Hello HF,

I came across the site last night, and managed to activate my account this morning after the activation e-mail arrived. I'm glad to be here.

A little bit about myself, I'm someone who is pretty passionate about technology. I'm passionate about networking, security and Linux specifically, but have a considerable amount of programming knowledge, as that is my educational background.

I'm currently in the process of trying to earn credentials in the form of certifications, as I'd like to eventually land a DevOps role. As for what I plan to do here on the forum, I would like to write some tutorials and guides, participate in discussions and perhaps meet some cool friends. Helping out in the white hat areas would also be something I'm interested in. As I explore more, I am sure I will find my niche and place here.

I'm always happy to meet some people for chat, so feel free to engage me in conversation.
