The project is kinda low mcap ($355M), solid fundamentals, blockchain agnostic, and has first mover advantage in privacy by default smart contracts. Bridges, Bridges, and more bridges to bring in a ton of liquidity.

Wow, this looks like an interesting coin. Anyone into it? Gonna give it a review and consider a small bag.

Will look deeper into this, but at first glance seems like a good project and has a great name 15% up in the last 24 hours though, not sure if its a good time to buy, what is your buy target price if you have any?

For me small bag is $500-$1000. I got 15x on Enjin and 30x on Waves with small investments. Always nice to have a couple of those in bull markets.

I bought 50 just for the heck of it. Invest first, do research later. That's my motto.

Recon12345 - September 11, 2021, 1:43 pm

From my own research, their competitor should be ROSE (Oasis Network) Should throw an eye on them as well. Both projects looks good and both had some nice growth, room for more.

Not sure which one looks better as of now though. Think SCRT has the upper hand here FOR NOW. Rose might have more room to boom though. Not as hyped as NFTS yet but if theoretically people would start to care about privacy SCRT/ROSE should both moon.

Cooldudex - September 11, 2021, 1:44 pm

It SEEMS really good but it's up around 50% already over the past week. It may or may not mean anything longer term but I am weary at this price point. I hope it might drop a bit so I can throw in $1k or so. Hopefully I don't regret waiting for a drop, though. ./

Never heard of this project before, apparently Enigma was rebranded the Secret Network they violated the securities act and were forced to return funds to harmed investors along with a $500k penalty. I like Secret Network's idea of privacy for apps, NFTs and smart contracts but their old project was definitely shady.

Yin Yang - September 11, 2021, 1:55 pm

I got in about a month ago after I researched into the project more.

Yeah, I see that too. May need to do a bit of ROSE too. Definitely similar to SCRT. Maybe further along, I will have to compare.

McDolands - September 11, 2021, 2:11 pm

The project seems really cool actually, one thing I'm not too happy about though is the fact that the market rarely reflects the fundamentals of incredible privacy-oriented projects.

Man it really sucks when these smart contract hacks occur. I wonder if Ethereum would survive today the DAO hack that cost $70m. And at that time the market wasn't nearly as big. I'd like to know more about the vulnerability. I assume it was smart contract coding flaw and not SCRT itself that was the cause.

use the bridge <https://bridge.scrt.network/> but when you sent the wscrt from ethereum over to the secret network it will be ssct but you need scrt to import the token list. that's where i was stuck on. i thought the wscrt becomes scrt but it becomes ssct and couldn't see the token cause no scrt to run the gas fee to import the token list.

i had someone from telegram send me 1 scrt to run the gas fees

Just doing this long enough that I can at least sift out something that's bullshit. Basically everything else stands a chance, unfortunately though some of the bullshit does well too like Shina Ibu. Unpredictable market but imho if you at least take a long-hard look at what a project is doing you can get an indicator to the success.

From the OP you can see that I did a Branch Cite from a post [mention=1161771] made. All I did was look into it and post it as its own thread. Not gonna take more credit than simply pointing out what someone else brought up.

Here are things I saw when I looked at Secret.

1. Pretty interesting brandable name for a crypto project. More unique than most and yet memorable.
2. Site is not a cookie-cutter template site. Uniqueness again.
3. Their development site is great. Attracting developers is very important. To do that you start with good docs. <https://build.scrt.network/>
4. Social media is strong.
5. The mission of privacy first in a smart contract blockchain is a good one.
6. Was poised in pricing position to grow.

I'm keeping an eye on this project as it is probably the easiest 10X altcoin in existence right now. Binance, KuCoin, Kraken, Huobi - Secret is already listed on almost every tier 1 exchange with active development team, funding and strong use case. I expect the price to drop even further but at $150M market cap you can only get so greedy as this will explode past $1B market cap during a bull run.
