If you see very good player vs weaker player and the weak player have will 3X your money.
Is it really chances around 30% to win based on experts analysisis?

Just like the stock market, do your own research. Tons of bullshit out there when it comes to "analysis"

You have nothing better to do in your time than spread hatered in my threads?

Is just being sadistic come to my threads and criticize me and look for far i can go

xPower - September 27, 2021, 6:18 pm

Yes it is a general representation of what the odds are but you should do your own analysis to find discrepancies in the odds (that you can take advantage of)

Basically this. Plus depends on the sport too.

Let's say boxing how'd you determine strong and weak? By points mostly but the reality could be that they're pretty on par.

It's a bit of a number game plus getting to know how a score of a player/team "strength" is determined.

In some sports may be fair in others it may be deceiving.

Sports can always go either way. Some teams can just have a bad/off day.

LeetSpeed - October 4, 2021, 8:11 pm

It's gambling anything can happen. Just people get greedy when they see the odds.

I will say that sports bet analysis is just a simplified version of trading signals. If you do it smart it'll probably pay off for you, not a bad way at all to go. You will have bad days though.

Yeah but I mean theres always a risk, same with playng at casinos or any type of gambling.. I mean pretty common sense

FinanceMan901 - October 4, 2021, 9:09 pm

Vegas is pretty accurate when it comes to these type of stuff but then again in sport betting upsets do happen quite often.

clean - October 4, 2021, 9:52 pm

Dude, I would say it's all based on predictions and luck. Sometimes the shittiest team in the league beats a good team.. How likely is it though?

ashish2112 - October 4, 2021, 10:53 pm

Luck plays an important factor
I prefer trying arbitrage betting
That's much better

Yanix - October 4, 2021, 11:04 pm

Gambling is a game of chance...anything can happen until it's over.

o3Fo - October 4, 2021, 11:05 pm

I've seen sports book betting between 1.01-10x+ payout.

mine would be somewhere around 7-8% , i am that bad at predictions so will be staying away from it most of the time.

I think they are I really dont know.

Ninja - October 31, 2021, 2:38 pm

I would say that the odds are accurate but I never bet, based on it. I bet because of knowledge and stuff that I have seen, and how they fight/play.

TB12GOAT - October 31, 2021, 2:40 pm

Odds are accurate. Some of the popular sportsbooks actually have worse odds. Prob due to HF not updating in real time.

Exactly, so many times you bet on the "for sure winner" just to watch them lose miserably..
Fun times....
