I purchased 2,000 (good) CPU bots that should've been manually spreaded from Elijah. As well as his XMR miner. Total cost of that was $295. The deal went down on the 27th of July which was 8 days ago as of today.

I haven't received nothing - no access to the miner stats nor the amount of bots that are on the miner. In hindsight, I should've known this man was a scammer.

Do not trust that easily your money to low b-rating and low amount of posts members, do your research before doing it.

The user exit scammed and it's obvious, they have 4 open disputes.

Sorry for your loss mate but be careful next time with who you're dealing with.

Forensic - August 4, 2021, 7:41 am

Yeah elijah is not a trustworthy guy at all

Comrade - August 4, 2021, 7:42 am i am highly interested to check where exactly this goes!!!

because, the same guy contacted me via discord & offered me the service....

Please don't tell me stuff I already know. No way I can reverse this mistake & this helps me with nothing. No hard feelings.

Didn't mean to say it by that way, yeah you can reverse that, I wrote it so other newbies who read this may be more careful next time.

Again sorry for your loss, I hope somehow you'll make it back buddy.

Thank you and it's all good. Since when I started dealing with him he had 2 disputes open - one that had nothing written on it so I didn't pay attention to it & another one that was for an Amazon GC.

Anyone can report there, means nothing, he will move the funds to another btc address or he will coinjoin and you won't be able to track his address.

They need to report the address to the police and pray that scammer won't coinjoin and will deposit to an exchange like binance.
