low it might not be worth the extra work.

What a well articulated reply James. These will keep you mentor through 2021. Dont forget, Im rooting for ya. ?

It can be a planned attack, take bending for example, someone could of told him he could buy a group for $3k if he just uses Stanley's signature. not implying he is stupid but it's not like new people would know.

I tried but drastically failed to find the logic behind this post in all honesty.

Why would a user think renting a signature space will result in said member acquiring an official group..?

no no, A bad actor would rent the signature space and use it to persuade someone that they can buy a real group from Stanley, you see bending is a heavy drinker.

Dont let the others make you depressed bro. You made the suggestion in the hopes of making HF a better and safer place. The suggestion isnt your best work but keep at it.

If it helps prevent one HF user from being defrauded then I see that as a win.

You would also be suggesting staff can't sell sig space...

Send me an example of this having happened.

It hasn't yet thankfully, you'd want this to happen?

It likely won't. Should we close the marketplace too because someone might get scammed?
