Thread: What you do with trickle traffic?

Kaiba Corp - September 28, 2021, 11:59 pm

Hello.

I've been trying to search the Forum but no results.

Basically I have something people kind of want but aren't that willing to pay for. That drives a consistent 10 visit per day. Is there a way to easily monetize that?

Lol 10 views a day. Maybe you can earn $1 a year, if you're lucky.

I know, not necessarily from the traffic.

But should me some way.

Email lock the content for example, but then what?

Well it's hard to know when we don't know what kind of place you are getting the traffic. Is there a way for you to upload everyday to change the algorithms so you start getting more traffic? More content often leads to more traffic.

I started doing POD and I made zero money with it from February to June ?but I upload every day and since June it's been increasing bit by bit.

Instagram genuine traffic, exactly.

I never posted, once I started posting about my interest daily out of boredom people message me aswell. But dissappear if I ask for money

(the usual quote, if you're good at something never do it for free.)

? So I'm just pondering is there a win/win situation

Relatively... If information is always valuable.

If I were to sell it I wouldn't overprice it.

I'd say 4.99 to 6$

People are willing to consume it. Not to pay for it though.

So you are giving away some information for free on Instagram that people want to read but then you try to ask for money for MORE information on the topic and they run off? I'm not surprised honestly. The thing with making money on the internet is that people give away a tremendous amount of info for free before they're able to monetize it. That's ONE way of making money on the internet. Or another is putting it on a blog and selling advertising space on the blog. Or you could turn it into an Amazon ebook but you possibly would not have success pricing it as high as $4.99 to 6. Especially not if it is not a very long in-depth book. Or you make a YouTube channel on the topic and then you would basically have to upload every couple of days and not expect to make a $1 from it until after nine months.

Or are you trying to get people to go to a Patreon after they look at your Instagram?
