Hello,

I have already asked myself in another thread if there are any experiences of users who confirm that the Crypter they purchased also defeats Windows Defender. I have not received any response. I think that the Crypter market is dead because of this, or should be. Because without Windows Defender out of the way, you can forget the whole crypter thing.

There are probably a few that make it, I checked all the Crypter threads on the marketplace. Mostly people complain about the weakness of the Crypter because they can't beat WD. Others don't answer the question.

I would advise you to go through all the threads like I did, and see if anyone clearly says: yes, my Crypter beats WD. (some do)

It's a little different with Crypting service, here it's probably so that you pay for each Crypt individually, but get an unique Crypt, which also beats WD.

To think that there are free Crypters that do the job is pure superstition.

RAZ Private crypts are the best at getting FUD runtime & scantime on HF.
