here is story

<https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=4078623>

this is guy to whom my client sent cashapp

total amount was 30usd

even my client tried to ask for a refund he refused

he blocked me on discord <http://prntscr.com/1s3tk8x>

i told just give me 20usd and keep 10 still no what can i do ?

Parks - September 13, 2021, 4:17 pm

I would not refund if I accidentally received funds. As the user is likely going to charge back either way and is hoping you send in BTC for example or send from your own funds.

So you lose his chargedback funds + The money you sent him. I know it may not be your situation but that's my answer.

kickass_CF - September 13, 2021, 4:17 pm

i sent him this message on hf yesterday

<http://prntscr.com/1s3u4py>

he ignored and then i contact on discord look at his reputation he has so much awards and stuff

Porn - September 14, 2021, 7:31 am

You can issue a full refund within 180 days from the transaction date on PayPal, not sure about cashapp though never used it for payments. It's better to not claim the money because he will call his bank and your paypal account could go under investigation/limited.

SmallTownBoy - September 14, 2021, 7:36 am

I would refund. It is the decent thing to do because one day you can make the same mistake and you need the same kindness back.

Creativo - September 14, 2021, 7:49 am

I would refund it tbh, But also I wouldnt make a thread like this, This is to bring attention to your situation and maybe pressure him into refunding, he really has no obligation to do it.

You fucked up so you man up to your mistakes and take care of it, The right thing to do here is to refund your client because it was your mistake (Atleast this is what Im getting from this). The right thing would be for him to refund, Does he have to? Absolutely not.

i already gave my clients what they paid for it is not his money to keep lol

if you get money on road , you take it , but if the person found that it is with you and he comes back to take right thing is to give back

Marketplace - September 14, 2021, 8:53 am

So basically you accidentally sent $30 to the wrong user?

Own fault. I can see why he wouldn't refund this. It's like he's saying, he doesn't want to get scammed. On the other hand it's just $30 and I would refund it though. He could refund it after a few days to minimize the risk of being carded imo.

cig - September 14, 2021, 9:12 am

On one hand it's $30 and the guy refusing the refund looks like a huuuge cheap ass, but on the other hand your client had ONE job and that was to pay the right person. If I was him I'd just take the L and not make the same mistake, though that guy not refunding is greasy.

ghostboy - September 14, 2021, 9:51 am

From the beginning I told the OP to chargeback through his bank because I am not taking the risk of both refunding and charging back.

Not to mention we haven't done any business in almost 5 months, how does one accidentally give out the wrong cashapp?

It does not matter to me if it is easy to chargeback or not.

So because I fear a chargeback that is logic to refund as well? I don't think you get it.

I am not refunding the money as well as risking a chargeback. This is not my problem, it is yours.

It's not the same, BTC can't be chargebacked. Personally, i would not take the risk to refund + getting chargebacked.

Do not make mistake next time.

Can you please explain where Cashapp told you "do not refund" ? Imao

It's just $30... Refund the official way and move on. You won't get a charge back if you refund (rather than re-send the money with your own funds)

You can "refund" officially in the app.

I would refund if asked if it was a mistake. Anyone keeping the $30 must really need it. So let's just hope he's so broke that $30 is life altering for them and take pity on them. If they are just being a scumbag, then let's hope they get hit by a bus.

Quote:From the beginning I told the OP to chargeback through his bank because I am not taking the risk of both refunding and charging back.

That's bullshit because you can refund in the app. Thanks for proving you're a cunt. Account closed. HF doesn't need that bullshit here.

Quote:the user should had return such a low amount

Don't care if it's $30 or $3000. It's a mistake, not my money, and if it costs nothing to refund it then that's the right thing to do.

He's lost his account over $30. What a moron. Maybe next time he's confronted with a choice of being a scumbag or the good guy he'll choose more wisely.

NoHacksJustGlobal - September 15, 2021, 3:05 pm

In venmo it's a pretty common scam, I won't give too much details but you send money, tell the victim to send it back, the victim will lose the money. Exactly how I said it is how it happens. But in this case it's an obvious real situation seeing as its only $30..

You cannot chargeback a refunded payment. Venmo doesn't not appear to have a "refund" option, while CashApp does.

Depends on the amount. 100-500 bucks I would send back and that person as thanks typically give back some 20 bucks.

If the amount is larger than 500, I keep it all and sleep like a baby, ones mistake is one gain and lesson for him.

I legit sent $60 to the wrong Venmo before and asked for it back and the dude went off on me, it was pretty f cked up fr..

I will refund anyone who sent me accidental money to me on any platform, either its my bank or my online accounts. Reason? Because its not my money, Its his money & he made a mistake, No matter if he sent $1 or $1000000.

handres2018 - September 22, 2021, 6:47 pm

Yes I personally would refund because at the end of the day, it's not my money and it was not earned.
