Thread: Would you buy the last one? \(If you could afford\)

Lorem Ipsum - September 2, 2021, 7:08 am

Collection is new, but this size is the last one in 48 (IT/FR) size for $12,916..

I'm in love with the navy blue (almost midnight blue), yet it's 100% mink fur and I don't like to pay for overpriced stuff. Official website page;

<https://www.harrods.com/en-us/shopping/mink-tailored-overcoat-16873524>

Although I love YSL (perfume and all that), I don't care that much about materialism.

Even if I become a millionaire, I rather spent $13k on donations for others, than buy this overcoat.

Question for today;

Would you buy the last one? (If you could afford).

I second what Scrub said, it does look MAD comfy though I'll give it that.

Yea $13k would make a nice donation, could pay for schooling or help get someone out of debt, or buy a nice car for one or two people.

Exactly. I spent about €700 in 3-4 days on family and friends (helping out, treating dinner, etc.) and I feel better afterwards than buying 2 pair of shoes for €350 each.

I had this topic with a client of me today, talking about how we both are enjoying revenues and making money, yet not caring that much about materialism.

No I would not buy this even if I was millionaire. There are coats that cost between $500 and $1000 that look's better than this one and simultaneously provide same amount of comfort. An absolute waste of money / resources

I-I - September 2, 2021, 10:55 am

I have the money to shop at high end cloths stores but don't(not 12k for a coat "high end") and I still choose to wear hand me downs/shop at good will for a lot of stuff.

That's not to say sometimes I don't spend money on better cloths, but usually I don't really care all that much for what I'm wearing.

So def no, I wouldn't buy this coast even if it was $200

This isn't even YSL, LMAO. ?

Maybe if they made one for men, but probably not.

Homme means men.

Demize - September 2, 2021, 11:25 am

No personally I don't do the whole "professional" dress thing. I dress more causal therefore I wouldn't want a coat like that

ASLR - September 2, 2021, 11:28 am

Dawg I buy $10 shirts. No way lmao

L1I DuRk - September 2, 2021, 11:38 am

No, I won't spend that much on a cloth bro, not flossing on anyone.

Same here haha, I do like some fancy clothes for special occasions, yet 13k is too much for an overcoat.

Do you know what a joke is?

Carbohydrates - September 2, 2021, 2:11 pm

Personally no. I do not buy expensive clothing, only accessories. Like my wallet & sunglasses are pricey items but my shirts? $20 tops, mostly gifted. That $13k would do me a lot more good not sitting on some coat I may wear 1-3 times in my lifetime. Though I do know mink fur and flashy brands do hold value pretty well. Still a no from me boss man.

Deany - September 2, 2021, 2:12 pm

I'm gonna be honest, no I would not. For $12k I can buy other things I enjoy. However, if fashion is your thing or you really like the design and have the cash, do it!

Well said. It isn't only cruel for the animals it is also unnecessary to spent that much on 1 item in my opinion.

Kriptik - September 2, 2021, 2:27 pm

I'd rather spend that money on vacation somewhere lol, that's a lot of money for a piece of cloth.

Maybe if I was a billionaire, then maybe...

A year of holiday in Thailand or a month in Dubai, either way money well spent on vacation.

popZmoke - September 2, 2021, 4:05 pm

Lmao this looks hella gay, i'd give 13k to my mom instead

LeetSpeed - September 2, 2021, 4:24 pm

Nah, won't even be looking at stuff like this. Just save the 12k for something more functional.

Name three things you'd spent 12k at? To stay on-topic, make it something related to materialism (no vacation, rent, etc.).

Regardless of the money, not my style-- but if you just picked one up, nice!

I see! No haha I was just browsing and like I said in the OT;

"Even if I become a millionaire, I rather spent $13k on donations for others, than buy this overcoat."

I rather make my family happier and treat my friends than buy 1 expensive coat. Thank you for being supportive, though!

I agree, but then again there is nothing wrong with treating yourself as long as you remain living within your means.

Everyone is different-- that coat, is just not my style even for $100.

Well said, my man. I do agree with your statement.

I understand your point. Do you prefer leather coats or other materials that are non-animal based perhaps? Or not a fan of coats in general?

Mr. Corleone - September 3, 2021, 5:47 am

I'd rather wear a wife beater on my porch BBQ'ing the finest steaks for $12k with weed and drank accompanying me.

ailo - September 3, 2021, 6:10 am

I personally wouldnt buy it, it doesnt fit me as a person.
