

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Whats your \(1\) Dream car? \(2\) Current car? \(3\) First car?

Palestine - August 28, 2021, 5:03 pm

My very first car was some old ass POS Isuzu SUV that legit had every part of it built/put together by parts from random different cars like it which were all gathered at the junk yards. Literally had different color doors, bumpers, panels, etc lol. But that was my cousins hand-me-down which he actually hand-built/put together himself that I only drove for a short period of time-until I purchased my OFFICIAL 1st car- 1998 Honda Accord and that thing definitely put in the work!!! Lasted me forever until I upgraded in 2016 to a brand new car- 2016 Nissan Altima SR (Leased). Until finally I purchased myself my baby, 2014 Audi S4 Quattro! Love my car and I still have it today!

My dream car has always been an Audi RS6 Avant! AND FINALLY they've OFFICIALLY brought them over to the big U S of A! I swear i shall one day get this beast!!!

(IMAGE) Audi RS6 Avant Front View

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

(IMAGE) Audi RS6 Avant Rear View

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

Also, I've always wondered how many people commonly or indistinctively judge others based on the type of car they're driving, and of course the way they're driving.

I noticed I would sometimes guess who is driving the car based off of their driving methods/skills/or no skills and would be able to determine/guess who the person driving is, and also by the type of car they're driving of course. Although this obviously isn't an actual legit, or good way to do so for obvious reasons such as it could very well be their friends car, a family members, loved ones, or even a rental so being able to connect who they are to the type of car doesn't always seem so effective I believe, but still it's just a natural thing people do. What do you guys think?