Thread: Bytes balance display in header

My idea, not sure if the best but it's a start.

I'm not sure if this was posted before but I was thinking since Bytes are a big part of the forum it would be nice to have a place where you could see them no matter what page you on, track your gains from posting and just being more aware of your balance. Maybe it could be added as an optional feature?

What do you guys think

Send it to Adam, he can probably make it happen with a userscript.

Well, we could probably do a profile card from the username in header which is already profile linked. We really haven't utilized Profile Cards well on the site yet.

That would actually be a better idea, there's many things you could include up there.

This seems like a good suggestion. I do find myself checking my bytes balance often, especially if I'm actively bumping threads/using an auto thread bumper. I need to know when to re-up/gamble to get more.
