Thread: Australian broadcaster "accidentally" switches to footage of a satanic ritual.

HerdyGerdyMan - August 22, 2021, 8:49 am

Looks like it's being held in a break room or something.

Gee whiz, I wonder how this could have happened....

Do people in Australia have freedom of religion? I don't see the problem with this, satanism is probably more peaceful of a religion than christianity.

This was done on purpose. Who knows who was behind this and what are their plans.

What makes you think so? Christianity as a religion is peaceful, the problem are the people who interpreter it wrong. Satanism is not peaceful at it's core at all.

not 100% sure of that seems a bit accidental lol

Oh, God. There go the conspiracy theorists again. The group literally made the news on August 12 because they are trying to push the government to allow them to give religious classes in schools. So this clip was probably already in their databank regarding that news. Mix-ups happen. Mistakes happen. The employees at broadcasting stations are also humans who make errors.

The fuck is wrong with people. Is all common sense gone in this world? Does everything have to be a conspiracy? Sometimes there are many more simple things at play.

Satanic cameraman, watching it on the device on which he's broadcasting news, perfect timing of the video(one man says "Hail satan", the exact moment later the video stops), the actual "missclick", in the right time and place where satanist are fighting for government to accept satanism as a religion... the possibility of this being just a coincidence is pretty low.

Oi cunt!

You right though, did you ever see Jake Browns big slam on the X-Games "big air" ramp? Shit was gnarly and he just got up and walked away from it.
