The US Porkman - September 15, 2021, 12:22 pm

it's fucking disgusting to eat this shit at morning, u sick weird lol in my country, we take a coffee with chocolate biscuit, or bread with butter ?

Zero - September 15, 2021, 12:23 pm

I think eating eggs for breakfast is pretty common worldwide.

nop

not in my country

it's disgusting , eating bAcon at morning ?

DuffySavage - September 15, 2021, 12:29 pm

Wakey wakey, eggs and bakey

The US Porkman - September 15, 2021, 12:32 pm

sometimes we take a hot milk with cereals too

i just take a few beers as breakfast.

Demize - September 15, 2021, 12:51 pm

I won't even argue with someone who can't properly spell bacon. Eggs and bacon is the ultimate breakfast. Good day sir.

I'm not from the US, but I wouldn't mind bacon in the morning. Love the bacon, bacon is life! Pfhaha.

The US Porkman - September 15, 2021, 2:17 pm

it's well known, Americans don't eat shit lol they are not obese at all ?

Creativo - September 15, 2021, 2:35 pm

The fact that you don't eat it in your country does not mean it's shit, it's like you just made an account to give Americans shit, Are you 10 or just hate Americans in general? Where are you from? I'm from Mexixo and we just eat whatever we want at whatever time we want it and if somebody judges you based on that they're retards.

They taste nice together, with some tomatoes, sausage, hash brown, and beans. And a coffee (strained not that instant bullshit), and fresh orange juice.

I assume mentioning black pudding isn't going to go down well... :)

Hey man, can't knock someone for their breakfast choice.

Personally I do not eat bacon, but a nice egg sandwich in the morning is phenomenal.

Michael - September 16, 2021, 1:10 am

Sometimes some eggs and bacon and sometimes croissants and other pastries.

Whenever I was in the USA I was offered all kinds of fluoro coloured sugary cereal for breakfast. And sometimes pancakes. Aunt Jemima and all that. My parents were American but I mostly didn't grow up there but we'd go back and forth visiting the states. Fruity pebbles and apple jacks and we didn't have that sh** in New Zealand in New Zealand we ate like corn flakes for breakfast or toast with butter and marmite. Sometimes eggs. Bacon was a rare treat not a usual morning breakfast. Bacon was amazing and rare treat as a child for some reason although other people probably had it all the time in New Zealand we just didn't happen to have it.

Now the WHO says more than two strips of bacon in a fortnight or more than one red meat sausage causes bowl cancer and the WHO said it is as bad as asbestos and cigarette smoking in terms of causing cancer.

Anyway as an adult I'll have a more healthy light cereal with fruit in it and trim milk or I'll just have left overs from dinner for breakfast.

dark chocolate lowers the risk of depression

A recent cross-sectional study of over 13,000 U.S. adults found that people who ate dark chocolate in the prior 24 hours were 70 percent less likely to report depression

Agreed on the shitty aspect of those foods. Pigs are filthy animals and I don't eat pork. Nor do I eat sweets or chips.

Bacon lovers should beware. Eating even a small slice per day could increase the risk of developing colorectal cancer by 20%, researchers say after a large study in the United Kingdom.

There is indeed a saying that goes as following;

"You are, what you eat."

They don't hate pork.

Pork is considered dirty to eat.

Allah allowed them to eat animals who are cleaned. Which is called halal meat.

They can't hate something Allah created.

I don't like pork, so I don't eat it.

But I don't avoid products with pork matter, since I'm not Muslim.

May I also point out that in Leviticus 11:27 wasn't allowed to eat pork either.

I don't know Christian who don't eat pork in particularly tho. Just pointing it out to say that it isn't a concept that only exist in Islam.

In Hinduism, they don't cow for obvious reasons.

Most Buddhists are vegans.

My point is, I don't know why you bring religion into this, since everyone is different.

I would rather point out that this is more related to cultural differences than religious.

Of course, since the world is large, it is fascinating to the wide variety of cuisine that has been established because people eat a certain thing and expand on that.
